School starts with a mission

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to find out what the Troy Trojans did this year. You must find the goods and the bads, the highs and the lows, and what's new with the school. This book has been compiled by Mrs. Martha Rockey's publication class to help you in your mission.

Welcome to Troy High School, code name THS. The school mascot is the Trojan. There are 141 students, 17 teachers, and other staff and administrators here at THS.

There is always somebody doing something, like playing sports, joining clubs, decorating, or frantically trying to get a homework assignment done.

The Trojan spirit is everywhere around THS. When one group does well, the whole school is there to support them, but if a group falls a little short, there is always someone helping them get backup.

Life in general is a mission. We are constantly having things thrown at us that we have to overcome and to achieve.

There were many changes to THS over the summer. A new principal was hired and the school board voted to have a physics course. The physics room got thousands of dollars in new lab equipment for students. But one of the key changes was for the seniors. They no longer got out much earlier than the rest of the school.

This book is a representation of all that Troy High had to offer and what the students and administration accomplished throughout the 1996-97 school year.

You have been assigned your mission. You know your goals and objectives. Now you must go and learn and remember what went on at THS in the school year 1996-97.

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to learn all that you can about the classes and projects that students were involved in at THS. You must find what they liked and didn't like about classes and how the teachers felt about the classes they taught. This section contains vital information about academics and academic achievements of the THS students for your mission.

As far as classes go, anything needed to make it into college could be found here at THS. Two new classes on the schedule were physics, and statistics and trigonometry, which also included some calculus towards the end of the year. With new classes on the schedule came new teachers on the payroll. Physics was taught by Mr. Kenneth Luedke, and statistics and trigonometry, along with many other math classes, was taught by Mrs. Cathy Wilson.

Even though THS added the new classes, it still had the same ones as before: the sciences, mathematics, history, social sciences, English, and others.

Teachers put in extra time and effort for students. These people were the ones responsible for providing the education and knowledge for students to graduate.

Senior Kristina Drake commented, “I have way too much homework! I’m taking harder classes this year so it is much harder to get everything done.”

Whatever the case may be, academics are the most important part of any school.
Language arts classes were an integral and interesting part of the Troy High School curriculum. These classes included English 9, 10, 11, and 12, Spanish, Advanced Spanish, and Publications. There were also two college dual-credit classes: English Composition 101 and English Composition 102.

"I'm trying to encourage students toward more project-type work and beyond the textbook. For example, in mythology, [the students] reported on different cultures and illustrated some rituals from those cultures," Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey stated about her classes.

The publications class had its usual share of computer and printer problems. The students were able to use four computers, and by the second semester, had two printers as well.

The Spanish and Advanced Spanish classes were taught by Mrs. Toni Larson. The students in her classes participated in many activities such as Spanish vocabulary games. The students learned much about Spanish-speaking countries also.

"Learning a language is about more than vocabulary words and grammar. Culture, geography, history, and literature are all important components. Understanding each area is learning a language," explained Mrs. Larson.

The Advanced Spanish class also made their own Spanish games which included spin-offs like Spanopoly and originals like El Sporko de Taco Bell (The Spork from Taco Bell).

"The game was created by Sam, Larry, and Jared and used actual sporks from Taco Bell," said Nathan Geiger. "Nathan [Reynold]'s and my game involved the people of our Spanish class. It was the opposite of Monopoly; you try to run out of money first."

The language teachers had good reviews of the year. Mrs. Babetta Israel said, "This year has been an enjoyable one! The State Report Card and Internet were two firsts for our memory banks. Across grades and throughout the day, students seemed more focused and expressed personal expectations for future careers. For teachers, this can only mean we are in the business of improving on success."

Starting before the birth of our nation and never ending, describes the range of information being taught in the Troy High School Social Studies Department.

Taking students back in time as far as they possibly could go was Mr. Lyle Rockey, teacher of the world history class.

"I thought that world history was very interesting and I learned a lot about the other cultures," declared Tito Martinez, senior.

Moving on in time the American history classes studied about our culture as Americans starting at the birth of our nation. The class was educated by lectures, videos, and activity reports. The students were allowed to work in groups to enhance their knowledge as a team. This was a required class for juniors. Mr. Rockey taught this class with the help of Mr. Pat Casey, student teacher, during the first semester.

"I think American history is all right. I like the fact that we work in groups, and have quizzes over sections to prepare for our final test," explained Brad Johnson, junior.

Once the history of America had been studied, Mr. Bruce Reynolds picked up with American government. This was a required class for seniors. This fall being an election year the students completed election notebooks summarizing the developments of the candidates. The class participated in the Electronic Model Congress, which gave the student experience in how our government operates on a day-to-day basis.

"It's important for people to have some knowledge of understanding how the government works. I feel that I know more about government and politics now that I've studied it," explained Clinton McNemee, senior.

The geography class gave students a great opportunity to learn about countries. Two courses were instructed by Mr. Rockey and Mr. Reynolds. They designed many activities to give the students a better understanding of the countries in the world. One of the activities in Mr. Rockey's class was that of making an outline of countries by using string on the floor.

"Geography is a good class to take, but it is not always easy. Sometimes the stuff that we are learning about is interesting," commented Abra Eylar, freshman.

The current events class kept up-to-date by reading the St. Joseph News-Press and watching CNN Headline News, and working on summarizing the major events each quarter. This class was taught by Mr. Reynolds.

"I like current events a lot because you know what's going on in the world, and there is very little homework," said Casey Rush, sophomore.

Business, math, and computers were an integral part of education at Troy High. Each class taught math and computer skills to prepare students for the real world. A world full of business opportunities.

There was a new addition to the math scene, Mrs. Cathy Wilson. She taught the Algebra I, Algebra II, and stats and trigonometry classes which also included calculus towards the end of the year.

Along with a new teacher came new ideas and expectations for the classes. "For extra credit, the students [composed] songs with their math rules as lyrics," Mrs. Wilson explained.

"Students may also draw a picture, put it on a coordinate graph, and make a graphing project out of it," she continued.

Teachers returning to Troy High were Miss Kathy Kasselman and Mr. Steve Thompson. Miss Kasselman taught desktop publishing, computer applications, and accounting.

Classes that Mr. Thompson taught were computer programming, geometry, and college algebra. He also taught computer applications and Algebra I.

The classes did many interesting things along with their regular, daily work. The accounting class visited the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City, Missouri. Desktop publishing created businesses, business logos, letterheads, and brochures.

"The [Federal Reserve] Bank was really interesting, but we had a bad tour guide," revealed Sarah Geiger. "So, we didn’t get to see very much.”

Miss Kasselman said, “The trip to the Federal Reserve Bank was an educational experience providing the students with an insight [into] the banking process.”

"Computer programming [made] a match-making/date program for the school," related Mr. Thompson. The computer applications class built a webpage. His geometry class collected snowflakes and launched gummy bears into space.

“Most all of my classes [did] ‘launch gummy bears into space’ to collect data on how far they travel when setting the gummy bear launcher at various angles,” said Mr. Thompson.

Experiments equal results in science department

Experimenting and getting results would describe the activities that took place in the science department.

A physics lab was added with a new teacher to go with it. Mr. Kenneth Luedke, the new physics teacher, was no stranger to this field of science. Mr. Luedke, a retired teacher in the state of Missouri, returned to his home town of Troy. Mr Luedke said, "The hands-on approach to teaching the fundamental principles of applied physics for a technique in mechanical, fluid, electrical, and thermal systems seemed to be well accepted by the students. Their class was interesting and a pleasure to teach." The physics class did many activities including math labs, lab experiments, student exercises, and lectures.

Mr. Kevin McNorton taught anatomy.

"I think that anatomy teaches a lot about the structure of the body and the dissection of the pigs gives us a visual representation of how the body works. The thing I liked most about anatomy was when we watched 'Scientific American Frontiers,'" commented Jenny Ford, junior.

Chemistry was another class taught by Mr. McNorton. In this class they completed many learning activities, and conducted many experiments.

"Chemistry is a tough class because of all the math and formulas involved in it," explained Neal Eyler, junior.

Biology, also taught by Mr. McNorton, was an introductory class given to most freshmen. It not only gave the freshmen an introduction to high school science, but also taught them the fundamentals of science which they can build from.

"It's kind of cool learning about DNA and genes and how they work," stated Jared Pickerell, freshman.

Another activity that was also conducted was that of a math class and a chemistry lab. The math class was taught by Mrs. Cathy Wilson. The class worked on complicated formulas in class and then checked their work in a chemistry lab that Mr. McNorton helped with.

Cooking, cleaning, and sewing describe the activities of the home economics department.

The home economics classes were taught by Mrs. Anna Goss, a THS teacher for 48 years. There were four classes: Home Ec I, Home Ec II, Independent Living, and Family Living.

The Home Ec I class was primarily set up as an introductory class. Students were introduced to the world of clothing. They learn how to make, buy, take care of, and alter clothing.

"I enjoyed making clothes in home ec. Mrs. Goss was a great help to me," commented Marietta Wood.

The Home Ec II class learned the ins and outs of cooking. The class participated in meal planning, meal preparation, selection, and care of kitchen equipment. The class took a field trip to the Stage Stop Restaurant to introduce different forms of food available.

"My most enjoyable moment was when we went to the Stage Stop Restaurant in St. Joe. The cooking experience I received was also very enjoyable," said junior Kirk Janvold.

Independent Living was another introductory course going over many aspects of survival when living alone. The class was taught how to do laundry, use a sewing machine, plan a meal including nutritional facts, and mend and repair clothing.

"My year in the home ec class was good. The thing I liked about it most was when we made clothes and cooked. Mrs. Goss was a big help," said junior Jenny Ford.

"Family living has been a lot of fun this year. We have done many exciting things, although I did not care for taking 'Baby Think It Over' home," said senior Jill Wiedmer.

Family living was a class offered to the seniors. In this class the students learned how to plan for a career and marriage, and manage a home and family. This class was the first to use "Baby Think It Over." The class was taught how much work is involved in having a baby by taking care of this "baby" on the weekends. The baby was programmed to cry at certain times for feeding and diaper change, and cataloged how well the student took care of it. Another activity that the students took part in was the mock wedding. They learned first hand how much work went into planning their very own wedding.

"I think that this year has gone by pretty well, I had a lot of fun. The only time that I really didn't have any fun was when we took home 'Baby Think It Over,'" commented senior Kristy Clary.

The home ec classes were involved in many activities that further educated the students in ways that could help them when they are on their own.

Physical education, industrial arts, and agricultural education all have one thing in common. They are all out-of-classroom courses. This means that while other students are hard at work computing math problems and studying the mysteries of life at their desks, the students in these three classes are out in the shops, out on the gym floor, or in the weightroom.

Physical education was taught by Mr. Don Cash. The classes consisted of Freshman P.E., Recreational P.E., and Weights and Conditioning. It was his first year teaching P.E. since 1979.

"It's a real change from teaching social studies. There are parts of teaching physical education that I really enjoy and parts that I don't. It'll take some time for me to get used to planning for P.E. classes since I haven't done it for eighteen years," related Mr. Cash.

The students in these classes played many sports such as basketball and volleyball. Much of class time was spent in the weight room toning the muscles of the class members. Freshman P.E. also consisted of a health class which the class participated in on a regular basis.

Industrial arts was taught by a second-year teacher, Mr. Benny Rice.

"This being my second year I've found that it is much easier to teach the classes for the simple reasons, I know the students and administration and my responsibilities as a teacher," Mr. Rice explained.

In Industrial Arts 1, the students did perspective drawings for the first half of the year. After that, they worked on projects in the shop room. For Industrial Arts 2, the students worked on architectural drawings at first, then switched to projects. Advanced industrial arts members worked on projects from the beginning of the school year.

The classes also received some new woodworking equipment.

"All woodworking classes were glad to see our four new belt sanders arrive," Mr. Rice said.

Agricultural education was taught by Mr. Darrell Wapp. The students in this class could study for contests if they were in FFA, or they could work on projects in the shop. Some projects included building a trailer and putting wheels on a cattle chute.

Mr. Wapp stated, "This year has been the most productive year I have experienced in my six years of teaching, in terms of student achievement and positive student behavior."

Mission: People

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to learn about the people of Troy High School, find out what they do and how they act. The data that has been collected by our staff has been printed in the next few pages. The information that follows may be useful.

People. Young and old(er), big and small. There are many types of people at THS and they are all important. The administration tries to run the faculty and the faculty tries to control the students. As far as the students go, the freshmen fear getting picked on, the sophomores are glad they are not getting picked on (as much), the juniors get ready to run the school next year, and the seniors try to enjoy their last year.

The students at THS are always doing something. They participate in sports, drama, and many other extracurricular activities along with trying to complete their school work. When they do get some spare time, they usually hang out with friends or catch-up on sleep.

"At home I usually just sit and watch TV or listen to CD's. At school I play computer games if I can or I just talk with friends if I'm not busy," stated sophomore Cory Ruhnke.

"If I'm not busy doing my homework on the weekends, I like to go over to Shane Akers' house and play pool with my friends," said sophomore Laura Ford.

Everyone knows everybody else here at THS which makes your mission very easy.

With the start of a new year come new faces. There were two new teachers added to the THS staff along with a new assistant coach and principal.

Mrs. Cathy Wilson replaced Ms. Cheryl Koelsch as the algebra and advanced math teacher.

Mr. Martin Stessman filled the vacancy of principal left by Beth Reust. Mr. Stessman moved to Troy from Caney, Kansas, where he was a vice-principal for two years.

"I have really enjoyed my first year. We have a wonderful staff who really care about young people and the best students in the state of Kansas," stated Mr. Stessman.

The other teacher added was Mr. Kenneth Luedke, who taught the 1st and 2nd hour physics classes. Mr. Luedke was also part-time teacher at the Highland Community College and Missouri Western State College.

"THS is an enjoyable place to work and the students I have are a pleasure to work with," stated Mr. Luedke.

Mr. Pat Casey also rejoined the THS staff. Mr. Casey was the boys' basketball coach for the 1995-1996 season. He student taught at Troy High school under Mr. Lyle Rockey Jr. and became the girls' assistant basketball coach for the 1996-1997 season.

"The enthusiastic participation by the students in sports, plays, and clubs has made this year at THS an enjoyable experience to be involved. I will carry the memories of my time at THS with me forever," commented Mr. Casey.

Senior's last year comes and goes

As the year started, Julie Boeh exclaimed, "I was excited because I get out of here in a year!"

Being one of the smallest classes, many seniors had different attitudes from the rest of the seniors at the beginning of the year. "WOW! I am a senior, I rule this school!" Others had the idea that it was their last year and they would be leaving.

Other seniors had a different point of view. Sam Reusstated, "It just seemed like one more year of school."

This being an election year, the seniors had an Election Notebook for one of their required classes, American government. They had to get newspaper articles, brochures, videotapes, etc. about the election and put them in notebook form. Then the seniors had to write a summary of each article and a reason for the author's writing the article.

Many seniors also had the opportunity to vote in their first election.

"I really didn't know most of the people on the ballot, so I just guessed," stated Kelly Dishon.

The other required class that the seniors had was English. Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey and Mrs. Babetta Israel taught the seniors. They had sections on essays, poetry, and drama, and book reports to do.

The student council sponsored many class competitions between the four classes. Some of the competitions included food and toy drives, GPA, Halloween dress-up contest, Santa Claus hat-wearing contest, and Parent/Teacher Conferences contest. The seniors managed to win some of the competitions like the food drive and the Parent/Teacher conferences.

"It makes me feel really good inside to know we have a bunch of winners in our class. The food drives were for a good cause and I am glad we could help the needy," said Heath Campbell.

Spare time? Yeah, right! Trying to juggle homework, acting, sports, and every other activity under the sun, and still have spare time was nearly impossible for the students of Troy High School.

"I work and work and work," commented Kelly Dishon, senior.

Working was one of the many spare time activities students had throughout the year. Many students worked to pay for their cars, buy clothes, and earn little extra spending money to go out on the weekends.

Cruising and going to parties were some of the other spare time activities students enjoyed doing on the weekends. Weekends were a time to bond with friends and just hang out.

"Taryn, Jessica, Katherine, Jamie, and I cruise on the weekends and usually find a party," commented Errica Stanton, junior.

Some spent their time doing what they love and enjoy. Sports. Many student could be found in the gym, at the local tennis courts, or outside their homes just hanging out.

"I really don't have much spare time because I work on my athletics, because I am a full time athlete," laughed Dallas Keller, junior.

Spare time in high school meant a few minutes here and there, or it could be the few minutes a student spent in his or her car frantically getting to the next destination on time.

"I like to spend my spare time sitting in my room, listening to my stereo or cruising around town listening to the radio. Sometimes doing nothing can relax me after a long week of school," commented Andy Franken, junior.

Needless to say, school kept students busy and spare time was rare. Homework was something that students had to have time to fit in. Between school work and extracurricular activities students struggled to find just a few extra minutes to relax and have fun.

Not all students spent their spare time going out places, some spent time quality time at home.

Freshman Angie Bramlage commented, "I like to get on the Internet at my house in my spare time. I am hooked on it! I also spend time going to piano lessons and I also practice for two or three hours a week."

All the different varieties of people and their different views of how to spend their spare time were what made every day unique at Troy High School.

People: Juniors
‘Three years down and one to go’ was a familiar phrase among many of the juniors.

After two years of being underclassmen and waiting at the end of the line the juniors anxiously awaited being near the front, but to their disappointment the privilege of seniority was pulled out from under them.

When it came time for enrollment, juniors were given the freedom of choosing five of their seven classes. Their two required classes were American history and English. The other five classes were their choice.

The junior-senior prom was one of the responsibilities taken on by the juniors. Being a class of diverse opinions and preferences the junior class spent many meetings trying to come to a conclusion. After forming committees to decide a third color, theme, and all the little details that go along with prom, they finally came up with an idea they could all (well, almost all) agree on.

“I thought the meetings were a mess and everybody should have shut up so we could get something accomplished,” laughed Shanna Wright.

The concession stand was another responsibility the juniors had. Having such a big class helped to limit the number of games one person had to work. Along with having Mr. Reynolds as class sponsor they were also fortunate to have Gracie Christensen as the concession stand sponsor.

“I liked Gracie because she was a lot of fun. Working the concession stand was somewhat fun, and it was a good way to make money,” commented Jenny Ford.

Despite being such a diverse class, the juniors proved to be able to work together and overcome all the obstacles that were thrown at them such as prom and concession stand. They made the most of their year and now they anxiously await being seniors next year. This class is and always will be one of a kind.

For some people, being an upperclassman made their junior year more fun and a little more interesting.

“My junior year was filled with a lot of fun times in football and in wrestling. The extra privileges gained as a junior made (school) a lot more fun than the last two years of high school have been,” commented Tim Uplinger.

Overall, the junior class had a very interesting and fun year.

People: Sophomores
The sophomores had the challenge of gaining more respect and responsibilities.

The sophomores were required to take an English class and a type of science class. Although a math class and social science class were not required, they were recommended to take to get out of the way.

"Actually my sophomore year was a lot easier than my freshman year. I know all of the teachers and students this year and can ask for help when I need it," stated Nathan Reynolds.

One of the most important decisions for the sophomores was which class ring to buy. With so many styles and options it proved to be a long and difficult process. The class rings were purchased from Jostens.

"It was a hard decision picking out which ring I wanted. There were many choices. I had wanted a long time to get the ring and I'm glad I finally did," stated Amy King.

The sophomore class sponsor was Miss Kathy Kasselman who taught computers and accounting.

The sophomores participated in their annual fund-raiser of selling Red Wheel merchandise. They were raising money for their senior trip.

"I think that the fundraiser was a big success. I liked it, and it helped the class as well as the other people who purchased the merchandise," stated Linda Feek.

"The sophomores did an excellent job of selling Red Wheel items. Twenty-seven out thirty of sophomores sold the required amount of items. They are a fun class to work with. The year has been very active with participating in the Homecoming parade and selling Redwheel items," commented Miss Kasselman.

People: Freshmen
Moving up in the world, the freshmen made one of the most nerve-racking changes of their teen-age life, going to high school.

Being a freshmen means taking new classes and being in a different building, but the most exciting and fun parts are the new activities and special privileges gained by being in high school.

"I was afraid I would get lost and not find my class," said Regan Miner.

Keeping busy, the freshmen realized they had very little extra time at home. The freshmen kept active in clubs such as Kayettes and Drama Club, these two clubs which did the most activities. Juggling sports, clubs, and homework, the freshmen realized how much different high school is than middle school.

"I like being involved in all my activities and I think high school is a blast, but sometimes I am just too busy to do the things I want to do or to just sit down and relax," commented Lynsay Gibson.

The freshman class's main fundraiser was Tom Wat. Tom Wat, being a tradition, was a major money-maker for prom and senior trip even though carrying that big box around could be a hassle.

"Tom Wat wasn't one my favorite thing to do starting off high school, but that's okay," laughed Regina Adams.

Overall most of the freshmen enjoyed their first year of high. The freshmen learned what it was like to always be busy and never have enough time to do what they wanted.

The freshman class was the largest class in the high school this year. They had more advantage to winning class competitions because of their number.

Having more freedom and being involved in many activities was a big plus for many of the freshmen. They realized high school isn't as bad as they thought it could be.

"I think high school is a lot of fun and there is so much to do and we have a lot more freedom than we did in junior high. It wasn't as bad as I thought it would be. I had fun," commented Erin Murphy.

Mission: Excel

Trojans always give it everything

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to find out how athletic the Troy Trojans are. You must find out the highs and the lows. Find out the teams that did well and the teams that wish they had one more chance. This school is very competitive. Very rarely will you find an individual or a team not giving the sport everything they can to be the best that they can.

Ryan Grable, a sophomore who competed in many sports, said, “The past year was very exciting in all of the sports I participated in. We accomplished a lot and had a lot of fun.”

There were six sports that the Trojan athletes could compete in. Football, volleyball, cross-country, girls’ and boys’ basketball, wrestling, and track and field all took place at various times throughout the year. There was also cheerleading and dance squad, which was new this year.

Marietta Wood said, “I had a lot of fun in volleyball and cheerleading. I think we worked well as a team in volleyball, and we all got along with each other.”

As far as teams go, the Trojan boys were tough in cross country, tri-DVL champions in football, and undefeated DVL champions in basketball, a very impressive accomplishment for any school. The girls had a few stumbling blocks, but they were always fighting and always in the game in whatever sport they were competing in.

Cole Jarrett said, “Football and basketball were fun and exciting because both teams turned out to be pretty successful. The highlight of my basketball season (junior varsity) was when we came back to beat Valley Falls after being behind at half-time.”

Football season ends on good note

The Trojan football season was full of many close games. Troy had a great mixture of speed and strength. This mixture is one of the best that Troy has seen in a very long time. Going into the season Troy had very high hopes.

These high hopes only made the season more of a disappointment that it ended as early as it did.

Tyler Whetstine replied, "It's over. I'm sure everyone is disappointed about the way it ended, and they should be. But you just have to move on and get ready for a better season next year."

There were many ups and downs. The season began as the team launched Jackson Heights, McLouth, and Horton. Then came a tough loss to Riley County. a team that did well in the 3A State Playoffs.

"The best moment of the season was beating Jackson Heights. The worst moment had to be the disappointing loss to JCN," commented Andy Franken.

The Trojans won the next three games, including a 52-point game against Valley Falls but then came the loss to JCN. That JCN game proved to be the disappointing loss of the year as the Trojans lost all hope of the playoffs.

Corey Kostman stated, "Although we had a good record, the team didn't always play up to its potential. I'm looking forward to improving next year."

Troy went out in style as they beat Highland. They finished with a 7-2 record and a share of the DVL Championship.

"It was a fun but disappointing season. I believe we were at our best early in the season and had a few let-downs late in the season," recollected Heath Whetstine.

Troy had ten players on the All-League team. Andy Franken and Clinton McNeemee were the lone first-teamers. The second-teamers consisted of Heath Whetstine, Dallas Keller, Tyler Whetstine, Michael Grable, Corey Kostman, and Tito Martinez. Jeremy Prawl and Larry Huff received Honorable Mention.

Coach Don Cash philosophized, "Success will come to those who wait, as long as they work while they wait."

The energy and excitement of the week all came back to us as Homecoming 1996 activities were underway, the week of September 30.

Miss Lindsey Rosenberger was crowned Homecoming Queen during the ceremonies preceding the game. Mr. Heath Whetstine was given the honor of Head Escort.

The court was Kelly Dishon, Renee Scholz, Kelli Simmons, and Jill Wiedmer. The escorts were Larry Huff, Tito Martinez, Clinton McNemee, and Sam Reust.

“I was really surprised when my name was announced Homecoming Queen. I didn’t expect to hear my name called, but, when it was, I was honored,” stated Lindsey Rosenberger.

Heath Whetstine commented, “After kissing Lindsey, I had stars in my eyes.”

The flower girls were Lacey Smith and Kerya Wykert. The crown bearers were Jacob Smith and Kyle Smith.

Adam Clary, Neal Eykar, and Brad Johnson spent a morning preparing the field for Homecoming. Photo by Kelli Simmons.

The festivities started out with classes decorating the business windows on Main Street. Spirit Week kicked off with Monday as P.J. Day; Tuesday, Twin or Dress Up Day; Wednesday, Opposite Sex or Backwards Day; Thursday, Retro or Hippie Day; and Friday, Blue-and-White Day.

The bonfire took place Thursday night at the 4-H grounds. The annual parade down Main Street was Friday afternoon. Every class entered a float to boost spirit.

Mr. Legs candidates were Heath Campbell, Larry Huff, Tito Martinez, Clinton McNemee, Sam Reust, and Heath Whetstine. Clinton McNemee received the honor of being chosen Mr. Legs 1996. He received a medal for his “spectacular legs.”

The Trojans defeated the Pleasant Ridge Rams, 28-0. This put everyone in the mood to dance the night away.

The theme for the dance was “It’s All Coming Back To Me Now” by Celine Dion. Matt’s Mobile Music out of Saint Joseph, Missouri provided the music.

Volleyball season below expectations

The Lady Trojan Volleyball Team started the season with a new coaching staff and new expectations. The season proved to have many stumbling blocks which the Lady Trojans had to overcome.

The regular season highlights were the wins over Wathena in two games and McLouth in three in the same night. At the DVL Tournament, the Lady Trojans played the best they had ever played all season. Although they didn't break pool play, the team "gelled" together. The season ended for the Lady Trojans with a loss to Chase County High School in the Sub-State Tournament at Rossville High School.

"The whole Sub-State experience was okay. The game really went badly for us, but we managed to have a good time on the bus. The best time had to have been singing 'Cumbersome.'" commented junior Katherine Robinson.

The varsity team ended the season with a record of 8-17.

The volleyball team had 31 ladies turn out for the season. The freshmen had the most participating with ten. The sophomores had nine participating, followed closely by the juniors with eight. The seniors had four players participating.

Sarah Geiger, junior, stated, "Honestly, I was very disappointed [with the overall season]. Troy High School Volleyball had begun to establish an excellent team and to see it be lost so quickly in one season was really sad. I only hope that some changes will be made next year."

Two players were named to the DVL All-League Team. Renee Scholz, senior, was named to the first team as a middle hitter/blocker. She received a medal for her accomplishments in the season. Nicole Kinsey, junior, was named to the honorable mention team as a setter.

"I was really honored when I found out I was selected. It was a real surprise. I never thought I'd even be considered since I only played in the front row," commented senior Renee Scholz on receiving first team All-League.
Cross Country has strong year

The 1996 Trojan Harriers didn’t really know what to expect going into the season. Curtis Anderson stepped in as coach after Tom Bond left. Darrell Wapp became assistant coach. Although the team had qualified for state the year before, it lost four of its best runners to graduation. The team consisted of twelve boys and nine girls. Of these 21 runners, ten were freshmen, which made Troy a little inexperienced.

Melissa Albers, freshman, reflected on the season: “I had a lot of fun during the season. Coach Anderson helped us to become better every day during practice. I think we should have even a stronger team next season.”

The boys’ and girls’ teams competed strongly all year, but were marred with injuries late in the season. The girls’ best team finish was second at the Centralia meet and second at the Troy meet, while the boys’ best team finish was fourth also at the Troy meet. The girls also did well at regionals placing fourth.

Heath Campbell, senior, said, “The final statistics don’t really show the effort and heart that everyone put into the season.”

Megan Boeh made All-League and All-County. Melissa Albers, Brett Speaks, and Ryan Grable all were named to the All-County team.

Megan Boeh said, “I think that the team did a good job this season. We had a really strong team at the beginning of the season, but several injuries really slowed us down later on. We worked hard all season to be the best that we could be.”

Sarah Boeh, junior, commented, “The moment I remember best from the season was when everyone was covered with mud from head to toe at the McLouth meet.”

The season ended abruptly as no one moved on past regionals. This was the first time no one from Troy had qualified for state in three years.

T-Club stays active all year

T-Club was responsible for the alumni basketball tournament, which brought the alumni back together for two days of fun and competition. The club had over 55 members. Many of them worked at the alumni tournament doing various things such as concessions, collecting money at the front door, keeping score, and running the clock.

Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey, a co-sponsor, felt that "the year was successful but we had activities planned for the spring late-night and this pep rally never took place. Considering the conflict with the play, there was a good turnout to help with alumni games."

President Sarah Geiger said, "The activities of the T-Club seem to go unnoticed, but we do many things for the athletic department. We provide all the plaques in the halls, plaques for coaches and senior plaques, and coordinate the alumni tournament. Next year we need to focus on increasing finances to provide for the extra number of plaques that will be needed."

For the first time in history T-Club had only one banquet. They had the spring banquet honoring all students of any sport and also providing special recognition to the students who lettered. The coaches of basketball, football, volleyball, track, cross-country, wrestling, and the head cheerleader, summed up the entire year. Each gave a short speech, then handed out their awards. Those who lettered for the first time received a T, and those who had already lettered received a bar to add to the T. Many students and their families attended this award ceremony and potluck dinner.

Katie Culp felt that, "students may work harder or do more school-oriented activities to gain admittance."

Coach Kevin Kelley said, "The T-Club is a great organization. Our big money-maker is the alumni tournament. We had 99% participation from those who signed up. We need to meet a couple of times more during the year so we can get more input on what the T-Club would like to do during the year."

Dance team kicks into action

Cheerleaders are an essential part of high school sports. They are here to pep athletes up before the games, generate school spirit, and get the crowd involved at games and pep rallies. Part of their duties are to cheer, chant, jump, kick and build stunts. This year, though, the cheerleaders took on another duty. The squad danced their way into the 1996-97 school year as the all-new dance team, as well as cheer squad.

"I really like cheering and dancing. I think it was a good idea to have two separate squads. It seems like it was more work since we had two different teams, opposed to just one, but I really think it is worth it because we were able to do more," stated Marrietta Wood.

In the past, there was only one squad. The cheerleaders were able to perform routines as the cheerleaders. This year separate try-outs were held for the dance team and the cheerleading squad. Eight girls were chosen for each squad. As luck would have it, the same eight girls that were chosen for the cheerleading squad were also chosen to be the dance team.

Betsy Schultz said, "It was different to have a separate dance team because in practice we spent a lot more time dancing and working on routines than we did in the past. It was a neat experience and I am glad we did something new."

Another addition to the teams was new uniforms. The squads got a new type of cheerleading uniform in addition to warm-up outfits and they got new sequined uniforms for the dance team.

"All in all," commented Stephanie Cook, "the changes that were made to the squad were very positive additions."

In only its second year, wrestling became an important sport at Troy High School. Once again Troy consolidated with Wathena to form a strong, exciting team. This year’s team had nine members, compared to last year’s team of six. Second-year wrestlers were Jared Cash, Tim Uplinger, and Nathan Reynolds.

Jared Cash said, “This year in wrestling I think our team was much improved from last year’s. We had more people, both from Troy and Wathena, and many talented, new wrestlers.”

Newcomers to the team were Jesse Cash, Roger Orcutt, Casey Rush, Tommy Jenkins, Jeremy Prawl, and Matt McKittrick.

Jeremy Prawl said, “At first it was hard to learn all the moves, but by the end of the season I had mastered most of them. I was surprised to see all the wrestlers out from Troy and Wathena.”

The Troy-Wathena team posted a 7-6 dual record on the season. A dual meet is one in which two teams wrestle against each other as opposed to a tournament. The League Quad meet was the strongest for the Trojan wrestlers as Uplinger, Jenkins, Reynolds, and McKittrick all placed first in their respective weight classes. Prawl and Jesse Cash finished second, while Orcutt and Jared Cash finished third.

Tim Uplinger, co-captain, said, “I feel team-wise we improved dramatically from our first tournament to league and regionals. The most memorable moment would have to be on the last day when the upperclassmen ‘hog-tied’ all of the freshmen and piled them up.”

Jesse Cash remembered, “The upperclassmen wouldn’t let us go. Being hog-tied was the worst move I was put in all year.”

The season came to an end for the Troy-Wathena team after no one advanced past the semifinals at the regional meet in Oskaloosa.

Coach Benny Rice said, “This entire season was fun and exciting. Our dual record improved from 2-9 last season to a 7-6 record this season. It is very rewarding to see my first-year wrestlers develop so much in one season.”
Girls’ basketball successful in the end

Problems. This is what the 1996-97 Lady Trojan Basketball Team experienced early on in the season. However, after coming off the Hiawatha Invitational Tournament with a record of 3-9, the ladies stepped it up. They finished the season over the .500 mark with a record of 11-10.

The ladies had high expectations and goals going into the season. With the losses early on in the season, the team had to make some changes to get back on the right track.

Troy got all the glitches figured out and ended up winning eight straight games coming off the disappointing showing in the tournament. These wins put the Trojans in good standings for both the DVL standings and placing in sub-state.

The season finished a little early for the Lady Trojans as the Blue Valley-Randolph Rams defeated them in the first round of sub-state play, 36-52.

“Our season started February 4 with Elwood and ended March 3 with Blue Valley-Randolph. If success is measured by wins versus losses, in the end, we were great, winning eight out of our last nine games. Remember Pleasant Ridge: A team that won’t be beat can’t be beat,” commented Coach Larry “Gator” Rivers on the overall season.

The girls’ basketball team had two players receive all-league recognition. Alissa Durbin made first team, and Sarah Geiger made honorable mention. Durbin and Geiger also received recognition in the county as well. Durbin was named to the first team, and Geiger was named to the second team.

“I am very pleased that I made first team all-league. It is quite an accomplishment,” commented Alissa Durbin.

Exciting season ends abruptly

Although the season ended unexpectedly for the Trojan boys' basketball team, the season was successful. The varsity's final record was 21-2, as the junior varsity finished 7-9.

The Trojans were handed their first loss in the second round of the pre-season Delaware Valley League Tournament by the Horton Chargers. Troy won its next five games before entering the Raider Classic Tournament. In the second round of the tournament, Troy beat Marysville, which was ranked #2 in Class 4A at the time. Troy then beat a tough Nemaha Valley team on its home floor in the championship game.

Dallas Keller said, "Winning the Raider Classic was definitely a high point of the season. It proved that we could not only play with the bigger schools but beat them."

Troy won the next nine games as they went through the league undefeated. This marked the first time a Troy team had gone through the league undefeated since 1984. The Trojans finished the regular season with a bang as they scored 100 points against Pleasant Ridge.

The Trojans went into the sub-state tournament with a 19-1 record which gave them the #1 ranking (#2 in class 2A). The Trojans breezed through the first two rounds as they beat the Blue Valley Rams, then the JCN Chargers. Troy’s season came to a crashing halt after losing to the Jackson Heights Cobras in the sub-state championship.

Corey Kostman said, “It was very disappointing. I thought we would make it to Manhattan this year.”

Several Trojan players received post-season awards. Four Trojan players received All-League First Team honors. They were Heath Whetstine, Tyler Whetstine, Dallas Keller, and Andy Franken. Keller and Heath Whetstine were both All-County First-Team selections, and Tyler Whetstine and Franken made the Second Team. The Whetstine brothers were both All-State Honorable Mention selections.

Senior Heath Whetstine said, “Even though the season didn’t end the way we wanted it to, we accomplished a lot together.”

A week of preparation became a night of excitement and dreams come true as the 1997 Queen of Courts King and Queen were crowned, February 14, in front of a crowd that came to see the crowning as well as the boys’ and girls’ basketball teams.

The girls had already won their game and the boys were doing much of the same as they were leading against the Oskaloosa Bears by a fair margin of 14 points. The six seniors, Heath Campbell, Sam Reust, Larry Huff, Kelli Simmons, Regina Huff, and Alissa Durbin, were anxiously waiting to walk onto the basketball court and see who would win the title of King and Queen of Troy High School.

And the King and Queen of Troy High School are Sam Reust and Kelli Simmons. The crown bearers were Colin Greaser and Keiffer Whetstine. The flower girls were Chelsea Dively and Bree Martinez.

King Sam Reust said, “I didn’t expect to win so I was very surprised. It’s a good thing Kelli knew what to do because I didn’t have a clue. It was an honor to be chosen. I am the KING!”

During the week, students dressed for special days chosen by the cheerleaders. Monday was set for Military Day and Tuesday was Opposite Day. Wednesday was used for people who like their figures for Beach Day. Baggy Clothes and Wacky Hat Day was the subject for Thursday. Friday was a traditional day for the Trojans as the day was Blue-and-White-Day.

Queen Kelli Simmons said, “I was so excited and nervous at the same time. Sam kept asking me what to do next so I was glad to know that he was just as nervous as I was. I will always remember this Valentine’s Day.”

The student council hosted the Queen of Courts Dance in the old gymnasium following the conclusion of the varsity boys’ basketball game. The D.J. for the dance was Doug Keller. The gym was decorated for Valentine’s Day in festive red, white, and pink colors.

Track keyed by inexperience

The Trojan Track team was made up of many young and talented athletes but due to inexperience the team didn't perform up to its expectations.

The season started with a trip to Wathena to compete in the Panther Relays. This was a good meet to start at because it has great competition.

Adam Clary, junior, said, "This was quite a disappointment for me in the discus. The only bright spot in my season was when the weightman's relay team went undefeated for the second straight season."

As a team, the boys never lost a triangular and the girls competed well in every triangular. In all the big meets, both did their best but because of the numbers and lack of experience, the teams didn't finish high in the standings.

Larry Huff, senior, said, "We sort of had a rough start but I think we all improved a lot towards the end of the year."

Nicole Kinsey, Sarah Boeh, and Melissa Campbell were the lone members of the team to break records. Nicole broke her own record of 111' in the javelin with a throw of 115 1/2'. Sarah broke Renee Scholz's triple jump record of 30' 1 1/2" by jumping 31' 3 1/2". Melissa broke the 110m high hurdles record which was 16.78 held by Leola Miller, running a time of 16.49.

Junior Jaylon Ashburn said, "I didn't like the shot put this year but I did like running the 400m run. It was also a lot of fun and gave me something to do."

The regional meet was at Onaga. Three tracksters qualified for State. Megan Boeh placed third in the 3200m run. Clinton McNeemee placed fourth in the discus, and Melissa Campbell placed fourth in the 110m high hurdles.

"This track season has been a great success for me and for the team as a whole. The team's strongest point was our throwers and our undefeated weightman's relay team. The many freshmen added to the size of the team. It has been fun," said junior Melissa Campbell.

At State, all of the competitors competed well. Megan Boeh finished 13th in the 3200m run. Clinton McNeemee finished 11th in the discus. Melissa Campbell finished 8th in the 110m high hurdles.

Mission: Perform

Fine Arts provide entertainment

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to find out about the actors, artists, musicians, and performers at THS. You need to find out what they did, what they performed, or how they competed. Each of these groups gave performances or exhibitions to show off the hard work and dedication that the students and directors of THS put into their activity.

Mrs. Nancy Clisbee’s art classes were busy this year working with pottery and paints, and taking trips to museums or going to art competitions. “I enjoy art competitions because the people there have very interesting ways of expressing themselves, both psychotic and peaceful,” said Aaron Clary.

Mr. Darren Jenkins pulled double duty as both band and chorus director. Both groups gave two concerts this year and also went to competitions. Students could also work on solos and try to perfect them in hopes of making it to the State competition.

Regina Huff stated, “Last year when I went to State, I was very excited and I was just honored to be going. I was ecstatic when I found out I received a 1 rating. This year, when I got the chance to go back to State, I was a bit more prepared, but I was still just as happy when I got a 1.”

Mrs. Martha-Jean Rockey’s drama department went to many speech meets as well as putting on two plays. They did something a bit different with the spring play. The group did a musical, something not done at THS in many years.

Creativity gains rewards

Art at Troy High was not just a class where you sat and drew. The students took field trips and participated in many activities and contests.

The field trips provided the students the chance to see different styles of art work and artists. In February, the students toured the Nelson-Adkins Museum of Art in Kansas City when they saw Rembrandt’s painting of St. Peter, which is worth $165 million. They also visited the Thomas Hart Benton Home.

Throughout the year the students participated in Highland Art Day and Delaware Valley League contests. At Highland, the art history team placed first out of 43 schools. The team consisted of captain Adam Clary, Melissa Campbell, Jamie Christenson, and Aaron Clary. This was the first time in school history that an art history team finished first in this contest.

“Our art history team worked very hard on getting first place. Out of 43 school, 1A-6A, getting first was a great achievement for us,” stated Adam Clary.

Also placing at Highland was the sidewalk chalk team. The team had to use colored chalk and recreate a famous artwork. The team recreated one of Picasso’s guitarist drawings. They placed third overall. Members of this team were captain Brad Johnson, Lindsey Rosenberger, Neal Eylar, and Kristin Kinsey.

At Highland, the students entered various pieces of their own art work. The art was judged and given awards if it were among the elite.

“There were so many good pieces of art work, I was surprised that I received any recognition!” exclaimed Clinton McNemee.

The students also participated in the Design-An-Ad sponsored by The St. Joseph News-Press. Kyle McConnaughey won first place, receiving a $100 savings bond. Winning second place was Melissa Campbell, receiving a $75 savings bond. The students drew advertisements for ACE Hardware. Their drawings were published in The St. Joseph News Press during Newspapers in Education Week.

“The year was frustrating, but it all paid off because I have won several awards,” stated Melissa Campbell.

The internet was also something new to the art students, when they had the opportunity to place their artwork on Kansas Art On-line. They gained this opportunity through Emporia State University.

Other activities such as using the pottery wheel and making ceramics, sketches and collages, provided opportunities for all the students. Many of the students helped decorate the Homecoming and Queen of Courts backdrops.

“We had an excellent year in art due to large classes of creative, hard-working students,” praised art teacher Nancy Clisbee.

Music students stay active

Music students participated in a variety of events including pep band, marching band, concerts, contest, and community performances.

The band and chorus were under the direction of Mr. Darren Jenkins for the third year.

Band students started off with marching band and pep band for the football season. Throughout the football season the band performed many halftime shows. They also played during the games, which not only involved students in band but also other students out of the school along with many of the faculty members.

Pep band continued into basketball season.

The band also performed at the Christmas concert and the spring concert. In late February the band and chorus traveled to Highland Community College where they competed in the DVL music festival; both groups received III's.

In April, the band and chorus were once again on the road, this time headed for Marysville, Kansas, where they competed in the state music festival. Both groups received a III rating.

In late April, Larry Huff, Regina Huff, Ginger Winder and Jared Pickerell traveled to Concordia, to perform their instrumental solos. Larry, Regina and Ginger all received I ratings and Jared Pickerell received a II rating.

Freshman Ginger Winder said, "I was really glad to get the opportunity to go to state music, and it wasn't as hard to memorize my music as I thought it would be. Overall, I'd say it was a good experience, and it was also fun."

The chorus ended the year with singing at the spring concert and at the Baccalaureate service. The band ended their year by playing at the spring concert and at graduation.

Director Darren Jenkins commented, "I feel that we've had another very successful year. Working with the students here at Troy for the past three years has been fun, challenging, and rewarding. I hope that they continue to be successful in everything they do."

Speech members keep busy

Competitions kept the Troy Forensics Team busy throughout the last semester of school. Speech ranges from individual solos to duet acting to the one-act play. The team had 10 entries qualify for state competition along with the one-act play. The entries included orations, extemporaneous speaking, informative, prose, humorous and serious solos, Improvised Duet Acting (I.D.A.), and poetry. This was twenty of the twenty-five members of the team. To qualify, a student must receive a I rating at league or regionals.

The speech team attended many meets, never placing below third place overall. They reigned as DVL champions and received 19 gold medals at state.

"Even though we had to get up early in the mornings, we had a successful season and had a lot of fun," stated James Huss, junior.

The One-Act play worked very hard in preparing for their performance at DVL. The One-Act cast received a I rating which qualified them for state where they received a I rating. The cast also took their performance to area extension groups. The play entitled "Us and Them" was a huge success.

Each year the Troy team hosts the Troy Invitational speech meet, but due to uncooperative weather, it was cancelled.

Members of the speech team that qualified for state competition as well as the One Act play cast participated at the Fine Arts Night at Troy High School. The Fine Arts Night is an opportunity for the members of the team along with music soloists and art competitors to show off their talent to the community.

The team competed at regional competition at Turner High School. Most members had already qualified for state, so there were few that attended regionals.

The team traveled to Johnson County Community College to participate in the state contest. The students who received I ratings were Angie Bramlage with an Oration, Allisha Benitz also with an Oration, Sandi Nelson with a Poetry piece, the one-act play, Christine Whetstine with an Informative Speech, Andy Bramlage also with an Informative Speech, and Regina Huff with a Prose Reading. The students who received a II were Angie Bramlage with H.S.A., Jared Cash and Aaron Clary with an I.D.A. performance, B.J. Christenson and Ross Turpin with an I.D.A. performance, and also Laura Ford and Betsy Schultz with an I.D.A. performance.

"This year was my first year helping with the one-act as a director. The practices were nerve-racking; however, it was worth it. Watching them perform and receive a I at state was the payoff," commented Chris Hoverson, student director.

Drama students get involved

Viewing plays and doing their own were many of the activities that the drama club was involved in. One of the many highlights was the trip to Crown Center. The group watched Return to the Forbidden Planet, a play that employs hit tunes from the 50’s and 60’s with a twist of Shakespeare.

The Renaissance Festival was a blast from the past. There were many different shows and activities to enjoy. The group went down early one Saturday morning and stayed the whole day. Medieval carnival-type games were available to play and the jail was open to throw someone in the cell. There were traveling actors that sang and acted within the park and moved from one area to another. The food of the Renaissance was also unique and consisted of huge corn on the cob and monstrous turkey legs that you could feed on forever.

Troy hosted the league speech meet. The drama club made it a success. Many members prepared lunch and did odd jobs such as running and working in the tab room. They did anything they could to make sure the day went smoothly.

The group also took two trips to Martin City Melodrama. The first trip was to see the play, The Invisible Manor No Guts No Glory, and the second trip was to see Ritz Cracker Suite. Both plays were dinner theaters with buffets which featured fried chicken, roast beef, and salad.

Christine Whetstine said, “I enjoyed the trip to the Martin City Melodrama. It was different than most of the plays I have seen.”

Many of the members were very active with the two plays the Troy Drama Club put on. The plays were The Man Who Came to Dinner, and Tied to the Tracks. The Man Who Came to Dinner was the fall play which many of the athletes juggled with their sports. Both plays were comedies and needed many students to participate in acting and other needed tasks, stage crew, student directors, and make-up artists to name a few.

Tied to the Tracks was the dinner theater. The members were busy bringing food and preparing for the potato bar.

“Even though our practices were long and hard, I feel that each one of our productions were a success. Our plays will always be success ful when we have a crew that will push us to be the best and do the best that we can,” commented Aaron Clary.

Tied to the Tracks involved a damsel in distress, Sarah Geiger, and a love-sick sheriff, Larry Huff. In both plays there were many chores to be done, anything from the making of the backdrop, picking out the costumes, keeping everyone in order, sound equipment, cue people, and putting make-up on the actors and actresses. Many valuable people did these chores and were just as important as the actors, and the plays could not have gone on without them.

Amy King, one of the many make-up artists, said, “I thought it was fun to be involved with the play without actually getting on stage. But maybe in the years to come I’ll be in the play.”

I enjoyed the play Return to the Forbidden Planet. I especially enjoyed sneaking down and sitting in the front row.

Disaster strikes in fall play

Act I, Scene I began on an early December morning. The curtain rose to reveal a family anxious to greet Sheridan Whiteside, played by Jared Cash. The Man Who Came to Dinner was chosen for the all-school play. It was presented to the middle school, Thursday, November 21, to the high school Friday afternoon, and to the public Friday evening.

The play was about Mr. Sheridan Whiteside, a famous radio personality, who had come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stanley for dinner. Disaster struck; Sheridan broke his leg, and it started many complications in the home of the Stanleys.

"The play was really interesting; every character had something major going on. I had a lot of fun because I was the butler and I was right in the middle of everything," commented Brett Speaks.

One main event occurred when Maggie Cutler, Kelly Dishon, fell in love with the newspaper reporter Bert Jefferson, Larry Huff. Sheridan brought in Lorraine Sheldon, Sarah Geiger, who tried to break up a perfect love affair. Maggie also had friends in high places, though. She brought in Beverly Carlton, Renee Scholz, to run Lorraine out of town. When that failed, Banjo, played by Aaron Clary, stepped in to end the whole fiasco.

"I was part of the unexpected twist at the end of the play. That was really exciting and I liked the coffin scene," exclaimed Aaron Clary.

While Sheridan was in the Stanley home, he couldn't help but interfere in their lives also. He gave some bad advice to the Stanley children. Richard, played by Ross Turpin, ran away to become a photographer and June, played by Gillian Guier, ran off and tried to elope, which added to the chaos.

"I think everyone had a lot of fun with this play because it was really funny and everyone was able to get into their parts. I know I had a lot of fun playing Miss Preen, the under-appreciated nurse," said Regina Huff.

Dakota gets Tied to the Tracks

“Oh, no! It’s the Night Express,” exclaimed Dakota Melody, Sarah Geiger, after being Tied to the Tracks.

Tied to the Tracks, a musical melodrama by Tim Kelly, was the spring play production by the drama department. This was the first year in many that the drama department performed a true musical.

Suzie Oyerly stated, “I like doing musicals. They are a lot of fun. The singing really adds to my enjoyment since it is one of my favorite pastimes! I hope that we can continue to do these kinds of plays in the future.”

The play centered around Dakota Melody, Sarah Geiger, who runs a hotel in Dakota Territory. When a Medicine Show comes to town, she is sought after by the villainous Silias Scavenger, Jared Cash, who seeks to lure her away from her true love, Sheriff Billy Bold, Larry Huff. He, in turn, is torn between Melody and the bandit queen, Renee Scholz, his love from second grade. Junior, Sarah Boeh accompanied for the play.

Sarah Geiger stated, “This was the most exciting play at THS that I had the chance to be a part of. Despite all the long practices, the outstanding performance of everyone on production night was worth it!”

The play followed a dinner that was served by members of the drama department. The farm boys and girls and the Harvey girls helped serve the dinner; a potato bar, along with a salad, and dessert bar were served. This year the play had record turnouts. The dinner was coordinated by James Huss.

“This play was a lot of fun to do and to watch. I think I enjoyed the performances as much as the rest of the audience, and our songs were a success,” commented Martha-Jean Rockey, director.

Activities are various, abundant

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to find out about the activities of the students at THS. Find out about the clubs they joined and the events they attended and set up. You must also find out about the major activities that took place, such as prom, senior trip, and graduation. This should not be too hard to accomplish since word travels fast here at THS.

There are many clubs to join. There are ones anyone can join like drama club, FFA, pep club, and Kayettes (if you are female), and then there are the ones you must work for or be elected to like GCTL, National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and T-Club. With this many clubs, it isn't hard to find something to join or belong to if you are interested.

Allisha Benitz, Kayette member, said, “I love being in Kayettes because I like the shopping trips and eating all the candy bars we sell as a fund raiser.”

Dances were major activities. Student council, sponsored by Mrs. Cathy Wilson, went all out to decorate the old gym with items like trash-bag Santas, flying reindeer, and giant balloon hearts.

One of the biggest events in any school is the junior/senior prom. This huge extravaganza was left for the junior class to plan, prepare, and set up.

Chris Hover said, “Prom is expensive because everything keeps adding up. Getting ready for prom has been very time consuming, but in the end it was all worth it.”

Many of the clubs in Troy High School were busy as ever. The student council had a new sponsor, Mrs Cathy Wilson. The student council hosted many of the usual events, such as the Thanksgiving dinner that they served to the middle school and high school students. They also sponsored the Homecoming and Queen of Courts dances and food and toy drives during the holiday seasons. They donated the food and the toys that they collected to NEK-CAP, which then distributed them to needy children and families.

Student council president Sam Reust said, "The dances went super, the fundraisers were swell, and all the other fundraisers seemed just Jim Dandy. We had tons of fun this year! Overall the year was a great success."

Stuco also took part in the drug-free rally and fly-in.

"I feel that the student council worked extremely hard this year and they should be proud of their accomplishments. I'm expecting an even better year next year," commented Cathy Wilson, sponsor.

Another active group was Kayettes. Throughout the year Kayettes were busy with many of their usual activities such as cleaning the trophy case, going shopping at Independence Mall, cleaning up after a football game, and having secret sisters and the senior farewell. They also donated money and plants to the area rest homes.

Sponsor Babetta Israel said, "Under the strong leadership of Noelle Oyler the Kayettes bonded for a meaningful year of fun and service. As sponsor, my greatest joy was watching the positive interchanges within the group."

"I have been in Kayettes since I was a freshman. I have had a lot of fun doing things with the group. I feel going shopping and having secret sisters was the most fun because I got to know the underclass girls," said Nancy Mitchell.

Troy FFA members very competitive

FFA makes a positive difference in the lives of students all across America by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success through agricultural education. That was a sure thing for the members of the Troy FFA Chapter.

The year began with the chapter officers attending the State Conference for Chapter Leaders in Great Bend in July. The officers learned ways of bringing a chapter together to make it successful in finances and responsibility.

The chapter also held a kick-off activity the first week of school. The members enjoyed playing volleyball and eating cookies and other desserts.

"The kick-off was a great success. I felt it was a good opportunity for the members to get together and have fun," remarked Nancy Mitchell.

The chapter also participated in many contests within the Northeast District. The chapter got fifth place overall in the district sweepstakes. Points were given to the chapter for participation and placings in contests. Those qualifying for state competition were Ag Sales, consisting of juniors Sarah Boeh, Andrew Bramlage, and Sarah Geiger; Crops, consisting of seniors Nancy Mitchell, Noelle Oyler, and Jill Wiedmer; Entomology, consisting of juniors Corey Kostman, Jeremy Prawl, and Kyle Thomas; and Meats, consisting of juniors Jaylon Ashburn, Sarah Boeh, and Sarah Geiger. The Ag Sales team placed 8th overall with Sarah Boeh winning 2nd place in the job interview. The Crop team placed 4th overall with high individual Nancy Mitchell placing 8th overall. The entomology team placed 10th overall in tough competition. Kyle Thomas placed 6th overall.

Also qualifying for state were Sarah Geiger and Angie Bramlage. Each won her division at the district public speaking level. Sarah was in the senior division and Angie participated in the creed-recitation contest.

These contests were aimed to provide skills that would be involved in a student’s future life. Such skills are public speaking, public relations, writing skills, people skills, and other job skills.

"Ag Sales is a wonderful experience that would help me in years to come. State Ag Sales was very exciting. I hope we qualify again next year!" exclaimed Andrew Bramlage.

In November, the students also attended the national convention in Kansas City, Missouri. All the events took place in Municipal Auditorium and Bartle Hall. Earlier in the year the decision was made to move the convention to Louisville, Kentucky in 1999. At the convention, there were numerous activities for the students to attend. At the career show, the students gathered information on agricultural colleges and other chapters around the nation. Other activities included going to meetings and visiting the FFA shopping mall.

Students achieve awards

National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and the awards ceremony showed scholastic achievements over the course of the year.

National Honor Society is a group of students that are chosen by their grade point averages and the activities that they are involved in. The National Honor Society sponsored a blood drive at the Catholic Church in Troy. The group also sold cookies and sponsored the food drive for Thanksgiving.

National Honor Society inducted 15 new members at the induction ceremony, which was the first of May. At the induction ceremony, the new officers were also installed into their offices.

Chris Hoverson said, “The National Honor Society is a great organization. We sponsor the blood drive as well as volunteer time towards preparing for the academic and sports awards banquets held throughout the year. The new members are a good bunch of hard working students. They will be able to take part in many activities. I am looking forward to holding the office of vice-president for next year and taking on the role set forth by the National Honor Society.”

The school held an academic awards banquet, instead of having awards given on the last day of school.

The awards presented to the students were in art, speech and drama, journalism, band and chorus, and academics. Mr. Benny Rice, industrial arts teacher, presented students with awards with the most outstanding woodworking projects. Jermie Reno and Ben Anderson tied for the honor in Industrial Arts I. Pat Drake received the award for the bar he built and Cory Clary received it for his work on a coffee table.

Also at the awards banquet, the new Quill and Scroll members were inducted. They were Chris Hoverson, Nicole Kinsey, Jared Cash and Dallas Keller.

Prom ‘takes our breath away’

Our breath was taken away April 26 at the junior/senior prom. Students planned for weeks ahead of time, buying dresses, renting tuxes and finding a date to enjoy this big extravaganza.

The juniors prepared for this evening bright and early the morning of the 26th. They started at 8 a.m. and they were finished about 10 a.m. The juniors had a good turn out with plenty of students and parents. Balloons, confetti, wine glasses, garters, and napkins were all set to the theme, “Take My Breath Away.”

About 142 THS students and other guests came for this memorable evening, which started with pictures at the court house, then moved to the Moila for more pictures and for the main event. The dinner was served at 7:30 p.m. It consisted of chicken breast tarragon, turkey, green beans, corn, fruit salad, twice-baked potatoes, and chocolate mousse for dessert.

Dallas Keller, junior class president, thanked everyone for coming and wanted the prom goers to kick back and have a good time. Senior class president, Larry Huff, thanked the juniors for the great job that they had done on the decorations. After the dinner, Principal Donald Harter spoke of fond memories and-not-so fond memories. Then the students danced the night away.

The prom was officially over at 12 p.m., but students were allowed to leave at 11:30 p.m. Plenty of people wanted to leave early and start the festivities of the after-prom. The after-prom started at 12:45 and ended at 3:30 a.m. and no students were able to leave before it was over unless they called their parents. The St. Joseph YMCA hosted the bash. Students played basketball, racquetball, and wallleyball, watched movies, swam, and ate plenty of food.

Harley Feek enjoyed after-prom. He commented, “It was fun until I got hit in the head by Meredith while playing racquetball. Besides that, I was happy about [winning] my new radio.”

The highlight of the evening was the drawing for the prizes. This started at 3 a.m. Everyone at after-prom received at least one gift. The gifts ranged from gift certificates for Applebee’s to colored televisions. Both Meredith Mason and Kelly Dishon won portable cd players. Larry Huff and Jared Cash won coolers. Harley Feek won a cd stereo system; Jill Wiedmer and Kirk Jamvold, colored televisions; and Kristina Heil, a microwave. There were also big money prizes too; savings bond to Tim Uplinger, $50; Clinton McNemee, $30; Neil Eylar and Michael Grable, $100. For these students going to after-prom certainly paid off!

Seniors experience St. Louis

Saint Louis, Missouri, was the destination for the seniors May 17. After a chartered bus trip by Heartland, they stayed at the Hampton Inn which is just up from Union Station. The seniors returned home Tuesday, May 20.

“The overall trip was interesting; however, the hotel could have been better. We visited many attractions and everyone had a lot of fun. I will remember the trip forever,” said Doug Handley.

The seniors took part in many activities. As a class, they went up into the St. Louis Arch, visited the St. Louis Zoo and Science Museum and Union Station, went to Six Flags, and shopped at the Galleria.

When the seniors were not taking part in the group activities, they were free to do what they wanted. Some of the seniors enjoyed doing activities they had never done before which included eating at the only floating McDonald's in the world, riding in horse-drawn carriages through the downtown area, riding the Metro Link tram, or just walking along the riverfront.

“Mrs. Smith and Tom took part of us to Laclede's Landing Saturday night, and we were able to listen to live bands playing the bars even though we didn't go in,” said Nancy Mitchell.

The senior sponsor was Elizabeth Smith. Principal Martin Stessman, Kathy Kasselman, and Tom Smith also attended the trip as additional sponsors.

“We had a great trip! The kids were super! The toothpaste caper will be remembered for a long time to come,” commented Elizabeth Smith.

The whole trip was a success and packed full of fun for many students. Memories were made and events never to be forgotten. The weather cooperated and made for an enjoyable trip.

“Senior trip was a lot of fun! I will always remember walking around downtown St. Louis in the middle of the night,” laughed Kristina Heil.

Graduation
Seniors say farewell to Troy High School

Graduation. The day every student eagerly awaits came and went for the class of 1997. Commencement was Sunday, May 25, at 4 P.M. in C.W. Oliver Gymnasium. This day brought happiness, nervousness, and tears.

"Pomp and Circumstance," played by the THS band, was the entrance song for the graduates. Juniors Andy Franken and Nicole Kinsey escorted the seniors in to the gym. The ushers were Corey Kostman and Sarah Geiger.

The awards and scholarships were the same as they always have been. Counselor Nick Dannevick started with the awards presentation and the presentation of the Troy State Bank Scholarship, which was new, to Regina Huff. Hugh Kinsey awarded the Janice Kinsey Memorial Scholarship to Regina Huff and Renee Scholz, who also received the Booster Club Honorarium presented by Joi Davies. The SLK Scholarship was awarded by Isabel Sparks to Kristina Drake. The American Legion Awards were given by Paul Keller. The class selected the top students and the runner-ups. The runners-up were Larry Huff and Jill Weidmer and the top awards were given to Clinton McNemee and Kristina Drake.

An addition to the ceremony was a slide show of childhood photographs of the seniors. This brought many laughs and a few tears. The slide show was assembled by Shane Gigstad and Darrin Stilton.

Two seniors tied for the honor of being Valedictorian. They were Larry Huff and Renee Scholz. Larry was first to speak followed by Renee, who shared "The Road Not Taken" by Robert Frost.

In the seniors' dedication to their families, they carried red roses to their parents and guardians to the song "Because You Loved Me" by Celine Dion.

Principal Marty Steissman, principal presented his first senior class at Troy High School to the gym full of hundreds of people. As the seniors received their diplomas, they were given their class flower, a white rose, by usher Nicole Kinsey. Then they proceeded to the risers where many pictures were taken.

Students try to find employment

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to learn about the jobs and job opportunities that the students of THS had in and around the area of Troy. Money can be very important to students who like to party, go on dates, and/or want to go to college in the future. Whatever they do, money is always something people want more of.

The students of THS hold many of the jobs around Troy. Fast Lane, John’s Market, Davies’ Oil Co., and many other businesses all employ THS students.

Many students also work for themselves by mowing lawns, baby-sitting or holding some other form of employment.

Sophomore Suzie Oyerly said, “Mowing for money is a great way to earn money for yourself. You earn a lot of money and you get a good tan. Even though I earn a lot of money I usually spend it easily. It goes to pay for school-related activities and my car, and there is always a little left over for entertainment value.”

Sometimes if a student can’t find a job in the town of Troy or just wants to get out of Troy for awhile, he or she finds employment out of town. Rohrer’s Game Farm, Oriental Restaurant, or the YMCA in Atchison all have THS students on their payroll.

Whatever employment a student finds and wherever it is, it can be pretty well assumed that even though that person might complain a little, he or she really likes having a few extra dollars to throw around.

Dear Students:

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. In each scene he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand — one belonging to him and the other to the Lord. When the last scene flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints and noticed that many times along the path there was only one set of footprints in the sand. He also noted that this happened during the lowest and saddest times in his life. This bothered him and he questioned the Lord: "Lord, you said once I decided to follow you, you would walk beside me all the way. But I noticed that during the most troublesome times of my life, there was only one set of footprints. I don't understand why, when I needed you most you deserted me." The Lord replied, "My precious child, I love you and would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering when you saw only one set of footprints, it was then that I carried you."

Mom

Pat,
Here you are at 4 months, a happy smiling baby. Now, 18 years later not much has changed. Sometimes, of course, I worry about you—but that's a natural part of being a parent. More often, I think about how special you are, and how much joy your cheerfulness and willingness to help others have added to my life. I love you just the way you are, and the way you are makes me very proud. You will go far in life and you're the best son a mother could ever have! Thank you!
Love, Mom

Clinton,
You are a wonderful son and a great brother. Your intelligence, honesty, sense of humor, and independence have brought you far—never forget them. You have shown you can achieve everything—if you believe it is worth the effort. Keep that belief and the world is yours. Your accomplishments have made us very proud of you. Just remember, we are behind you every step of the way!!
Love Always,
Mom, Dad, and Jeff

Nancy,

Love,
Mom and Dad

Life: A mission in itself

Your Mission, should you choose to accept it, is to use the knowledge that you have learned here at THS and use it in your life. Not only the book knowledge you have been taught will be important. You must also use the knowledge about life that you have learned through interacting with the people here at THS.

High school is a time to learn facts, to live, and to get along with people. Students learn information out of books that will give them the education that they need to get a job and make something of themselves in the future, but kids also learn how to be adults. This is the impossible mission that we all face in life.

High school is said to be the best time of your life and this just might be true. At THS, one person knows everyone in school, which might be more people than you will ever know at one time in your life. This means you must learn to get along with different types of people or the school just won’t work. This also means you probably have many friends.

Saying good-bye is also part of growing up and just like every other year, the senior class says good-bye to THS and to all the friends that they have made over the years. This is usually a very hard task but it is just another step in life.
