THOMAS JEFFERSON SUTHERLAND

Died Sept. 1850. He was buried in the old Mission graveyard and his bones are there yet under the present barn on the farm. If there should be a desire to give a decent burial to the remains of the first man that boomed Kansas and mark it with a suitable tombstone - the bones of T. J. Sutherland should be taken from beneath the stable where they now repose before all those have past away who might be able to locate his grave. Nov. 23, 1893. Historical Chief.

See page 44 "Pat Gray pg. 29

Mrs. Comstock wife of a California imigrant, died near the Mission. Bud's History - was perhaps the first death of a white person in the township. But chief states that Thos. J. Sutherland died at the Mission and was buried there Sept. 1850. We believe however that Mrs. Comstock was first death and that the year of it's occurrence was much earlier than 1852 as stated in Bird's. We believe that her death occurred in 1843.
