The year has begun

Welcome to Troy High School. This is where the majority of the people you saw cruising and partying spent a lot of their time. THS had a small population of 127 students.

This small population allowed the faculty and staff to interact with the students much more than in larger schools.

This small population also allowed the younger students and the older students to interact with each other.

These interactions made it possible for nearly everybody to know everybody else's names.

Being a small school meant you would see the same people quite a lot, almost every day. This could have been seen as monotonous or as a pain, and sometimes was, but it provided a proper foundation for making long-time friends.

As you turn through the pages of this book an image or vision will be created in your mind.

You will see the people of THS hard at work and also laid back and having fun. They are hard at work with their homework and sporting events. They are laid back at Prom and the other dances events, and trips.

So sit back and let the images and visions be created. Enjoy gazing at the small place where everybody knew everybody else's names.

Nixon passes away

"I am not a crook." This was a phrase stated by Nixon when his honesty was in question. This was a phrase that would haunt him the rest of his life.

Richard M. Nixon was the 37th president of the United States and the only one ever to resign.

Nixon's life came to an end Friday, April 22, four days after suffering a stroke. He was 81 years old.

His death came as a shock to the world. His successors claimed that he had given them great advice.

The Watergate scandal may have hurt his reputation but it definitely did not overshadow what he had done during his administration and what he continued to do after his resignation.

He opened up the world to China, had arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, and he began the U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam War.

He had an outdoor, televised funeral 100 feet from the house he was born in in Yorba Linda, California. He was buried beside his wife Pat.

It was a 70-minute service with four eulogies. People waited in a three-mile-long line for eight hours just to walk by his casket and see him one last time.

Nixon was mourned around the world. The flag was lowered to half-mast for nearly a month at Troy High School. Almost everybody knew his name.

Students participate

What's involved with student life? There are three major things involved with it. They are clubs, activities, and, most importantly, friendships.

THS had many clubs or groups that students could join. No matter what kind of person you were, it was easy to find a club that suited you.

There were student council, GCTL, National Honor Society, T-Club, drama club, Kayettes, FFA, cheerleading, pep club and more.

There were various activities for students to join and attend also. Many of these activities were directly involved with the many clubs. They sponsored them.

The junior class organized Prom. Stuco and pep club sponsored the dances, Homecoming and Queen of Courts. The drama club put on a fall play, Meet Me in St. Louis and a spring play, The Matchmaker. The forensics team competed at speech contests. GCTL performed a few skits for the grade school students. These were just a few of the many activities that students at THS engaged in.

The most important factor of student life, friendships, came very easy at THS. It was very easy to get to know people here because it's a small school. The smallness made it a comfortable place for new students too. If you were a student at THS everybody knew your name and if you didn’t know theirs, you soon would.

Fads add spice to school, students

Fads... they come and they go, like a consistent cycle on a never-ending wheel of fashion and students found this cycle quite exciting. This year was no different and the fashion parade continued to trudge on.

Footwear was a fashion hot spot with two trends taking the spotlight. A big hit with both sexes was Eastland shoes. They were made out of leather and fashioned in a variety of styles and sizes. Another hit with both were the sandals produced by Nike and other sport companies.

In the clothing department, anything in plaid was hot. Plaid bodysuits hit it big and, come to think of it, so did any kind of bodysuit. They were seen paired with anything from jean shirts to crocheted vests. A trend that crossed over from the men was the pairing of large T-shirts with men's flannel shirts over them.

Many people also followed the fashion train and ended up in wrecks along the way, by wearing clothes that didn't go together.

"Occasionally when Leola Miller is lazy she wears her ropers and shorts. Bad fashion statement," commented friend Lisa Winder.

Hair styles pretty much remained the same with a little bit of variety. Many senior girls showed up on the first day sporting a tiny fabric braid plaited in their hair and soon many underclass women were also sporting a "weave." People still permed their hair but some opted for the straight natural look. A few hardy souls (names not mentioned) even braved the blade for a total shaved head look.

Fads for 1993 and 94 varied as much as the people who created the fads. In Troy High School, it was quite evident that no matter what you wore or when you wore it, all that mattered was that all were individuals. xBy Kathleen Robinson

Many students were not only active in school-sponsored activities, but they were also equally involved in their own hobbies. These hobbies ranged from the ordinary to the unusual.

Many hobbies were found outside, like horseback riding, motorcycle riding, working on vehicles and automobiles, fishing, hunting, and camping, just to name a few. For many people their hobbies were ones they had participated in for a good part of their lives such as Leola Miller, whose hobby is riding horses.

She commented, "I enjoy riding horses because of the people I ride with. We used to show a lot but haven't lately due to our busy schedules."

Another hobby that was also profitable was the raising of farm animals. Many students at Troy High School were also involved in 4-H. This group not only encourages animal work but also working around the home and community. Senior Sarah Fischer, who has been a member of 4-H for over 12 years, was very involved in the animal aspect of the club.

"It takes up a lot of time but it is definitely worth it, especially when the end result involves some money," commented Sarah when asked why she enjoys her animals.

While hobbies were enjoyed outside, there were plenty of activities that kept students involved indoors, for instance talking on the phone, reading, and having a job. Most students participated in an activity that consisted of driving down Main Street and driving up it. This activity was called cruising and usually involved friends, loud music, and a friendly chat with Officer Tom O'Donnel.

"To tell you the truth, I really don't know why I cruise. I think it is just a natural habit," commented Seth Reust.

Whether the hobby were cruising or reading, indoors or outdoors, or if it were for a profit, it really didn't matter as long as you were left with a warm feeling and able to fulfill yourself. xBy Kathleen Robinson

Family of 7 faces dilemma

'Meet Me in St Louis,' not New York

The house lights were dimmed, the pre-show music began, while 17 actors paced nervously backstage. Oh, and "China" the cat waited patiently to make her first stage appearance. Before long the pre-show ended and the cast of Meet Me in St. Louis prepared to take the stage. The all-school play Meet Me in St Louis took place November 18 and 19.

The performances began with a pre-show that involved the singing of several turn-of-the-century tunes to set the scene for the play. Some of the songs were "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "In the Good Old Summertime," and "Hello My Baby."

The play takes place in St. Louis just as the World's Fair is about to begin. Mr. Smith (Shane Stanton) is promoted. There is only one problem; his new job is in New York. His troublesome daughters, Rose (Nikia Rosenberger), Esther (Sarah Fischer), Agnes (Leola Miller), and Tootie (Mandie Loroff) are determined to stay in St. Louis. They go out of their way to see to it that their family stays in St. Louis. From biting their father's boss's leg, to derailing a trolley, these girls don't stop at anything. The play also includes the trials of teenage romance.

Other actors were Lisa Winder, Shane Peden, Tabitha Gibson, Andrew Clary, Rick Hankins, Karen Oyerly, Kathleen Robinson, Jim Hanlan, Nick Nourie, Rebecca Trant, Glen Gronniger, and Ryan Geiler. The play was directed by Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey.

This year China, a mynx cat, made her first stage appearance. Unlike many of the other actors, China was calm and relaxed before the performances.

Junior Glen Gronniger commented, "I was surprised that the play finished without any major mistakes."

The play couldn't have happened without the help of all of the crew members. Seth Reust, stage manager, said, "I thoroughly enjoyed the job. It made me feel like a god." A make-up committee person, Carrie Smith, commented, "The job was very stressful this year, as we had to put make-up on the pre-show entertainers as well as the regular play cast."

Although the play was performed without many mistakes or forgotten lines, the practices were full of humorous incidents. Ryan Geiler and Nikia Rosenberger had to practice, many times, the scene in which Nikia slaps Ryan across the face, not only once, but twice. Nikia Rosenberger stated, "It was really hard doing this scene. I could barely keep from laughing when I saw the facial expressions on Ryan's face."

The cast survived even the most difficult scenes and in the end gave a joyous sigh of relief. Shane Stanton summed it up by saying, "Believe it or not, we finally finished it!" x Sarah Fischer

'The Match Maker' did its job
Spring play has record attendance

A fall...a lover...an adventure, the spring play, The Match Maker, was a well-developed comedy. It involved many different parts and actors to play those parts. It was one to remember.

The play had two evening performances, one Thursday, March 24, and one, Friday, March 25. The latter was the annual dinner theater, co-sponsored by the drama club and the booster club.

The play had an attendance that was a new record as 115 people were eating at the baked-potato bar.

The cast was a well experienced one, though it lost some senior experience as Shane Stanton, Sarah Fisher, Seth Reust, Lisa Winder, and Becki Trant all graduated.

There were many memorable moments, but here are a couple: Junior Nikia Rosenberger, who played Mrs. Molloy, had this memorable moment; "The play had so many great and memorable moments in it, it's hard to name one. However, after practice one night, senior Seth Reust and I lay on the 50-yard-line of the football field and shared some pretty deep thoughts. It was so spiritual! Practice was a little disappointing this year though, because we didn't get to see Mrs. Rockey let her hair down."

Senior Seth Reust, who played Malachi Stack, had this to say: "The spring play this year was one with many memorable moments. The most memorable had to be when Gomer, Rick Hankins, grabbed Kelly Dishon for the first time. She yelped and slapped him in the same motion. Oh, man, it killed me!"

Junior Ryan Geiler, who played Cornelius Hackl, remembered, "I went on stage by myself, although I was supposed to have Glen with me; he forgot his hat and ran backstage so I had to sit there by myself until he ran out."

The scenes were all comical but one scene stood out: Act 3 was the Harmonia Gardens Restaurant scene. This scene was practiced and practiced over and over again constantly. It was important because of its total chaotic chase scene. The chase involved Mr. Vandergelder, Mrs. Levi, Mrs. Molloy, Minnie, Cornelious Hackl, Barnaby Tucker, Ermengarde, Ambrose, Fifi, and Ruby. It involved the group of characters to run between the tables of people at the dinner theater without knocking anything over. As they are running Mr. Vandergelder is constantly yelling, "You're discharged!"

"It was scary because I was afraid I would fall down and look stupid in front of everyone," explained Mrs. Levi, played by Sarah Fisher.

"You are not sitting here; go somewhere else," exclaims Mrs. Molloy played by Nikia Rosenberger as she states directly that Malachi Stack played by Seth Reust, will not be sitting there, and waitresses, Ruby played by Becki Trant, and Fifi played by Tabitha Gibson, prepare to try and control the matter. xPhoto By Carrie Smith

Brave souls awaken early

Members and cast find success

Early on a Saturday morning, the average Troy High School student could be found in bed, sound asleep; however, for those dedicated students that made up the speech team, this was the time for them to excel. Members of the team became accustomed to early mornings during the speech season. This year the team attended many tournaments and did well.

The team began the year with many members, some experienced, and some just beginning. Renee Scholz, freshman, commented, "I was really nervous at the first speech meet, but I quickly adjusted and had a great time." Experienced member Ryan Geiler commented, "We had many new members that added a lot to the team."

The combination of new and old members was definitely helpful as several competitors qualified for state. Members attended the state festival at Johnson County Community College. Lisa Winder and Nikia Rosenberger received a 1 in duet acting; Mandie Loroff also received a 1 in the serious solo competition. Jeremy Grable received a 11 on his oration, and Kelly Dishon received a 11 on her poetry reading. Other members who competed at state were. Mandie Loroff and Renee Scholz, in improvised duet acting. Nikia Rosenberger commented, "Receiving a 1 this year felt great because Lisa and I worked really hard. It felt good to come home with a medal, and not empty-handed."

The team also hosted its own tournament. Many speech team members participated by doing different jobs at the meet. As well as hosting a meet, the team members shared many activities together during the hours spent waiting for results. Julie Nett remembered, "I will never forget the times we spent playing cards and getting to know one another."

Not only did the speech team members rise early in the mornings, but so did the one-act cast. "Saga" was the one-act presented. The play is a summary of our country's rich history, beginning with the Salem Witch Trials, and ending with the Civil War. Cast member Glen Gronniger commented, "Because there was no humor in the play it took a lot of hard work." The play was directed by Martha-Jean Rockey who was also the forensics coach. The cast did well, but did not qualify for state.

Much hard work was put forth by both the speech team and the one-act cast, and due to this hard work, success was found by both groups. Sarah Fischer

Small groups, big impact

Elite groups do a share of the work

The elite members of the National Honor Society and Quill & Scroll were busy tutoring students and writing news stories.

The National Honor Society kept up its good record by tutoring students in its spare time. The National Honor Society sponsor was Charlene Brookover. One of the participants in this program was senior Carrie Smith. She had this to say about the program: "I feel that this program enables the students to help their peers. This also helps the tutor brush up on his or her academic skills. I wish that more people would get involved with helping other people."

Junior Traci Simmons had this to say about tutoring the grade school kids: "They really appreciate the time we take to help them. It gives us a chance to help students who really need our help and this gives us a feeling of goodness."

Another one of the elite groups in the 93-94 school year was the Quill and Scroll organization. This club was sponsored by Martha-Jean Rockey. It is one of the most elite as it only had three members: seniors Ryan Akers, Brandi Horner, and Sarah Fisher. Ryan Akers had this to say about Quill and Scroll: "It is an international honorary society for high school journalists. It's an honor to be in it. They send you a nice little informative publication every month or so."

The drama club had specific events. One was attending the Pirates of Penzance, a play put on by Benedictine College in Atchison, in December. They also co-sponsored the spring play dinner theater with the booster club. The drama club's sponsor was Martha-Jean Rockey.

The Troy High School Student Council had a very busy year, in that they sponsored both the Homecoming and the Queen of Courts dances, a tail gate party, the all-school cookout, and a Thanksgiving dinner for the middle and high schools. Its officers, President Lisa Winder, Vice-President Emily Erpelding, and Treasurer Carrie Smith, had their hands full organizing all of these activities.

Lisa Winder said, "Student Council is a big part of our school. We try to raise school spirit and have more student-involved activities. The tail gate party was a great success. All members pitched in to make it work, and we all had fun flipping burgers!"

Two different groups, one main idea

Wisdom is key for GCTL, Quiz Bowl

Sharing their knowledge seemed to be the theme for the GCTL and quiz bowl teams for the 93-94 school year.

The quiz bowl team showed their knowledge by competing in seven meets throughout the school year. Many meets were very close and some even heart breaking. "Sometimes the meets were a little disappointing if we lost a close match, but we always had fun. The best thing about the quiz bowls were the bus rides to and from the meets. The high levels of conversation we held were quite interesting," admitted Ryan Geiler.

This year could have been called a building year for the team as only three of the twelve members were seniors. "Our quiz bowl team this year was quite active," commented Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, the team's coach. "We participated in both junior varsity and varsity meets. Our J.V. placed fourth at the league meet. It was a great year, and I'm sorry to see my seniors leave. They were a great bunch of fine men."

Following in footsteps from the year before, the GCTL continued sharing all they've learned over the years with the grade school children. The GCTL grew extensively by adding several new members and one more sponsor. Miss Cheryl Koelsch and Mr. Darrell Wapp had the honor of sponsoring the group. The team built on what was taught during last year's sessions. Unfortunately the GCTL was unable to visit the grade school as often as it had during the 92-93 school year because their time was cut from twice a month with the students to once a month. The team rotated by visiting the K-4th grades one month and then 5th and 6th grades the next. The GCTL left the grade school with a bang as they shared their last visit with K.C. Wolf of the Kansas City Chiefs. K.C. Wolf covered topics such as drugs, alcohol, and peer pressure, that the GCTL had stressed to the students. K.C. Wolf was able to cover them in a more in-depth fashion.

The GCTL visited the grade school with the hopes of leaving a lasting impression on the younger students. "I have been in GCTL for two years now and it has been so great. We tried to make a difference in the grade school kids' attitudes towards not only drugs and alcohol, but also with simple things such as sharing and just being yourself. I truly hope that we made the impact that we needed to and that they remember it always!" explained Carrie Smith.

Not only did the members want to point the grade school children in the right direction, they also tried to teach them to be strong individuals who could stand up for the values that the GCTL hoped to instill. As some seniors found out, it was often the students who taught the members of GCTL. Joe Anderson shared that feeling, "It was a great experience for me, and it is something that I will always remember. It taught me to be proud of what I stand for, because so many kids look up to our group and believe in us." x Nikia Rosenberger.

Goals are established
Group efforts accomplish much

Meeting goals was a large part of the year's activities for both the Kayettes and the FFA Chapter. The Kayettes maintained a strong membership, and the FFA increased their membership. At the beginning of the year both groups established goals to accomplish throughout the year. Both groups were successful in accomplishing these goals.

The Kayettes were very busy throughout the year. The year began with the selection of board members. The selected girls were Sarah Fischer, Melissa Roland, Dana Stanton, Stacey Wiedmer, and Jamie Schmidt. Carrie Smith was the president, Becki Trant, vice-president; and Traci Simmons, secretary/treasurer. In December they had their annual Christmas party and gift exchange. The board also had a party and gift exchange at Pizza Hut.

Dana Stanton commented, "I thought it was really fun, and I enjoyed being with my friends."

Also in December the Kayettes wrote letters to service men. Some members were lucky enough to hear back from the people they wrote to. Teachers were honored throughout the year with little gifts of appreciation. For their money-making project, the Kayettes sold candy bars.

At the end of the year they hosted a senior farewell party, honoring the senior girls. "This was a very emotional event," commented Leola Miller. Mrs. Babetta Israel was the Kayette sponsor.

The FFA chapter was also very busy. They began the year with a back-to-school watermelon feed for all the students enrolled in agriculture classes. Much time and effort was put into selling fruit.

District contest was another area of great interest for many members. The chapter had several members do well. The highlight of the year was the trip to Manhattan to attend state contests. Joe Anderson placed seventh in the meats judging contest, and the meats team placed tenth. Sarah Fischer placed fourth in the newswriting contest. Michael Ferguson commented, "The trip was fun, and I think we did really well at the contests."

The FFA ended the year at the chapter banquet. Members received awards and recognition for their endeavors. Craig Kostman, FFA president, commented, "The banquet was a big success; every member was honored in some way."

Mr. Darrell Wapp was the FFA advisor.

There were many challenges and obstacles for both groups to tackle, but with leadership and teamwork the groups were successful and made their goals turn into reality.

Constitutions change

T-Club and pep club make changes

Letter jackets with the Trojan T were everywhere throughout the year. The group responsible was the T-club. Its officers, Brook Luedke, president; Traci Simmons, vice-president; and Nikia Rosenberger, secretary; had the job of organizing such events as the annual alumni basketball tournament. The T-club also had a debate about academics qualifying for a school letter without having to be in any extra-curricular activities. The T-club Constitution was changed to limit membership to only those who practice and compete.

Senior Kathleen Robinson had to say about the whole ordeal: "T-club is an accomplishment for people in extra-curricular activities. If academics people were allowed into this group, it wouldn't be a select group anymore because everyone would be in it. Therefore it wouldn't be a group by itself at all."

Principal Beth Reust had this to say about the change in the constitution: "The idea presented by the county was to give the academics people letters to show that extra-curricular activities were equal with academics, and that both deserved the right to be in the letterman club, which is what we call the T-club."

The Troy Trojan pep club was full of spirit. The year started with the addition of a new mascot, Dana Stanton. The pep club sold seat cushions for $5 a cushion as their fundraiser. The pep club officers were President Leola Miller, Vice-President Brandi Horner, and Secretary Lisa Winder. The pep club was also the annual decorating committee of the Stuco-sponsored Homecoming dance.

Pep club sponsor Kathy Meyer had this to say about pep-club: "This year a committee of current members met to develop new requirements for membership and participation in pep club. We hope to have an increase in school spirit in years to come and a more organized and active pep club."

Some changes to the constitution were proposed, such as turning the pep club section into a student section so any student could sit there. Some others were in compliance with being eligible to try out for cheerleader and be involved in Queen of Courts. To be involved you would have to make three signs, sit with fellow members, and help with a fundraiser. xGlen Gronnigerm

Squads display a professional image

Looking sharp could have been the theme for the 1993-94 cheerleaders and the members of the flag squad. Not only did their new uniforms make an impression, but their choreographed routines grabbed people's attention.

The cheerleading squad for 1993-94 was a larger squad than those in the past years. There were eight members and Ms. Meyer was the returning sponsor. Senior members were Carrie Smith, captain, and Becki Trant, co-captain. Nikia Rosenberger was the only junior cheerleader, and sophomore cheerleaders were Lindsay Christenson, Mandie Loroff, and Jennifer Engemann. Freshman members were Renee Scholz and Lindsey Rosenberger.

Many routines were performed and stunts were displayed at almost every pep rally. The camp they attended at Missouri Western helped the squad to become a sharper squad.

"I had a lot of fun with the members of our squad. I think we all grew closer together and learned a lot too," commented Renee Scholz.

Another squad that looked sharper then ever was the new and improved flag squad. Not only did the squad accompany the band on its Halloween Parade march, they also performed at football and basketball games.

The 1993-94 squad consisted of Stacey Wiedmer, Jamie Smith, Captain Becki Trant, Carrie Smith and Traci Simmons. This year each member was expected to make up a routine for the flag members to perform.

Many interesting moments happened, but one that Becki Trant remembered, "I thought it was real funny when Jamie Smith's velcro on her flag got caught on her uniform during one of their routines. Jamie just had to stand there and undo it in front of the crowd."

New uniforms, new members, and new experiences all led to one of the most memorable years ever for these two squads. One thing is for sure, they definitely knew that everyone knew their name. Xby Kathleen Robinson

Band and chorus rebuild

New music teacher with new ideas

The music department acquired its third teacher in three years. Mrs. Lynn Denton took over the job, including teaching the band and chorus classes. The acquisition of another new teacher sparked excitement in the classes. Junior Ryan Geiler had his own opinion, "Band was a different class. This was our third teacher in three years. Although I've had three different teachers in my high school career, which made it difficult to achieve class goals that were ever changing, I still enjoy making music with my friends."

Senior Carrie Smith commented, "It was a fun experience because Becki Trant and I were the only seniors, and it gave us the opportunity to lead the others."

The band as a whole had many different performing opportunities. It put on its annual Christmas performance and its spring performance. It also competed in DVL band contest. Junior Gary Stamper had this to say about DVL band, "The band festival was fun and exciting. Next year, I hope that I get to stay there just a little longer, but over all it was fun and we did well."

The band, just like all other large groups, qualified for state competition, and the band also participated in the graduation ceremonies by playing "Prelude" as an opener and playing the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance."

The chorus department also had a busy schedule, performing in the Christmas and spring concerts. The chorus as a whole, just like the band, automatically qualified to go to state. Individuals in the chorus had to go to a regional meet to qualify for state. The chorus also participated in graduation ceremonies by singing "Dare to Dream" and "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

Junior Stacey Wiedmer had this to say about band class: "I like the pieces Mrs. Denton chose for us to sing and play this year, but we could really use more people in chorus."

Sophomore Candy Higley agreed that they did need more people: "Chorus has been an interesting experience. Contest was a lot of fun. I hope the class will grow in the future to add to its experience."

Over all, the new teacher reorganized many things and was liked by the students. She taught class to a deeper extent than many band and chorus teachers by teaching the students music theory and development. Junior Stacey Wiedmer had this extra comment: "She taught us more music theory and things we will need to know for the future that some of the teachers have not done in the past."

Junior Gary Stamper had this to say in closing, "This year our band did better, because we had a teacher for the whole year."

"It was a riveting week!!!!" --Seth Reust

Seth and Brandi prevail in 1993

A week of anticipation led to a night of excitement and joy as the 1993 Homecoming King and Queen were crowned, September 17, in front of a mass of fans.

Ten seniors were selected as the King and Queen candidates by the volleyball team and the football team. Throughout the week of the 13th through the 17th, the students of Troy High waited for Homecoming night.

At the beginning of the ceremony Toby Prawl, Leola Miller, Jonathon Campbell, Tiffany Plummer, Seth Reust, Brandi Horner, Kevin VanWey, Becki Trant, and Brian Waggoner went on the field and waited as their parents and peers cheered. The moment finally came, and the Queen and King were selected from the candidates.

Brandi Horner was selected as the Queen and Seth Ruest was voted the King. The crown bearers were Dru Whetstine, Martin Meisenheimer, Whitney Stock, and Molly Geiger. The Queen was given a tiara, six red roses, and a sash. The King was awarded a medallion.

Queen Brandi Horner commented about her feelings during the Homecoming ceremony, "I was very surprised to get it and very nervous. It was very exciting at first and then I just felt normal again."

The week of Homecoming was a prelude to Homecoming night, as Monday was Pajama Day.

Tuesday had many people at Troy High seeing double, as it was Twin Day. Wednesday was Beach Day and Thursday the student body was cowboys and hippies. As tradition dictates, Friday was Blue-and-White Day.

The annual white-washing was sadly missed this year, but the bonfire did carry the torch. The students anxiously headed to the "square" on Friday for the pep rally. The candidates were once again subjected to cruel and unusual punishment. The cheerleaders and band added to the excitement as the crowd prepared for the upcoming night. The weather was also on our side, as the day and night maintained clear skies and nice weather.

King Seth Reust reminisced about the terrific night and ceremony by saying, "It was wonderful. I, as a person felt as though I was on top of the world."

With the win of the football game over Oskaloosa by the close score of 13 to 14 and the ceremony a success, the dance fit right into the scheme as a perfect end to a perfect week. The theme fit the mood, "Almost Good-bye," as the seniors faced the fact that it was almost good-bye for them. x By Kathleen Robinson

Snow doesn't stop the crowning

The candidates were selected, the date set, the voting completed, and the gym decorated. Everyone was all set for the announcement of the queen and her escort. There was only one problem: SNOW!

Due to President's Day, school was closed on Monday, creating a hectic week anyway. Then the snow began to fall, and administrators decided to send students home on Tuesday after lunch. The snow kept coming and school was called off Wednesday as well. On Thursday the students returned to school, ready to prepare for the crowning and dance. Friday the big day arrived and the wind came with it. The strong winds caused roads to drift and once again school was dismissed after lunch. The administrators decided to cancel the game, leaving the candidates wondering what was to happen to the moment they had been waiting for all week. The dance was originally planned to take place Saturday, so it was decided that the crowning ceremonies would be held before the dance.

A large crowd attended the ceremonies. The candidates for queen were Leola Miller, Tiffany Plummer, Carrie Smith, Rebecca Trant, and Lisa Winder. The candidates for head escort were Brian Waggoner and Moswey Chung, an exchange student from Hong Kong. Other escorts were Glen Gronniger, Ryan Geiler, and Travis Davies. The queen and head escort were selected by the entire student body. The queen was Leola Miller and the head escort was Moswey Chung. Moswey presented Leola with red roses, a crown, sash, and a kiss. Leola Miller commented, "I was overwhelmed by his kiss."

The dance was immediately following the ceremonies. The theme for the dance was "I Swear" by John Michael Montgomery, a country artist. The colors were silver and burgundy. Both the theme and the colors were selected by the pep club members.

Although the weather was foul, the ceremonies still proved to hold as much spirit as those in the past.

Karaoke sweeps night away
Changes give Prom new flair

After dinner, served by Judy's D&G Restaurant, and words from guest speaker Mr. Donald Harter, prom goers smiled prettily for Bray Photography, then pulled back the tables and hit the dance floor for a night of dancing to a new beat, a beat all their own.

Karaoke, which was provided by the D.J.'s from Fat Cat Productions, hit it big at prom. Several students cut loose behind the microphones as classmates watched and cheered them on. Fat Cat Productions also involved the group with line dances, such as the electric slide. They also worked up a live video for the group to a song. A variety of music was provided to please the tastes of all students, including the song "I Don't Want to Live Without You" by Foreigner, which was the prom theme.

"The D.J.'s were great!" approved senior Tonya McNemee. "I liked it when a lot of us were line dancing with them. As for the karaoke, I don't think anyone will forget us singing 'I Love Rock 'n' Roll,' 'Stop in the Name of Love,' and 'The Joker.' The juniors did a great job with setting up Prom!"

Not only did karaoke give prom a new style, the atmosphere itself changed completely. The Prom was moved out of the high school and over the river to Twin Spires in downtown St. Joseph. Also breaking tradition this year, the juniors had to cut down on decorating time. In years past, the class had an entire week to work on decorations; however, this year, due to the motion detector alarm system at Twin Spires, the class had to get decorations up the morning of prom.

"It made me feel pressured, and I thought that it was never going to be done on time," commented junior Traci Simmons on the decorating situation. "In the end we pulled it off perfectly! It was much better than I expected!" The decoration theme for this year was marble columns with teal ribboning.

Due to popular demand, the after-prom party returned to the Belt Bowl. From 12:30 to 4 A.M., the students enjoyed bowling, sand volleyball, pool tables, and an arcade room. Also sandwich items, cookies, and pop were provided. Many lucky students enjoyed small prizes that were given out throughout the night, but the real joy came at 3:45 when the large prizes were drawn for. The top five winners of the evening were Joe Anderson (TV), Melissa Roland (CD player), Moswey Chung ($100), Tracey McNeume ($100), Craig Kostman (cordless phone), and Stacey Wiedmer (pocket TV).

"I had a lot of fun at the after-prom party! It was great!" revealed Joe Anderson. "I was really surprised I won the TV. I'm glad I won because I'll take it to college with me."

One thing is for certain, this prom left memories never to be forgotten with all participants.

"It was my first prom," related junior Glen Gronniger. "After all of the worrying about my tux and if I would have a flat tire on the way over to Twin Spires, it turned out to be a great prom to remember and to give the seniors a farewell."

The day they've been waiting for finally comes

Seniors say farewell to THS

Tears of happiness and sadness fell to the ground outside the C.W. Oliver Gymnasium as the class of 1994 said goodbye to each other after their commencement May 22.

Commencement exercises began at 3 P.M. Sunday afternoon in the heat of the day. The THS band played "Pomp and Circumstance" as the class of 1994 marched to their final goal as high school students to receive their diplomas. Serving as escorts to the senior class were Brady Jasper and Nikia Rosenberger.

After the graduates were seated, Ms. Charlene Brookover, counselor, presented the audience with the class of 1994's academic accomplishments and future plans. The high school chorus sang "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," and then came the awards and scholarships.

Mrs. Beth Reust presented the 1994 salutatorian, Joe Anderson. Ryan Akers was the 1994 valedictorian and received the academic medal. Each gave a short address to the class and guests. Craig Kostman and Sarah Fischer were the first to receive the Janice Kinsey Memorial Scholarship, presented by Hugh Kinsey. Lisa Winder received the Booster Club Honorarium and Brandi Horner received the SLK scholarship. Mark Wiedmer presented the American Legion Awards to Ryan Akers and Brandi Horner. Honorable mention went to Joe Anderson and Carrie Smith.

This year, the senior class opted not to have a guest speaker. So, without further ado, Mrs. Beth Reust presented the class of 1994 and Warren Grable, Jr. presented them their diplomas. All seniors received white roses tipped in blue as they crossed the stage. Tassels were switched and a few mortar boards were tossed into the air as the class of 1994 officially graduated.

Following class pictures, the reception line moved outside into the shade in front of the high school steps. Family and friends congratulated the graduating class.

After years of excitement and anticipation for this day, many seniors were reluctant to let it go. Graduates clung to each other in tears of happiness and sadness not willing for it to be over. Others stood proudly with smiles of sheer joy in triumph that they achieved their diplomas. They chose well when they picked their class motto their eighth grade year. For them it seemed very fitting: "Our words may hide our thoughts, but our actions will reveal them."

Seth Reust summed up his whole graduating experience: "At first I thought I'd be depressed, but, as I went through it all, I felt this overwhelming feeling of relief. It was a great experience and I'm rather upset that I can only graduate from high school once."

People change...

Troy High displayed a new style. The attitudes, appreciation, and involvement of the people was unique from years past.

The freshmen came into the school silent and grouped. They adapted to their new environment and eventually broke out of their groups and participated in sports and various other extracurricular activities.

The sophomores, having already been inducted into Troy High in the previous year, served as advisors and let the underclassmen know what to expect.

The juniors were "gettin' busy." They were busy preparing and organizing for their big event, prom. Eagerness to become the big ones on campus next year was heard in their voices.

The seniors were the most unique. They reminisced about everything they've done and they managed to do even more on the side. Some were ready to leave and some just wanted to stay "where everybody knows their names."

The faculty and staff kept the system running with the addition of new rules and classes.

All of these people knowing each other made it that much more memorable. xRyan M. Akers
New freedom and new ideas. That's probably the best way to describe what the freshmen experienced this year. The freshmen went through the process of shouldering more responsibility, taking new and harder classes, dealing with sports and extracurricular activities, and somehow on the side maintaining a social life.

Although their freshman year was kind of awkward and uncomfortable (especially since upperclassmen are known to pick on them) the freshmen enjoyed the new freedoms they had. Freshman Shawn Lane commented, "I like the fact that I'm responsible for my actions from the moment I walk in to the moment when I walk out. It makes me feel more responsible and it also makes me feel like I'm actually running my life--well, at least a little bit."

The freshmen even proved that they were unique. When polled what their favorite song was the response was surprising. Although it was the year of country music, no country music songs even ranked! The favorite seemed to be Meat Loaf's "I Would Do Anything For Love (But I Won't Do That)" with "Barney's Theme Song" running a surprise second.

And although high school is, after all, school, some freshmen actually found enjoyment in it. Noelle Oyler noted, "School is okay because you get to meet new people and I especially like the fact that I'm more in charge of my life in high school. It's really a jump from junior high!" Nancy Mitchell added, "I couldn't believe in the transition from junior high to high school; it was very difficult to make the change although I enjoyed the new freedom!"

Your freshman year is supposed to be the scariest year of your high school career (because of freshman initiation, upperclassmen, etc.), but actually it's probably the most memorable year of your high school career. It's the year that you not only meet all sorts of new students, but it's also the important first impressions that could affect the rest of your high school existence!

Yes, when you come in as a freshman there are much new ground and new activities to cover. And although there are many new responsibilities and activities, the name still says it all. Freshman. It suggests a fresh start, new activities, new people, and new beginnings.

Memorable Moments

Jill Wiedmer commented, “I really remember the first day, because I couldn’t find my class and ended up going up and down and up and down before I found my class!”

Renee Scholz added, “My first day was the worst too. My bus was late and I ended up being fifteen minutes late for class. Everybody was laughing at me; it was so embarrassing!”

Sam Reust chuckled, “Football practice by far! That one first day was the worst day in the history of my life!”
Sophos savor successful year

Hectic describes 1993-94 for the sophomores. Various projects and activities filled the year.

Selling pizzas was the top money-making project for the sophomores. The students' selling ability was put to the test as 38 were on the lookout for pizza customers. Each student had to sell a minimum of 10 pizzas or pay a $10 fine. Not even one of the students had to worry about that, though; they all sold 10 pizzas and some even sold more. Their hard work and determination paid off and they made over $1,300.

"They did a good job on the money-making project. Everyone took part, despite what the girls said at first. They said the boys would not participate, but the boys proved them wrong and did very well," said Mr. Folsche.

Excitement abounded when it was time to select class rings. A Josten's representative arrived to show the sophomores various styles and designs of rings. After much thought and discussion, the students were able to choose their "dream" ring.

Sophomores had three classes that were required. English 10, a math elective, and a science elective had to be taken. After these three courses there were four others that they chose for themselves. These included home economics, agriculture, computers, business, geography, or history. Each student was cautious as choices were made. The appropriate classes prepare the students as they set future goals.

How will these courses help the sophomores? "They will help me understand things better for when I go off to college," stated Benji Cook.

"Math will prepare me better for the engineering field. I am planning to be a civil engineer," Travis Jenkins said.

A survey was conducted and the sophomores were asked their favorite movie of the year. Mrs. Doughtfire, a comedy starring Robin Williams, came in first.

"I thought it was hilarious and was fit for all ages to watch," commented Lacey Thomas.

Second-place honors were won by the movie The Three Musketeers, also another comedy.

"It was a hilarious movie," stated Jennifer Engemann.

Cool Running, a comedy about a Jamaican bobsled team, and Tombstone, a western, tied for third place. Others that made the survey were Sister Act II and Beverly Hillbillies.

Results of the poll clearly showed that according to the sophomores, comedies were definitely the movies to see.

Their commitment and determination helped the students complete course work, projects, and bring their sophomore year to a successful close.

Many big news events hit the nation over the course of the year. Some affected us directly, while others did not. Regardless, the media broadcast the news to keep us informed.

The juniors completed a survey to see what they thought was the number-one event. The flood of 1993 that swept through the Midwest this summer topped the survey with outstanding numbers. In our area, the Missouri River went over its banks and into Elwood. Many people from our town helped those people in need.

Jamie Smith stated, "It affected a lot of people and caused a lot of problems." The Flood of 1993 will long be remembered.

Marcus Allen and Joe Montana signing with the Kansas City Chiefs came in second. The Chiefs snatched Montana from the San Francisco 49ers and Allen from the Los Angeles Raiders.

"It gave an area team big-name players and a hope to make it to the Super Bowl," commented Nikia Rosenberger.

In third place was Michael Jordan's retirement from the Chicago Bulls. Other vote getters included the Amy Fischer story, and the burning of the religious compound in Waco, Texas.

Increasing responsibility also awaited the junior class. First, curriculum/course requirements for juniors are English 11 and American history. With only two required classes, the students had the opportunity to select the electives that would benefit them the most. They carefully evaluated and selected each class. These classes will better prepare students for whatever their future will bring them.

"The courses required will be a benefit to me in the future because it will make the college courses that deal with those subjects easier for me," stated Jason Dishon.

Second, they were in charge of running the concession stand at all high school and junior high football, volleyball, and basketball games. They also had to "man it" for quiz bowl and speech meets. All this hard work paid off when prom came. The juniors were able to work together, and made this a successful money-making year. The money earned was then used to cover prom expenses.

Third, the juniors also had the responsibility of making all the prom preparations and arrangements. There were many important decisions that had to be made to insure a perfect prom. Small details, such as the type of glasses and the writing on the glasses, became very important. Even more time and thought was given to choosing a theme and selecting the "right" D.J. Prom was definitely one highlight for the juniors.

Memorable Moments

Karen Oyerly said, "I liked watching Mr. Folsche doing experiments in Physics."

"On our way home from the student council conference in Shawnee Mission, we stopped and ate at Pizza Hut. Then all of a sudden Lisa Winder yelled 'Get Down with Drugs,' and the rest of the schools just stared at us. We felt like fools," Emily Erpelding recalled.

"The day I was bet 10 bucks that I could not talk for three days in a row, and of course I got the 10 bucks," commented Glen Gronniger.

Josh Ruhnke remembered, "The look on Brady Jasper's face when Mr. Folsche lit a torch in front of him and made him drop his orange."

Leaders Tackle Problems

This year proved to be a regular year for the administration. A lot of tough issues hit the administration at full steam causing them to make some tough choices. Two examples of this were the bids on adding on to the school and QPA being furthered.

This year the school decided to add on. This decision was a major one because it also meant some former things were to be torn down such as the old water tower. This would give the school much more room overall and make the school in general more comfortable and open.

The second tough issue was QPA. The administration asked for input from parents of students within the school district through a questionnaire. This year even saw an on-site visit from some QPA officials to analyze data from here, and then they made various suggestions. The on-site visit held March 3, 1994 was an assistance visit to help the school highlight or target areas for school improvement. The school had several things it needed to get accomplished for the school improvement process. In determining target areas data needed to be collected or verified from three separate sources and included in the school's profile. Following the on-site visit, the next steps were to form committees to specify target areas and determine what assessments were needed to acquire the data. The teachers then had to leave for summer break. The committees researched strategies to be implemented to show improvement.

Mrs. Beth Reust commented about QPA, "In my mind the greatest benefit was the chance to become involved in QPA. The discussion being generated among the faculty about educational issues is focusing our efforts on what is best for all students and how to show gains for all students."

This year the school also saw the results of a former tough choice, the choice to join the technological world. New computers and programs surfaced throughout the school. A CD-ROM was added to the library for the students to use. The CD-ROM had the power of storing a whole set of encyclopedias on one single disc, so the decision to add this to the school's information arsenal was obviously a smart one. Also a modem was added to the school's computers. Modems gave the computers the chance to unleash information from around the U.S. and also gave the school the chance to use it. New computers were also added; a computer was placed in every classroom for teachers and students alike to use. Two computers were also stationed in the library which could be used by students at any given time.

Not only did the administration add new hardware but they also decided to add new software. Two new programs added were Integrate and Osiris. Integrate gave the teachers the power of electronically adding their grades instead of the older method of figuring them by hand, whereas Osiris gave the teachers the power of electronically typing in their absentees and tardies. This directly gave the teachers more teaching time and overall helped the education process.

This year also marked a time for new beginnings and fresh starts for the administration. New issues had to be decided upon and old decisions had to be evaluated. The administration had the constant job of responsibilities and endless amounts of decisions.

This year also saw a new member added to the staff, Angie Stock. Angie Stock became the high school secretary, a position that was long held by Gail Clary. Mrs. Clary was moved to the grade school position at her own request. Although the first year was tough, Mrs. Stock soon learned all the little "tricks." She commented, "I've enjoyed my first year at Troy. Even though I had a lot of responsibilities I still enjoyed meeting the students."
Mr. Freeman works with Janel Reder, one of the two women to fill the position of district secretary. Miss Reder assumed some of the secretarial duties when Brenda Turpin, district secretary, returned to school. In the spring semester Mrs. Turpin assumed the half-time position of elementary computer teacher and Miss Reder worked daily in the district office.

Mrs. Reust, principal of Troy High School, attended many conferences during the school year. At one point in the year she attended a conference in New Orleans and gave a presentation over the process of QPA. XPhoto by Carrie Smith

Involvement and pride. Those two words seemed to be stressed more than in years past. New ideas and methods of teaching were introduced which brought new standards and methods of learning for the students. This year the faculty had its eyes opened to the power of technology-aided teaching with the purchase of two new programs: Integrate and Osiris. With those two new programs at their disposal they were able to take routine and monotonous jobs of taking roll, lunch count, grades, etc. and limit them to simple keystrokes.

With the addition of all this new technology and involvement, teachers had to shoulder more and more responsibilities.

All teachers now had advisory groups in which the students spent their activity period. The groups were aimed at improving students' grades and to answering any pending questions they had. This also resulted in closer teacher-student relationships.

Also the new technology brought an array of new technological questions which were fielded by the Computer/Math teacher, David Burger. The high school also received two new additions to the staff; Angie Stock, secretary, and Lynn Denton, music.

Although there was a surge of new ideas and ways of teaching this year the tradition was still there. All the technology and methods of teaching can't replace the relationships each of us made. The one teacher each of us remembers the most. The one teacher that not only taught and helped us during our high school years, but was also our friend. By Ryan Geiler

When asked about the school's new surge of technology the teachers had this to say . . .

"I already spend a lot of time on computers, and I found using them for grades requires much more school time but they're done more efficiently." - Mrs. Rockey

"I really appreciate the Board wanting to spend so much money to update our technology and their wanting to send us places to learn how to use it." - Mr. Reynolds

"In most of my writing classes it helps produce short essays and short research papers, but mostly it adds a new dimension to the teaching environment." - Mrs. Israel

"The technology, in terms of workload, has cut my time in half and allowed more "real" teaching time because of the electronically figured grades, absentees, etc." - Miss Koelsch

When you are a freshman it seems you will never be a senior, and then suddenly you are. You can see the light at the end of the tunnel.

That shiny glimpse of the future makes the seniors start to consider what lies in store for them, such as college decisions, where they would like to live, and other future plans, but of course they will always know that they have a place that everybody knows their name here at Troy High.

Brian Waggoner replied, "After high school, I plan to go to college at Highland, and hopefully in four years, I'll have a brand new pickup, a real good job, and be an independent success."

Toby Prawl said, "After graduation, I plan to work construction for the summer and the first semester of college at Highland Community College. After attending the two years at Highland then possibly go to K-State."

"I plan on attending National Travel Academy in Texas and getting a job as a travel agent somewhere far away from here, and hopefully get married and have kids someday," noted Tiffany Plummer.

Nicholas Nourie said, "I want to go to college and take a class that includes underwater basket weaving and claymation figures. After attending Fine Arts College I plan on getting my doctrine. I hope to become a McDonald's manager."

Like every graduating class of THS, the seniors of '94 chose a color, flower, and motto. These were chosen when the class was in the eighth grade, and they still remain true. For the colors they chose navy blue, metallic silver, and hot pink. Pink-tipped white rose was the class flower, and the class motto was "Our words may hide our thoughts, but our actions will reveal them."

Many seniors found somewhere in the midst of all the blue gowns, and tassels the graduating class of 1994 were ready to face the challenges of a demanding future that was ahead of them.
The following seniors were chosen for what they do best in that certain quality. A survey was given out to all the seniors and these were the ones selected:

We've been together thru thick and thin.
We've been to worst moments then back to good ones again.
We've done a lot together probably more than we should.
None of us would take the memories back, even if we could!
We have gained a few and lost a few as the years went by,
A few of the departures have almost made us cry.
All in all, our loyalty has been true.
I don't think anyone will ever forget those who wore the white and blue.
So as we move on and the band plays that marching song,
Remember - your past has made for your present
with the help of friends till the end, '94

When asked what they liked about their jobs, these staff members replied...

"I like my job because I enjoy the kids," commented Margaret Sutton.
Bea Koehler stated, "I like the closeness I have with the kids, but the responsibility worries me."
"I really enjoy working with the kids, drivers, and teachers. If I would have stayed driving a truck I wouldn't have met the fine people I have met," remarked Charles Hopp.
Tim Twombly said, "I like that I don't have to do the same thing all the time. There are always other activities that make it more interesting."

Hard working describes staff members at Troy High. Day after day our staff members rise at an early hour to start their tasks that sometimes go unnoticed. Some start preparing the food for the day's meals; others start up a cold, lonely bus; still others are getting the buildings ready for the mob of students that will fill the halls at 8 A.M. sharp.

You may be sitting there wondering just how much work these people do. So, why don't we take a look. The cooks prepare breakfast and lunch each day. (This is only the second year that breakfast has been served.) They have to monitor and make sure the four food groups are served at each meal. State guidelines require schools to serve a healthy and nutritious meal. This means they have to select all the food very carefully. During the course of one year, the cooks will cook approximately 39,060 meals, counting both breakfast and lunch. That's a lot of food and a lot of preparing.

Mr. Charles Hopp, transportation director, is responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of all the buses. With the buses in good running order, the bus drivers have the responsibility of making sure each day students arrive at school and home again safely and on time. They have to drive in all types of weather to make sure this gets done.

Each bus driver spends approximately 178 hours on the regular bus route. (That isn't even counting the activities that they drive us to.)

A little extra attention was given to bus safety this year. Drivers took students out of regular classes, for a short time in November. They showed students one of the ways that they could exit the bus quickly and safely. In case of an emergency, students need to know what to do. They dust, sweep, vacuum, fix things, and the list goes on and on. Our custodians work very hard to keep our school in tip-top shape. In fact, they spend 183 hours every school year cleaning up after students, so that each day the students have a clean environment to learn in. They also have to stay late at night when there are sports and other extracurricular activities. They have the responsibility of cleaning up after those events, too. This means they have late nights and early mornings.

All our staff members play an important role at our school. So many times we take for granted the jobs that they do, but they are a vital part of our school life. If it weren't for them our school would not be able to run smoothly.

Sports make it...

Sports have usually been coined as a place where everybody knows your name. Troy, being a small place, allows this to happen quite easily.

Troy High's athletic teams did well during the 1993-1994 school year. Improvements were seen in most areas.

The Trojan football team struggled throughout the length of the season but they beat the right teams and finished as District Champions.

"WHOOMP! There it is." The Trojan volleyball team went through the season saying this and playing with great consistency in their tournaments. They placed fourth in all of them. The Trojans finished their successful season with a winning record of 19-12.

The cross country team was very small. The boys' team consisted of five harriers, while the girls' team consisted of only one, Rebecca Trant, a senior. The team had a good season and qualified for State competition.

The basketball teams were young and optimistic. All together the teams consisted of four seniors, two boys and two girls. This caused many juniors and sophomores to take on great responsibilities. Optimism was their big key to success.

The teams were smaller than usual. This allowed for everybody involved to "know your name."

Ya gotta do what ya gotta do'--Don Cash

Trojans repeat, make State play-offs

"...and the second fisherman pulled out a worm from under his bottom lip, and said, 'sometimes you've gotta do what you've gotta do.'"

This was the final part of a story told by Coach Cash. The story inspired the Trojans in perhaps the most important game of the entire season, to an emotional win and a district championship.

The first practices began in mid-summer, when the heat and humidity was at its worst. To many, these practices were hot and tiring, but just ask Shane Stanton, a 250-pound lineman, how they really are.

"They are terrible; you are just on the go all the time. If it wasn't for my knee surgery, which forced me to watch for the first week, I'm sure I would have hated practicing."

Once the games began though, it was smooth sailing. The conditioning mellowed and the competition picked up. In the first game Troy faced arch-rival Wathena. Troy played with good intensity, but the Wildcats were too much; they pulled ahead in the fourth quarter to steal a victory.

Memorable Moments

"It was the last drive in the JCN game; when I scored my legs cramped up so bad I couldn't get up, and people just kept on congratulating me." -Gary Stamper

"It was the Horton game, Coach Cash sent Pleasant Ridge, they got hit hard also redefined the term 'muddin.' You see the field of battle resembled a swamp.

Then came the times that try men's souls. Troy seemed to lose the intensity it once had. The Trojans were shut down by the Jackson Heights Cobras, 35-0."

'You only get out what you put in'

You only get out what you put in" was a key phrase heard on and off the court during the 1993 volleyball season.

The Trojan volleyball team started their season with high hopes and determination, which led them to a successful year. A rather large number of girls went out to help build a strong foundation for the team.

Six seniors led the team to a victorious season. Two seniors, Lisa Winder and Leola Miller, were chosen first team all-league.

The Trojans overcame past problems of breaking pool, or getting into the final rounds of a tournament this year. They were successful in almost every attempt to break pool this season.

The ladies were coached by Ms. Cheryl Koelsch assisted by Mrs. Lori Nelson. When asked about the season, Ms. Koelsch stated, "Even though the end of the season didn't finish the way we had hoped it would, I consider this season a huge success at all levels. This season was also a step in the right direction towards building a sound foundation for the future."

The ladies' dedication proved to be successful with the varsity squad ending with a 19-12 record. The JV squad ended with a 9-4 record, and the freshmen finished up 11-0.

When asked about the season, Carrie Smith stated, "It was a very exciting year for me, because this was the first year that I played just varsity. The accomplishments that we made as a whole encouraged me to work that much harder." As the season came to an end one thing is for certain, the girls started a tradition that will be carried on in years to come. "YOGOWYP!"

Memorable Moments

Harriers take the trip to State meet

The 1993 boys' and girls' cross-country teams were both a little unusual this season.

The girls' team was not actually a team. It was an individual. Rebecca Trant was the only girl to participate in Cross-Country in Troy High. Though the girls' team may have been weak in numbers, it was strong in desire and ability. Rebecca ran her best time of the year in Washington when she turned in a 14:15.

The boys' team was also unique. It was unique because it was one of the few gifted teams in the state to qualify for State competition. The small team of only five guys qualified from the Regional meet at Washington. The young Troy runners were a little overwhelmed by the idea that they were competing for a State Championship.

"I was happy just to go to State, and I enjoyed the atmosphere of the State meet," commented sophomore runner Shane Peden after the excitement.

When the boys' team arrived at the State meet, the major factor on all the runners' minds was the cold weather.

"I think all the Troy runners could have run better times if the weather would have been nice," explained Bryan Salisbury. Salisbury finished the State run in twenty-eighth place, while his fellow harrier Travis Jenkins finished as high as twenty-sixth place. "I am looking forward to going back to compete in the State meet again next year," said Jenkins. "In 1993 it was too cold, and I ran a poor time. Maybe next year it will be much warmer and Troy-can make a better showing for their school."

There is no doubt that the Troy Cross-Country team had a very successful season. Rebecca Trant, Travis Jenkins, Bryan Salisbury, and Charles Kruse were all Delaware Valley League selections.

The all-league selections were decided by the league race, which this year was held at Troy. The top finishers in that race were named first-team all-league, and the second-team members were the runners with the next best times.

Trojans learn from experience
'We felt confident we were going to win' - Coach Kelley

inexperience was the name of the game at the beginning of the year. This year was a rebuilding year for the Trojans, who returned only one starter. But despite the lack of experience the talent pool was just as full as ever.

The basketball season started out great for Troy when they defeated the Jackson Heights Cobras in the first round of the preseason tournament.

Coach Kelley had this to say about the game: "It was a great game, and our kids felt we could play with them. We just felt confident we were going to win it." Troy ended the tournament taking a second-place trophy after losing to Wathena in the championship game.

The regular season was a rocky period for the Trojans. One game Troy would come out looking as though they had played together for years and totally eat their opponents up; at other times the team's inexperience was a glaring weakness.

As the season began to wind down, the Trojans continued to improve, despite bitter losses to both Wathena and Highland.

Then came the Sub-State play-offs. Troy was given the seventh-place seed and therefore had to play the number two seed, Frankfort.

Frankfort was a heavy favorite in the opening-round game, but Troy kept the game close going into the fourth quarter. Then Brady Jasper caught fire. Brady shot Frankfort down with a 38-point scoring effort.

Next came the Hanover Wild cats. After closing an early deficit in the second quarter, Troy second ticked away, Troy proved to be too much for Hanover, and took a 67-64 victory into the Sub-State championship game against Jackson Heights.

in the end, the Cobra's inside game proved to be too much for the Trojans, and Troy had to settle for a Sub-State runner-up trophy.

Post-season honors were given to only two Trojans. Brady Jasper was elected first-team Delaware Valley League, first-team Doniphan County, and Honorable Mention in Class 2A state. Jeremy Masters was selected for second-team Doniphan County.

Small team gains experience
'Our numbers may not have been huge, but our heart and desire made up for our size' - Coach Koelsch

The Troy High School girls' basketball team was small but definitely tough this year. The team consisted of only 13 members, which made more playing time and experience.

The team was led by two seniors, Rebecca Trant and Leola Miller. They were coached by Mr. Frank Davis. He was assisted by Ms. Cheryl Koelsch for the second straight year.

The team began their season well, placing fifth at the DVL tournament at Valley Falls.

Perhaps the most exciting game of the season was against the Jackson Heights Cobras, who have long been a great rival of the Trojans. The girls played great and gave the Cobras a hard-fought game. Nikia Rosenberger exclaimed, "I'll never forget the Jackson Heights game as long as I live. Not so much because of the close score but because it was the first time our team pulled together and showed true heart, and talent. But more importantly it was the first time our town actually showed up and backed our girls' team 100%.

After Christmas break, the team fell into a slump which caused them to fall short of a winning season.

Being the smallest team at the Hiawatha tournament proved to be tough for the ladies. That left them in eighth place after going in as the third seed.

The girls overcame many injuries and difficult bus rides to have a successful and fun season. The majority of their games were on the road, usually traveling far away to play.

Leola Miller and Brook Luedke made first-team all-county as well as first-team all-league. Nikia Rosenberger made second-team all-county.

The ladies' season came to an end, with a heartbreaking loss to the Hanover Wildcats.

When Mr. Davis was asked about the season he stated, "I think we had a great season. We had a good bunch of girls who really worked hard. As a team we were playing our best after Christmas, but injuries, and low scoring games put us out of contention." x Leola Miller

MEMORABLE MOMENTS

Rebecca Trant stated: "The season had its ups and downs, but everybody on the team made it unforgettable. Leola and I would just like to thank the team for a great season, and wish them luck next year. WATCH OUT WHILE SHUFFLING; THE LINES ARE TRICKY!!!!"

Brook Luedke's most memorable moment involved everyone asking "Who brought the suckers?" for any of the road trips.

Troy teams impressive at meets

The 1994 Trojan track teams took on a new look during the season. In years past, Troy counted on a few good athletes to provide their points. But this year Troy track became a solid team effort. They counted on many athletes to chip in their share of points to allow Troy teams to do better overall at meets.

Troy claimed first place at the Delaware Valley League quad in Highland April 5. This win got the team off to a great start as they went on to get second place at both Doniphan County meets. Troy had to settle for second by a matter of only a few points.

"If we could have done better in only a few events, we would have gotten first," Coach Cash stated.

A strong aspect of the Troy teams was the attitude and spirit that the athletes had towards competing.

"It was a great year for the team, and I feel most of us had a lot of fun during the season too," sophomore Craig Scholz said.

The Regional meet was held May 20 at Onaga. This would give the athletes a chance for their hard work throughout the season to pay off.

It paid off well for several Trojan athletes. Leola Miller won first place in the 300m hurdles and fourth place in the 100m hurdles. She qualified for state in both events. During the season, Leola broke school records in both of the events in which she qualified for state. Lisa Winder qualified for state in the shot put by placing fourth at the meet. In order to qualify for state with a fourth-place finish, it had to be one of the top fourth places in all the regional meets. Travis Jenkins won the 800m run to compete at state. Shane Peden got third in the 400m race. Jason Dishon went to state in two events. At regionals, he placed third in both the long jump and the 200m. And Bryan Salisbury qualified in both the mile run and the two-mile run.

Leola Miller commented about the state track meet.

"It was great to know that I was competing among the top track athletes in the state."

Leola Miller set a school record of 48.26 in the 300m hurdles and in the 100m hurdles ran a 16.78. Renee Scholz set a record of 29' 5" in the triple jump.

Academics expand

"Where Everybody Knows Your Name" takes on its strongest and most important role in academics. Troy High School's small number of students allows for an excellent teacher-to-student ratio.

Troy High offered a variety of new courses during its 1993-1994 school year. These include ag. business, taught by Mr. Wapp; advanced programming, taught by Mr. Burger; oral communications and English composition, taught by Mrs. Rockey; and Senior Math B, taught by Miss Koelsch.

The Renaissance program together with the new classes offered provided an incentive for learning. It made some students take pride in their work.

The senior class took their classes to prepare them for their future careers. There was a lot of anxiety for those planning on going to college.

The administration turned activity period into an advisory period. Students could seek advice or help with their schoolwork. A lot of students used it as a study hall.

The administration offered new classes and carried out its second year of the Renaissance program. This caring by the administration allowed students to get a good education and better themselves. Overall, academics was a success and knowing everybody was a great contributor to this success.

Congratulations on awards

Congratulations was heard both during the senior banquet and the awards ceremony. This year there was a separate awards ceremony in honor of the seniors. When asked what he thought about the separate ceremonies, senior Nick Nourie said, "I thought it was nice that the seniors had their own awards banquet because it showed that the seniors are actually appreciated and it is a way to commemorate them separately for their work."

Brandi Horner received honorable mention in English 12 on the state level. Kathleen Robinson received honorable mention on the state level in Literature 12.

Rebecca Trant and Brian Waggoner both received the United States Army Medal for being outstanding athletic and academic students.

Leola Miller won a certificate of award from the Marine Corps for her excellence in academics and athletics.

New members inducted into Quill and Scroll were Carrie Smith, Lisa Winder, Nikia Rosenburger and Crystal Penny.

Mrs. Lynn Denton presented awards to Rebecca Trant and Carrie Smith with special recognition. Carrie Smith received the John Phillip Sousa Award.

Miss Cheryl Koelsch presented math and science awards to Ryan Akers and Joe Anderson. Joe was also presented with a math and science award from the KSU College of Engineering. Brandi Horner also received a merit award from Highland Community College for her excellence in math.

Ryan Akers was also presented the Tandy Award for his excellence in math, science, and computers by Miss Kathy Meyer, science instructor. Miss Kathy Meyer also recognized Joe Anderson as the Outstanding Academic Student in science.

Senior quiz bowl participants, Michael Ferguson, Craig Kostman, and Joe Anderson, were recognized by Mrs. Elizabeth Smith.

The KSHSAA Citizenship Award was presented to Carrie Smith and Craig Kostman.

There were a variety of letters given by Frank Davis and Kevin Kelley in sports. Ryan Akers was cited for being this years senior to have completed the recommended Regents' Curriculum.

Many students were awarded for their excellence on the Emporia state tests. Craig Kostman was presented the Troy Education Association scholarship by Mr. Kevin Kelley.

There were also many speech and drama awards presented to the members by Mrs Martha Rockey for their hard work and skill in each department. xBecky Drake

Exercise your mind and body

Volleyball, legislature, newspapers, etc., what do all these things have in common? They are all parts of the physical education and the social science departments. Physical education and social science are two important areas of study for high school students. There are many different classes, which fall under these two areas of study. The classes which fall under these categories are American history, world history, geography, sociology, American government, economics, current events, physical education, weights and conditioning, and health.

The American history, world history, geography, and sociology classes were taught by Mr. Lyle Rockey. When asked what he thought about American history class, Travis Culp, junior, replied, "I enjoy American history. It's an interesting way to learn about our country's past, and the way our forefathers worked to make it such a great country."

The American government, economics, and current events classes were all taught by Mr. Bruce Reynolds. "American government is a class which covers the way that the American government works. I always thought that I knew quite a bit about our government, but by taking this class, I've learned more than what I knew about it. I also like the great group conversations which we have in class," stated Tiffany Plummer.

When asked to tell a little bit about her economics class, Kathleen Robinson, replied, "It's a class which covers present-day occurrences. I've enjoyed it, because we don't use books. Basically we just use newspapers. I like the structure of the class because it helps to make it more interesting, and it makes it easier for me to learn in a less structured atmosphere."

The physical education, health, and weights and conditioning classes are taught by Mr. Frank Davis. When asked what weights class was about, Gary Stamper, replied, "In weights class we basically just lift weights and do different exercises. We take two tests each week. These tests are not anything to be worried about. They are just a way to make us try harder. Whoever gets the highest grade each week, gets certain class privileges."

"I like PE, because we get to participate in many different games, like volleyball, badminton, and basketball. I think that it's a lot of fun, and it also keeps us in shape," stated Kristina Drake, freshman.

A large part of what makes up the high school curriculum was the vocational classes. These classes encompassed a large variety of fields from agriculture and ag-related classes, keyboarding and art classes, all the way to home-education classes. These classes were designed to further the students' education beyond the three basic fields, reading, writing, and arithmetic.

A relatively new teacher of three years, Mr. Darrell Wapp had taught many new agricultural classes which included new technology, and machinery. Mr. Wapp began a green house, a fish farm, and a water-fed plant system. He also used such technology as a satellite hook-up which monitored current weather reports and stock market prices for grain and livestock, as well as other information at the touch of a key. Mr. Wapp commented, "We have broadened our horizons to meet the demands of more students; after all, it's not just for farm boys anymore."

Building furniture and designing it were just some of the projects that industrial arts classes, taught by Mr. Fred Folsche, worked on. Jim Hanlan, a four-year veteran of industrial arts, commented, "The first two years were hard because we had to do drawings, but it's just common sense after that."

Keyboarding, a class vital to the successful person, gave many students the skills important to any college-bound person. Learning the basic skills of keyboarding, typing resumes, and business letters were just some of the things that were taught. Mr. Dale Whiteside, a veteran of USD 429, commented, "I have had several past students say they didn't know where they would ever use keyboarding, but they where sure glad they took it then."

Teaching a good home environment, Mrs. Anna Goss instructed the home education classes. She had a variety of classes including family living; a tradition of this class was to sell chances on a doll house made by the class to raise money for a mock wedding. The mock wedding gave the class a feeling for the cost and preparations that would go into getting married.

Painting, drawing, and clay pottery were just some of the projects which students worked on during their art experience. Mrs. Nancy Clisbee taught students to find their talent and apply it to paper or other forms of art. The art students accomplished much in their year of art; many students had art works go on to competitions.

Vocational classes proved their worth as a very important part of the class schedule. Vocational classes give an idea of where all the seemingly trivial information from other classes may go in the future. xNickolas R. Nourie

This year has brought students together for a bright future. Some will go into careers that require advanced learning such as business law.

Math and business teachers prepare their students for the future with algebra and computers. Algebra is the main tool for improving a student's ability to solve problems. Computers are the machines for preparing the students for the "what's to come" in the next century.

Mr. David Burger's goal was to have students achieve a relational, rather than an instrumental, knowledge of mathematics. He did this by constantly emphasizing the why, while also teaching the how.

Ms. Cheryl Koelsch had a teaching style that was "student friendly." She worked with the students to make sure they understand. She offered extra lessons to the students who required them.

Mr. Dale Whiteside was one of the more experienced members of the Trojan staff who had perfected his style into something that worked. As at the end of every year, his typing class created a resume and he had the students interviewed by someone in the business field.

Many students who come to Troy High School are not sure what classes they will need for the future. The school requires that two math credits be taken and algebra is one of them. Mr. Burger taught pre-algebra and Algebra II. Ms. Koelsch had Algebra I, advanced math, and senior math. Typing at Troy was required to be taken by freshmen and sophomores, and a certain speed had to be achieved.

To get into advanced classes may require a prerequisite. The most advanced classes required entire high school careers to take. Ryan Akers was such a student; he had taken algebra, Algebra II, and advanced math to prepare for senior math. He commented, "At first I just did it, but now I realize it was very beneficial for my college preparations, and I stayed with my peers."

Ryan Geiler said, "I always knew I was college-bound, I hear college algebra is hard but not something I can't handle."

Crystal Penny commented, "Accounting and math will be very beneficial for college and my future after college."

Business and math classes help prepare students for life. The classes that involve hard-to-grasp concepts may not be easy, but at least there was a classmate there that could help out. In the small classroom environment the competition between friends is always a factor in grades. Face it; Troy is a place where everyone knows your name. "xby Rick Hankins

Travis Davies and Ben Milbourne work together to finish an advanced volume problem. In Algebra II many equations stem from trigonometry, or figuring the dimensions of a triangle with Pythagorean Theorem. This section of the class leads into Calculus. This particular exercise perfects the ability to work complex equations. Workers in land judging and topography need and execute these principles every day. Photo by Brandi Horner

Annie Jensen and Mr. Burger take dimensions, for a class project, from the Kayette calendar. Mr. Burger applies realistic situations to the class work. Many times he will ask a student to work out equations dealing with reality to make sure they are familiar with the topic they are studying. In Algebra I the class was assigned to find the volume of a board given the diagonal line and a horizontal line. Photo by Brandi Horner
They will wonder no more

Many mysteries of life were solved in the THS science lab for the students who took a science class. Four of the five science classes used the lab at least three times during the year, and the students received from it information that is permanently etched in their minds. The information included sight, smell, sound, and touch. Some of the labs went out of the lab; these included field trips to the 4-H pond to examine food chains and webs, and out to the school parking lot to collect mold spores to grow for experiments.

Though labs are the most enjoyable part of science they are not where most of the learning takes place. Like most classes, the main part of learning occurs in the classroom.

Though he had mostly vocational classes, Mr. Fred Folsche handled physics like second nature. Many physics toys often graced the class room and substituted as a lab.

The chemistry class was smaller than the usual class average. Sarah Fischer, one of the chemistry students this year, said, "The small class helped me learn a lot faster and I feel ready for college and I know a lot more."

The zoology class quadrupled in size from the previous year, changing the class entirely. Glen Gronniger commented, "We learned a lot more than we realized we did."

Physics was a class that occurred once every other year. The labs that occurred never left the classroom, and mainly involving "toys" that Mr. Folsche brought from home. Crystal Penny said that "it was a hard class and I never knew that it involved so many fields of science."

Both anatomy and biology classes experienced little change from the previous year. They have remained the same in interesting teaching methods, field trips, and other extra class activities.

Many science classes this year helped answer ancient questions of the universe, such as, why is the sky blue? The other colors in the color spectrum don't have the same effect on oxygen. If a tree falls in the forest and there is no one to hear it, does it make a noise? A collision between two objects creates a resounding sound wave that is sent out. To find out the simple facts that make the world turn increases your knowledge. Discovering the secrets of the world might not be a requirement of a small midwestern town, but it sure doesn't hurt.

Language arts classes are an important part of the Troy High School curriculum. Many classes including Spanish, English, and theater arts allow students to explore the art of languages more thoroughly. As you are reading this now, you are probably using some of the skills taught to you in one of the language arts classes.

Que pasa tu mama? or "what's up with your mother?" is just one of the unique phrases that Spanish students learned during their year immersed in a foreign language. The Spanish classes taught by Mrs. Tony Larson learned more than the language and how it is used; they also learned Spanish culture and much of its history. There were many projects which the class worked on through out the year, which included Spanish cooking, and designing a game.

History of dead poets, literature from long ago, and where to place that hyphen were just a few of the topics touched on by Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey's English classes. Throughout the course of the year many different class exercises were done; these class exercises allowed the students to further develop their English skills. Her classes enjoyed reading short stories and books.

Reading and deciphering science-fiction novels allowed many students of Mrs. Babetta Israel to explore the realm of short novels. An eight-page essay on various topics was the juniors' work for nine weeks of the semester; after researching their topics in detail they gave an informative speech.

Preparing for that big performance and giving an informative speech were just some of the things the theater arts classes did. Taught by Mrs Rockey, this class helped to develop the students' skills in the area of speech. Whether it was learning stage directions or learning who the great renaissance actors were, theater arts students got a feel for what it might be like to take part in a large stage production.

A new part of the curriculum for THS was college level courses taught through Highland Community College by Mrs. Rockey. These classes allowed students to earn both high-school and college-level credits. The courses offered were oral communications and English composition. Students who took part in these classes got a feeling for what is expected in college-level work, while getting two of the required classes of college out of the way. Some of the activities taking place in the dual credit courses were public speaking and essay writing.

As you can see, language classes are an important part of what makes a good high school education. Troy High School is a place where they will always know your name, and hopefully be able to write it, due to the various languages classes.

Students make $$$

Troy, being a small town, meant everybody tended to know everybody else, unless you were new to the area. Not to worry though, you would hear about nearly everyone through Troy's own patented massive grapevine soon; news traveled fast.

Troy had quite a few small businesses. These businesses provided the necessities for the people of the town and even provided jobs and study for some of the students at THS.

Craig Kostman, senior, worked at John's Market for over two years. "My job at John's has provided me with enough funds to make it through school with a little to spare," said Craig.

Melissa Roland, senior, was employed at Troy's convenience store, the Fast Lane. "It's a neat experience. You get to meet people that you didn't even realize live in Troy," commented Melissa.

Nick Nourie, senior, had work study at the Kansas Chief newspaper. "It's a good way to get experience in different fields of work, to see if it is something you might want to do in the future," explained Nick.

The publications students contacted a number of businesses to see if they wanted to advertise in the yearbook. These businesses and senior tributes helped Troy High have more pages of ads than usual.

From start to finish, Seth, you have been an eager student. Keep up the good work!
Mom and Dad

Charleen,
As we once said, you were a God-sent child. The miles that you have crossed to come to be our special girl, make us very pleased and proud of you.
Love,
Mom and Dad

Kevin,
Take your time...don't live too fast. Be proud of who you are, believe in yourself, and follow your dreams. Keep your head when people all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you. I'm very proud of you and all your accomplishments. I wish you only the best in life, God's blessing, much happiness, and success, today, tomorrow, and all through your life. Remember, I'm always here for you and don't forget, son, there is someone up above.
I love you,
Mom

Little Brandi,
From the first time I saw you I knew you were special. Believe, and nothing will be impossible for you. God bless you. Stay sweet, Sunshine!
Love,
Mom

Nick,
We are very proud of you and all you have accomplished. Good luck in your future.
Love,
Mom and Dad
Keep up the good work, Becky! We're proud of you!
Love,
Mom, Dad, Jeff, and Kris

Ryan,
Always put your best foot forward. We are very proud of your accomplishments and the decisions that you have made for your future.
Love,
Mom, Steve, and Shane

Melissa,
We are all very proud of you and love you very much. Keep up the great work!
Love ya,
Mom, Dad, Billy, Shelly, Dalton, Marisa, and Tim

Jim,
We always want only the very best for you. The future is now yours for what you make of it. We wish you happiness and success in the future.
Love,
Mom and Dad

Becki,
You are a very special daughter and sister. We love you very much. The Lord has blessed you with many gifts. Use them wisely in future endeavors. Philippians 1:2-6, 9-11
Love,
Mom, Shelli, and Travis

Craig,
You are such a good son and brother and a joy to have around. Your willingness to work hard and your determination to finish what you start will help you to go far in your occupation. Your sense of humor will stand in good stead through the rough spots in life. Always trust in God and hold fast to your beliefs. We are so proud of you and we love you!
Love,
Dad, Mom, and Corey
"But seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matthew 6:33

Carrie,

Our family was not complete until you were born. You are truly that covenant child we knew we were to have. You are a beautiful young woman that we enjoy being with. You have been a joy to watch grow up...my "angel baby." May you always seek God's will in your life and have His protection and blessings.

Love for all eternity,
Mom, Dad, Christel and Stephanie

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor than silver and gold." Proverbs 22:1
Kathleen,
With your attitude and driving ability, look out world! I'm still proud of you!
Love,
Dad

Tiffany,
Congratulations, you've made it, baby! You've made it this far; now you can be anything you want, so go for it! Shoot for the stars.
Love,
Mom

Lisa,
We have enjoyed watching you become a fine young lady through the years. Thank you for the many proud moments you have given us. With your character and perseverance we know you will find success and happiness as you travel along the roadway of life.
Love,
Dad, Mom, and Jason

Michael,
Keep that determination and whatever goals you set for yourself will be achieved. You are very special to us. Good luck and God bless you.
Love,
Mom and Dad

My favorite Celestial Freeze-Frame

SURE
You've lived up to your Heavenly name!
BUT,
You'll always be... Little Lester Lane!

Gotta love y'all!
Mom, Terry, Carly, and Buck

Tonya,
From the time you were born, we've known you were a head strong individual who would accomplish what she wanted to, nothing more, nothing less. We are very proud of the fact that you hung in there and finished high school. Our wish for you now is that you hang on to your dreams. Let God be your strength and believe in yourself.
Congratulations,
Dad, Mom, Tracey, and Kelby Glen--P.S. I love you, Mommy!
Brandi and Leola,
It is so hard to think of something to say to my two closest friends. You guys are special to me, and always will be. We have shared many unforgettable memories over the years. Thanks for always being there and caring. You both will always be very close to my heart. Let's always stay the best of friends; graduation doesn't mean goodbye!! I love you both!!!
Friends forever,
Lisa

Sarah,
Seems like yesterday that you looked like this. Now you are all ready to graduate. Where have all the years gone? We are all very proud of you! Good luck in the future with the other "Cats."
Love,
Dad, Mom, Josh, and Chris

Brandi and Lisa,
Well, girls, it's been a blast!! We have developed a friendship so strong that it will be in my heart forever. I want to thank both of you for always being there for me. Thanks for all the good times that will never be forgotten. Please don't ever forget me and all our good times. I love you guys!! And remember, this will always be our town!
Leola

Charleen,
I am very proud of your goals you have set for yourself. I wish you the best in the future. I love you!
Love,
Mynee (Mom)

Kathleen,
From the red triangle in the driveway to the red Fierro, you have been a challenge, a joy, and a beautiful daughter whom I admire, love, and enjoy sharing life with.
Love,
Mom

Becki,
We have been friends for twelve years now. Though we have had some rough spots, we have managed to remain friends. I love you like a sis and will always be here for you. There were days we played Barbies and times we took our baby dolls out for a stroll. I'll never forget when we went on vacation together and got stuck in cow manure. You're a great friend and very special to me.
Love always,
Charleen

Dear Lisa and Leola,
We have had a lot of good times together. I'll never forget the trips to Mad Mary's, "The Star Spangled Banner" at Krug Park, and the many other times that we've gone out. You guys have always been there for me when I needed someone to talk to. Thanks for all the memories. It won't be the same next year without you. I love you guys! KEEP IN TOUCH!!
Love ya lots,
Brandi

Jeremy,
We are glad you made your home with us. You have done well. Always remember John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."
With love,
George and Charlena Jorganson
Mark and Loretta Jorgenson
Carol and Erick Jorgenson

Brandi,
You were a precious little girl, and are a beautiful young lady. Don't worry about tomorrow, it will have enough worries of its own.
Love,
Grandma McDonell

Becky,
Well, you finally made it. I'm so lucky to be your sister. You're the best anyone could ever have. You've got a lot of potential. Don't ever let anyone tell you different. Thanks for all the times.
Love ya always,
Kristina

Carrie and Charleen,
When times were bad, you were always there, when times I cried, you held my hand. I could never thank you enough for everything and do enough as you have done for me. I know I have gone through some pretty tough times this year and I know my dad would be glad I had friends like you to stand beside me. May all our memories never be forgotten and all our love never stop growing!
Your friend and sister,
Rebecca Sue

Carrie and Mush,
We have always been friends and I hope we will keep in touch after graduation.
Carrie: I will never forget all the times we went to my family's farm together in our younger days or how we used to play in your dollhouse and in your camper. Thanks for the help in algebra!
Mush: We have had a lot of laughs together including who sent who those flowers back in junior high. They were lovely flowers, weren't they?
You both are great friends and I want to wish you the best of luck!
Love ya,
Charleen

Carrie and Mush,

Your friend and sister,
Rebecca Sue

Toby,
You have grown into a very fine young man. You have never let much in your life become an obstacle to you; we doubt anything ever will. We are very proud of you. May life be as rewarding for you as you have been, and always will be, to us.
Love always,
Mom, Dad, and Jeremy

Dear Sarah,
Congratulations! What more can be said? you have done a terrific job and we are so very proud of you. As we sit writing this, we remember so many things you have done during the years. We wish, again, you were our little girl; so, again, we could experience all the pleasures and joys you so generously furnished us. We know this should not be. You have done all this for us. Now, it is time for you to think of yourself and become the person you dream of becoming. Go to it and become the best! With God's help, it can be. "If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours." We give our gift of love to you.
Love and prayers,
Poppa and Grandma

Carrie and Mush,
Seniors look to future

Toby Prawi—To go to college at Cloud County.

Now it's time to bid farewell to yet another year at Troy High School. It is time to say good-bye to the seniors for good and good-bye until fall for the rest of the students.

This year was filled with many memories and memorable moments. Here are just a few of them.

Brandi Horner, senior, said, "I will never forget going to prom in a U-Haul with my three dates, Seth, Shane, and Nick."

Ryan Geiler, junior, said, "My favorite moment of the year was when Travis Davies ran out on the basketball court with his warm-ups on backwards."

Nikia Rosenberger, junior, said, "I'll never forget playing crash dummies with Leola Miller through volleyball season. One game we collided and I ended up with a mild concussion. Another game she tried to eat the bleachers. Even in practice we were always running into each other, causing each other bodily harm."

Friendships at Troy High School were something that will never be lost or forgotten. They were the vital part of high school. This concludes a special year filled with forever-remembered memories and friends.
