Not all glory in home economics and business

This will be the third year for Mrs. Mollerker as the home economics teacher. She teaches boys as well as girls the art of sewing and cooking. She has to have great stamina, at least when it comes to sampling food, to put up with mistakes.

Mr. DuBois teaches computers, business, accounting, and office practice. In typing both Mr. DuBois and Mrs. Trant head the class in trying to teach students a useful skill. Although Mr. DuBois has had a trying year, he's never lost his humor in class; the accounting students will vouch for that. We also welcome Mrs. Trant back.

Not all work in math and science

Mr. Hutchcraft, who has been here for longer than anyone can remember, teaches the classes physics, algebra, geometry, calculus, and trigonometry, along with career math. Although his classes are long and tedious, he can often be heard telling stories of the old days or of his sports games, golf and bowling.

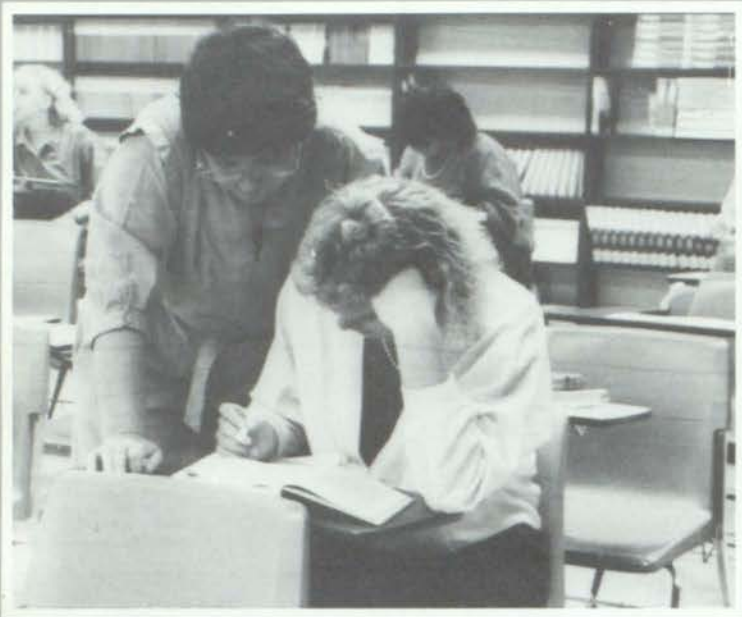

Mr. Collins, who not only teaches science but looks and acts the part, is also found telling stories or jokes during class. Known to the students as "Doc," Mr. Collins also conducts experiments that mystify or confuse the students. He teaches general science, biology, and chemistry.

Students spend much time in library

Mrs. Parish gives a helpful hint to Debbie Whitacre.

Mr. Beary lectures to his Constitution class.

Mrs. Mary Lou Colley and Mrs. Angie Neibling put a big investment into the library this year. They bought protective covers for the magazines, which the students were kind enough to leave on. Also added were many new research and required reading books. A weekly geography search offered a free Pepsi as a prize. The display cases also saw action with the help of Mrs. Sally Yates.

The English, speech and social science students could all be seen in the library working on papers and book reports.

Mrs. Parish had her English and American history students in the library constantly. The juniors get a double whammy with not only an English research paper, but one in American history as well.

Mrs. Rush has her English and speech classes using the library. The English class checked into required reading books, and the speech class worked hard on their research for their first competition.

Mr. Boeh's world history class also had a paper to do. They spent time checking out books and researching historical people.

The Constitution class, taught by Mr. Beary, had a current events contest once a week. They spent time in the library reading newspapers and magazines getting ready to answer the tough questions he presented in class.

Mr. Beary's Constitution students are hard to keep in straight rows.

Todd Scott and Tim Blanton indulge themselves in an informative paper.

Mrs. Rush shares her knowledge with her speech class.

Mrs. Colley helps Beth Maris and Valorie Blanton find a good book.

Mrs. Neibling reads an interesting passage to students in the library.

Jodi Mead wishes her pen was a gun as she works on a hard assignment.

Newspaper editor Hope Swartz and Co-editors of the yearbook Tracey Blevins and Juli Maris plan their pages.

Renee Flax and Amy Yates paste-up the newspaper.

This years Journalism class was large in size and ambition. With 19 students and two classes a lot was accomplished. "The Bluestreak Speaks," under editor Hope Swartz, had 10 issues printed, one being on the topic of teenage pregnancy. At KSPA Contest, at Kansas University, seven students placed in 1A and 2A competition.

The yearbook, under editors Juli Maris and Tracey Blevins, kept the class busy also. Art work by Shannon Jorgensen and Peggy Gibson played a major part in creating the theme for this year's yearbook.

Most of the returning journalism students thought the rookies were crazy for wanting to do darkroom work. Any chance to do darkroom was taken on by a rookie. Only two big disasters happened though, two rolls of film melted during developing and some photo paper was exposed.

After a year of meeting many newspaper paste-up and yearbook copy deadlines and answering to Mrs. Parish, the paper and yearbook were completed.

Mrs. Joan Oyerly and Mrs. Ann Elliott assist Tammy Richards in her studies.

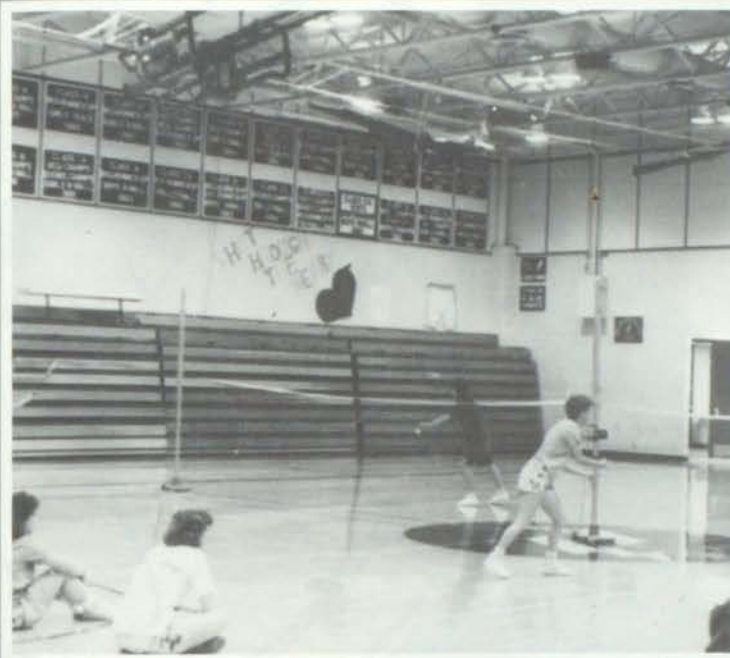

Kenny Huss and Dwayne Dickerson work on a project for the gifted program.

Journalism, PE, Special Classes- alternative to the normal

Physical Education has been emphasized more this year. The Freshmen P.E. classes, with the help of student teacher, Mr. Jim Brockoff, were stressed with physical fitness. Among the fitness activities were badminton, volleyball, basketball, coneball, baseball, exercise, and much running. The advanced P.E. classes were also very physical with much running and playing basketball.

The gifted program, under direction of Mr. Bob Anderson, also kept busy. They attended the Renaissance Festival in Bonner Springs, Kansas, the Benedictine College library, the Nelson Art Gallery, and looked into career opportunities at Highland Community College.

The Special Education class kept busy helping those people who have learning and reading disabilities.

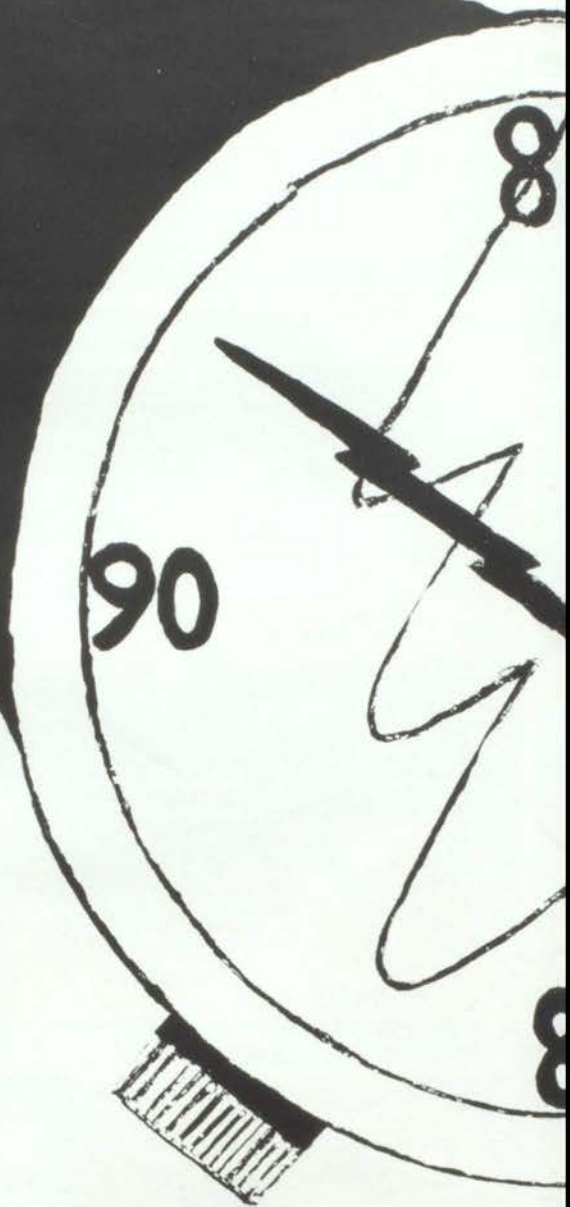

Freshmen P.E. girls play badminton.

Classes, prom, fights highlight junior year

Our junior year we really had to buckle down. We had two incredibly tough classes to take (American history and English III), work the concession stand, and prepare for prom.

In English we learned about things our parents never even heard of, let alone understood. For example, what is a catharsis, compound-complex sentence, or did the witches push MacBeth into things? American history, on the other hand, was fairly easy. As an example, who standardized the thread length of bolts and screws?

The concession stand would have been a real pain in the neck if Angie Neibling didn't help us. She set the schedule and made sure that everyone showed up.

Finally we prepared for Prom '87. Unfortunately, most of the votes (class motto, colors, etc.) turned out to be a battle of the sexes. Overall I would say the junior year of the Class of '88 was a blast.

think the best thing about being a sophomore is . . . FRESHMEN.

This is a nice quiet school, and I'm glad to be here.

The feeling of not being a freshman any longer was one of the best things about being a sophomore.

We came up with a great float that should have gotten first place.

My sophomore year has been neither exciting nor boring, but I wouldn't have missed it for the world!

A challenge that brings respect

In the beginning the word freshmen was considered a four letter word, from students, and some teachers alike. But we gained respect, to a certain degree, from our fellow students thus making us higher forms of lowlife. As the year went by, we grew with the school and the knowledge it endowed to us. So we can stand tall with pride and grace when upper classmen yell the dreaded word "Freshmen !"

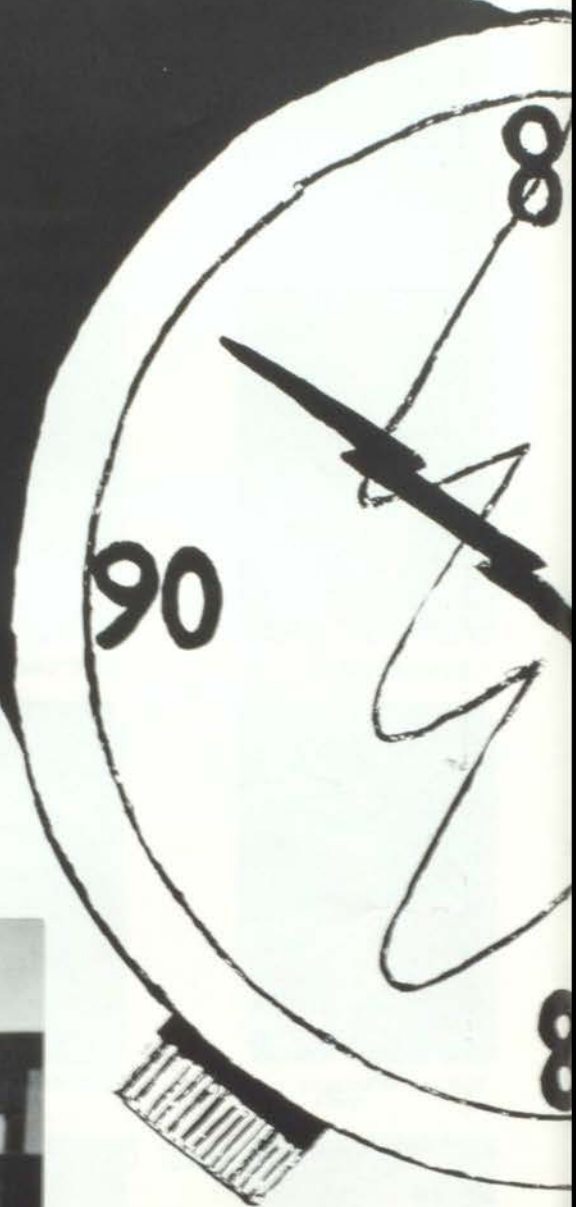

Tim Mueller

An incredible experience — something about it made me feel more relaxed, more responsible, and much more inadequate. Boy did it; it felt as if the whole world ganged up on me. There was more homework and more nights after school, but I find high school another challenge for me to work for.

Kristie Collins, Renee Flax, Becky Shores, and Shannon Jorgensen enjoy the rides at "Mickey D's" before the Stuco exchange at Park Hill.

Another year had gone by and the Stuco became more and more active. Once again, the candidates for class representatives were required to campaign by hanging posters and giving a speech in front of the student body. The school voted for two from each class. Also, a representative from each club was elected to Stuco.

The first major project of the year was organizing the Homecoming Parade, which turned out to be a nice evening. Almost all the school became involved. The Bluestreak band led the parade. Some of the grade school teachers had a float. The cheerleaders were heard chanting from the back of a truck. Following this, the floats representing each class were well represented. The seniors' float came away with first prize. Bringing up the rear were the Homecoming candidates in their horse-drawn carriages. The second annual parade was quite an impressive event.

The Queen of Courts was another major project carried through by Stuco. This year a few Booster Club members helped the Stuco prepare for the presentation.

This year, the Stuco took on something new. A student exchange program was held at Park Hill High School in Kansas City. The Stuco members were assigned to a student who took them to all of their classes. It was a fun and real experience in a big school, but it was good to be back in Bluestreak territory.

The Quiz bowl team came out in full force this year. Teams were sent to High Q at Washburn University, HCC, Horton, Baileyville, Peru State College and to the County Meet held at H.H.S. At every meet attended the teams did very well. More participation and practices were the reason. Mrs. Parish worked the team hard this year, and the results were profitable. Intra-mural quiz bowls also got students who couldn't make the trips involved.

National Honor Society members are to show character, service, scholarship, leadership and academic standing to maintain their membership. The annual open house was held in the fall. The Booster Club decided to form a new team this year. It wasn't a golf team or even a swim team, it was a drill team. There were 7 girls who volunteered to take the challenge to develop performances at the football and basketball games. They also performed at half-time of a Scotties basketball game at HCC. Mrs. Kathy Twombly and Mrs. Tami Peters directed the girls and tried to keep things in order.

At the Brown-Nemaha Pork Producers Market Hog Show and Judging Contest, a team consisting of Dennis Blevins, Jeff Boos, Brad Cluck, and Jason Taylor placed first in the team division. Individually, Boos took first out of 150 participants. Another big event was the barnwarming and Sweetheart selection. Renee Flax was selected as Chapter Sweetheart. Money making projects included selling popcorn at ball-games, a slave auction during the barnwarming and fruit sales. Overall the chapter had a successful year.

The 1986-87 fashions at Highland High are unique because they include new ideas from the 80's mixed with fashions from years past that have come back in style. Wearing clothing articles and accessories to the right is our Fashion Freak. He is displaying a jean jacket by the Levi Strauss Company, tie-dye jeans by Zena, a brightly colored Chuck Taylor high-top tennis shoes, and a white Go-Go boot. His face is made up of paisley print featuring a brooch nose, a couple of brooches for the mouth and a pair of John Belushi sunglasses. His ears are decorated with big loop earrings, and a bandana around his neck adds the western look. Fashion Freak had hair made up of another Chuck Taylor tennis shoe, a shiny silver flat and a boat shoe. What a hip kind of guy — right?

Because we're featuring things that have come back from the past, we'd like to mention something besides the fashions that have fallen into this category — Music! Pops like "Lean on Me," "Earth Angel," "Stand By Me," "Mony, Mony," and others that include "Twist and Shout," and "On the Darkside" are songs H.H.S. students hear on the radio and jam to at their favorite night spots!

The awesome piece of machinery that provided the transportation to Colorado.

With only twelve students and three sponsors, the second STUCO ski trip was a big success. The group left on March 18, at 12:45 pm in a van and a seatless school bus. The skiers stayed at a Super 8 Motel in Dillon, Colorado, and skied three days at Vail. After a full day on the slopes, the group would return to a delightful meal of hamburgers or pizza, then watch a basketball game on television.

There were only two major troubles on the whole trip, the bus and Jamie Carwell. The bus had no power when it came to going up mountains. The top speed it ever reached was 30 m.p.h. Jamie Carwell, on the other hand, had trouble going down the mountains. Going down a mountain at top speed, Jamie fell and injured his knee. He was then taken to a local hospital and released that day.

After four days of fun, everyone was glad to be home early Sunday morning.

Bluestreak Band

1986-87 has been a tough year for the Bluestreak Band. With only a few high school students out for band, Mr. Nelson has had to integrate the junior high band into the high school program. Although this action has relieved some of the band's problems, it has also brought a host of its own.

The junior high students lack the maturity and discipline to play high school material. This has led to gradual downgrading of the difficulty and amount of material the band has been able to play. To complicate matters further, the band has not been able to live up to the expectations of the community. Even though he has been faced with great difficulties, Mr. Nelson has done his best to keep the band up to expectations. We're glad to have had Mr. Nelson as a teacher, and we are sorry to see him leave.

On March 28th the Swing Choir, small ensembles and soloists went to Benedictine College, for the regional music festival. The day was a learning experience for all and profitable for the Swing Choir and two soloists, Tracey Blevins and Ladonna Tyler. They received I's, the best rating possible. They then traveled to McPherson, Kansas on April 25th for the state contest. Another I was received by the Swing Choir. Blevins and Tyler both received II's. The Swing Choir and the soloists are commended for their outstanding performances.

The choir went to Kansas City for the state festival. Singing at 8:10 meant leaving at 6:00. After singing they went to Wendy's, after much argument. However, Wendy's doesn't serve hamburgers at 10am so breakfast was enjoyed by all. After breakfast they returned to Shawnee Mission East to get their ratings. Ratings of III's and one IV were the result of months of practice. After a long ride home, the choir got back about noon and wearily attended their afternoon classes.

Choir director, Cheryl Rasmussen and the students of Highland High School have been known to put on several outstanding musical plays. Hard work and determination made the musical play, Annie Get Your Gun, a big success. It just goes to show that the Highland students have a spirited, outgoing talent when they set their mind to it. Practicing scene after scene can become a drag, but hearing the crowd laugh leaves the bad times far behind. Practice can become perfect and the choir students of HHS proved just that.

The cross country team once again had a very successful season. After a season of hard work and dedication, it all paid off with a third place finish for the team at state, and another third place for Tim Blanton. The state meet was the final bow for three seniors, Tim Blanton, Robbie Keller, and Andy Parker, all of whom actively participated in years past.

A new addition to the team this year were three females, Valorie Blanton, Jodi Keller, and Jodi Mead. Due to medical reasons Mead and Keller did not participate in every meet, but Blanton qualified for state and finished 13th. The girls, even in full force, were unable to compete as a team, but did so on an individual basis.

Dwayne Dickerson, Scott Cromwell, Jodi Keller, and Valorie Blanton are planning to return next season. Coach Beary is optimistic and hoping for a full team.

BLUESTREAK FOOTBALL

Bluestreaks ended their season with four wins and five losses. The Bluestreaks were only one game away from making the playoffs, but a loss to Troy crushed the hope of the Streaks. The Highland-Midway rivalry was battled in an 8-man game this year. One day preparation proved to be too much for the Streaks, as the eventual state champ Eagles prevailed. Inexperience seemed to keep the streaks from playing to their potential. Losing only three seniors to graduation, the streaks will return a good nucleus for next year's season.

as Mr. Dave DuBois had another successful year at his second season as girls' basketball coach. Assisting Mr. DuBois was Miss Suzie Kinkead, who coached the young JV team. Coaches pull double duty

I'd smile too, Coach.

The coaches at HHS must fill a variety of roles. Not only are they all athletic coaches, each one is also a teacher in a classroom. This double duty leads to a different and special type of interaction between coaches and student/athletes. The students of HHS really appreciate all the help the coaches have given them over the years.

Well, Elmer, should we punt?

"California here we come!"

Hope Swartz, Tracey Blevins, Karen Whetstone, and Kelli Wykert search for sea shells down by the seashore on Senior Sneak.

Some senior girls board their plane that will make them "California Girls!"

H.H.S. studs, Todd Scott, Andy Parker, and Tim Blanton, rule the beaches of California.

California, the land of Mickey Mouse and warm beaches, was the final destination of the 1987 senior class. After four years of raising money, the senior class set out at 4:30 am for KCI.

Many feared to fly, and Hope Swartz finally looked up when the plane was over Colorado Springs.

Everyone agreed that the beach was the high point of the trip. Another agreement was that "It's a small world" was the worst attraction at Disneyland because after a person has heard the song 10 times in 10 different languages they're not willing to hear it in five more languages.

Believe it or not evenings were spent in the smog-filled rooms watching TV. On their return flight the plane flew through a storm which didn't help Hope much.

Mrs. Molleker thinks that everyone would go again tomorrow. Although, she's not sure about Hope.

H.H.S. "beach bums" catch some rays on the sunny beaches.

Gerald Neibling, Chris Wegener, Kelli Wykert, Robbie Keller, Tracey Blevins, and Mike Edie wait patiently for their plane.

High Achievers recognized

Karen Whetstine acknowledges her classmates as she goes to accept her honor cord from Mr. Jan Collins.

The annual awards banquet was held on May 14, where many senior and underclassmen awards were presented.

Tim Blanton and Juli Maris were presented with the Citizenship awards. The Armed Services award was given to Todd Scott and Tracey Blevins. And the All-Around Student award was presented to Juli Maris.

Many scholastic awards were given to seniors as well as underclassmen. The freshmen and juniors took many Emporia State Scholarship awards as well as class and county awards.

Renee Flax and Jason Taylor were presented with the I Dare You award.

The evening ended with Mr. White presenting Heather Yates with the Valedictory trophy, and Shelly Cluck received the Salutatory trophy.

Congratulations seniors, and GOOD LUCK!!

Tracey Blevins, Outstanding Vocalist award winner, accepts her Swing Choir awards from Miss Cheryl Rasmussen.

Amy Allen proudly accepts her Golden Ripper Award from Mrs. Janet Mollerker.

Juli Maris is excited about her recognition as All-Around Student, given by Mr. Steve Boeh.
