Putting It All Together

Eagle 1996
PEOPLE

Existing Together

SPIRITED PEOPLE  The sophomores really get into the pep rally before the football game that night.

HELPFUL PEOPLE  David Roberts, Sarah Perdue, and Jodi Knudson, of the Biology II class, help the school look better by trimming the flowers in front of the school and putting more dirt in the bed for better growth in the spring.
There are many types of people that piece MHS together. There is no wrong way or right way to be. Everyone is different, yet everyone fits together. While some are musical, others are athletic. Some people dress funny, and of course, some dress funnier. Even when some people study, some don't. Some party, some don't. Some get in trouble, and some don't.

Jennifer McNett, junior, said, "We are all so layed back and used to each other that we just enjoy being with each other and having fun together, that we really don't care about our images we show."

HUNGRY PEOPLE Justin Matthias, senior, Jerry Pauly, sophomore, and Curtis Albers, freshman, eat carmeled "apples" during a pep rally. It came to a quick end when Jerry found an onion under his carmel.

HIPPIE PEOPLE Ms. Suindell, Sarah Perdue and Sarah Moore show their '60s and '70s wardrobe.

OUTSPOKEN PEOPLE Joe Keys, junior, gives his opinion to everyone in homeroom period, even if his classmates want to hear it or not.

Piecing the Last Year Together

In twenty years
I will . . .

. . . be in Colorado living on a successful farm and bacheloring around.
Steve Helmstetter

. . . be married with two kids, with average work and living in the country.
Aaron Jamvold

. . . be in Virginia or Kentucky, training and showing horses, possibly married.
Sarah Moore

. . . be in Nashville as a popular country singer and the president of the FFA.
Justin Matthias

. . . be married and have two kids, living in Colorado, trying to be a successful lawyer.
Christy Wohletz

. . . be married with two kids, living in the mountains and owning a Chevy dealership.
Corey Franken

. . . be married, working and maybe have a kid or so.

Organizations

Working Together
Leadership, Helping Hands

The student council tries to provide leadership for the student body and to assist with activities for the students and community. Some of those projects that the student council does consist of sponsoring Homecoming and Snowball activities, helping with pep rallies and organizing a food drive during December. The members also attend leadership conferences.

STUCO has representatives from each class and for some of the organizations. The president and vice president are voted on by the student body and must have a 2.5 grade point average.

During the past two years, the NHS experienced a revival. With a new advisor, Robilea Swindell, new members were inducted into the chapter, and they worked on fulfilling the national requirements.

Two induction ceremonies took place this year, one in September and the other in March. Inducted in September were Mark Albers, Sarah Perdue and David Roberts. The March inductees were Amy Albers, Nathan Arnold, Patricia Clark, Chad Matthias and Jerry Pauly.

Their first service project was a recycling day in the spring, when the members collected items from the area and took them to the recycling center in Highland.

The 1995-96 cheerleading squad members were Sarah Perdue, junior; Angie Wright, sophomore; and freshmen Mindy Pauly, Crystal Becker, and Nickie Carpenter. To pump up spirit, the cheerleaders held pep rallies for the volleyball, football, and basketball teams. They tried to involve students from each class by having games that were exciting and fun. The rallies usually ended when the cheerleaders threw candy into the crowd.

Perdue said that cheerleading was better this year because the squad added two more cheerleaders. The summer before school began, the cheerleaders also went to a cheerleading camp where they learned a lot of stunts and some new cheers.
Scholars Bowl

Young team falls short of goal

The Midway high school scholars bowl team placed in several tournaments this year. Out of 15 contests the varsity and junior varsity placed first three times, second two times, third two times, and fourth once. The varsity team ended the year by going to regionals in Centralia and were disappointed by not qualifying for state.

Junior Nathan Arnold felt they played as a team. "We stuck together, not only were we teammates, but we were close friends that could count each other."

Members of the team were freshmen Mindy Pauly and Eve Wayman; sophomores Angie Wright, Ron Miner, Jason Bennett, Jerry Pauly, Chad Matthias, and Patricia Clark; juniors David Roberts, Matt Symns, Sarah Perdue, and Nathan Arnold; and seniors Justin Matthias and Sarah Moore. They were coached by Mrs. Shirley Symns.

Matt Symns, junior, said, "Yes, the year was a success, but we are disappointed about not qualifying for state."
Academics

Piecing It Together
Placing Ideas In Our Heads

My most embarrassing moment during class was... "when I suggested to my Freshman Health class that some of them needed to go to the gynecologist in order to clear their acne up," Jaclyn Chapman, junior. • "After a wonderful lunch of cafeteria chili, Corey Franken just happened to finish his Anatomy test before everyone. Simultaneously, he asked in front of the class if he could excuse himself to the restroom," Mrs. Scherer. • "One morning I was in the science room standing at one of the sinks which is broken and has a piece of paper over it. When all of a sudden I turned it on and scared everyone, and they thought I had been shocked. David Roberts came over to turn the water off and accidently turned it on completely and drenched everyone that was standing around," Heather Smith, junior. • "At the beginning of the school year our Biology II class went to our river site to look around. When everyone was walking back towards the car, I tripped over a big bunch of limbs, did a 180 turn, and fell flat on my butt," Sarah Perdue, junior. • "Last year in Biology I, I was taking notes, and felt a huge sneeze coming on. I leaned over and sneezed and out flew a huge wad of phlegm, landing on the floor with everyone to see," Joseph Keys, junior.

Above: Rochelle Jones and Sarah Perdue, juniors, take a different view in learning Biology II, taught by Mrs. Scherer. The class adopted a river site on the Jordan Creek to clean its banks and take water tests for a class project.

Below: During homeroom Kylee Schuetz and Jarred Fuhrman, freshmen, work together on a Biology I assignment, taught by Mrs. Scherer.

What subject do you study the most?

"I probably work the hardest on some of my Speech assignments," Jerry Pauly, sophomore.

"It seems like I am always trying to get my Geometry assignment finished," Jennifer Frump, junior.

"EVERYTHING!!!," Heather Owens, freshman.

"I have the most homework in Biology I," Aaron Albers, sophomore.
During 4th hour in Algebra II, sophomore Staci Wohletz pauses from doing her assignment.

Sophomore Stephanie Bottiger and senior Steve Helmstetter concentrate on their Algebra II assignment.

Mathematics

Finding Solutions

Across Kansas, schools are being required by the state board of education's QPA plan to emphasize improvement in student math performance. This year, Midway decided to focus on problem solving skills as part of its plan.

Mr. Jim Leatherman, math teacher, feels that math is important because it teaches skills for reasoning a problem out. It shows ways to see through a problem then finding which will or will not be useful, in order to formulate a plan to find a solution.

Junior Jennifer Frump said she liked the problems and solutions that accompany the math process.

Science

Making a Difference

One new thing that the science classes began this year was the Rivers and Streams project, in which students cleaned up the trash at the Jordan Creek and tested the waters for pollutants.

Mrs. Deanna Scherer, teacher, hopes that this project will stimulate student interest in environmental science.

Freshman Jarred Fuhrman said, “It was fun going to the streams. I enjoyed cleaning the streams up.”

Scherer feels that all sciences are important because without them nobody could survive. “Science shows you what’s going on in the world and teaches your mind to think.”

Mr. Bob Lewis was the other science teacher this year. For the past two years he taught Chemistry and Physics here. He retired in May after 35 years of teaching.

Lewis said that he enjoyed working with high school students because they are very impressionable. He will miss working with the students and seeing them learn.

Seniors Corey Franken, Christy Wohletz, and junior Rochelle Jones skin a dogfish shark. The anatomy class looked at the shark's muscular, skeletal, and cranial nerves.
Ms. Cyndi Geisen taught French again this year. The exciting things that went on in French II were reading Les Misérables, foreign language week, going to the music hall in Kansas City to see a play directed by Victor Hugo, and making French food.

The Spanish class was taught by Mr. George Jones. The Spanish classes worked on many different things such as cooking Spanish meals, writing a pen pal from various Spanish speaking countries, and making pinatas and maps.

Geisen feels that everyone needs to learn a foreign language because it helps them learn English better. Jones also feels that taking a foreign language is important because people are able to take part in another world and culture.

Bobby Owens, junior, uses his whole body to get the rest of the juniors to guess his word while playing Guesstures.

English department added Accelerated Reader this year. Accelerated Reader is a book report test on the computer. Each student got to choose which book they would like to read then they were required to take the computer test.

Mrs. Taylor said, "We have added the program to our classes in hopes of improving student enjoyment of reading and to improve reading abilities such as comprehension. It has also increased library book circulation."

Junior Matt Symns said, "I think it (Accelerated Reader) is a good idea to encourage us to read."

The English classes available to take this year were Speech, taught by Ms. Cyndi Geisen; English I, taught by Mr. David Spangler; English II, taught by Mr. George Jones; Publications, English III, English IV, English Review, and College English taught by Mrs. Marla Taylor.
The Right Keys: Juniors Jeff Norris and Katy Daugherty type an assignment for Computer Business Applications.

Computers/Business

Hands On

The computer lab received new computers for the 1995-1996 school year, which enabled students to be exposed to many new types of software.

Some of the software that the computer classes learned were Power Point, Microsoft Office, Microsoft Word and Microsoft Money.

Some of the classes offered for computers were In-House Training, Computer Programming, Accounting I, Computer Applications, and Computer Business Applications.

Dawn Simmons, senior, said, “I like computer class because I like working on computers.”

With the program: Jennifer McNett and Jaclyn Chapman type instructions to make a program.

Taking a Test: Freshman Curtis Albers takes a World Geography test.

Doing Homework: Freshman Ashley Stevens relaxes while doing his homework in World Geography.

Social Sciences

People, Places

The social science classes were kept busy taking notes, researching, and learning about things such as the world-past and present, the United States, and people.

The classes offered were Psychology, World History, World Geography, Current Events, American History, and American Government.

In Government, the seniors were kept busy researching and writing papers on social issues such as Abortion, Right to life, and AIDS. Mr. Elden Ninemire, teacher, said that he has the seniors do this research because if they continue on to college they will need to know how to do research papers.

Ninemire said that two of his favorite classes to teach are American History, because “We are learning how to build on the understanding of the past and how we do not want to make the same mistakes,” and Current Events in which students learn how to keep up on World-Wide Issues.
Music Competitions, Fundamentals

The high school and junior high band gives performances together.

Among the things that Mrs. Cynthia Graham, the music director, hoped to accomplish this year were attending more contests and having the band receive a I or II at state, which was at Marysville.

Besides preparing for these contests, the band, which was junior high and high school combined, also worked on the fundamentals, played at football and basketball games and pep assemblies.

In May, the band also attended a music festival at Worlds of Fun, in which bands from several states competed.

Melissa Thompson, sophomore, stated, “It is definitely true that our band is young, but I believe it is full of potential.”

Family and Consumer Sciences Targeting Both Genders

Beginning with this year, the traditional Home Economics courses are known as Family and Consumer Sciences.

Mrs. June Roberts, teacher, said that the name changed to meet the needs of the curriculum and changing society.

Traditionally, she said, home economics had the image of being a girls' class. But now, "everyone will be in a family unit at some time during their lives."

The new title also includes "science" because there is a lot of science involved in the process of these classes.

Stephanie Bottiger and Nick Peuker, sophomores, finish a test in Parenting Class.
Physical Education

Staying Fit

Two physical education classes were available for the high school students this year. These classes were Freshmen P.E./Health and Advanced P.E., taught by Mr. Mark Martin.

In the freshmen class, they had physical fitness for the first and fourth quarters. During this time, the freshmen worked learning the rules of and then playing games such as racquetball, tennis, golf, baseball and weights. Then during the second and third quarters the students were in the classroom for Health, in which they studied nutrition, diseases, and sex education.

Aaron Jamvold, senior, said that he liked P.E. this year better because there was more of a weight program.

Creating, Assembling

Projects and hands-on work are mainly what kept the Industrial Arts classes busy this year. These classes were Electronic Robots and Power Mechanics, Welding, Junior High Exploratory, Home Maintenance, Woods Technology and Industrial Drawing.

Mr. Mark Juhl, teacher, said the Electronics Class appeared to be very motivated by a radio-control truck project, in which students assembled circuit boards and built battery chargers from a kit, then built four radio-control Dodge Ram trucks. Several companies donated the radio transmitters, receivers, electric motors, speed controls, ni-cad batteries, and the truck kits.

When the students finally got their trucks running, they attempted a race at the half-time of the last boys’ basketball game. Juhl said that the race appeared to be more of a demolition derby than a race, but both the students and the spectators seemed to enjoy the event.
Sports

Just Doing it Together
Sticking Together

Though the year was anticipated to be one of rebuilding for Eagle volleyball, the determination and intensity levels of the players remained high. Marla Taylor, coach, said, "We are a fairly young team and the girls have much potential to have a competitive team, because we gave some teams some competitive matches."

Although the girls worked hard this year, many team members were disappointed with some of their losses. Rochelle Jones, junior, stated, "The most disappointing game was probably dramatically, and we pretty much gave up. I now wish we would have at least tried."

Taylor felt that although the regional game against Wetmore. The players' enthusiasm had gone down the team did not have a winning record, there were many positive aspects about the season.

"The girls worked well together and I feel they enjoyed themselves."

The girls managed to meet some goals set at the beginning of the season. April Kuhnert, junior, stated, "I think that the team reached all of their goals, which were to improve as the season went by and to play together. I think that the varsity and junior varsity teams will be ready for next year."

"High school volleyball was a huge change compared to junior high. There were more games, more competition, and it was a lot more fun."

Crystal Becker, freshman.

Jennifer Frump, junior, serves the ball to the Dekalb players.

Kylee Schuetz and Amber Kuhnert, freshmen, await the serve from the other team.

“Everyone wasn’t as down on each other as in the years before. The team really stuck together, which had a lot to do with the leadership factor.”
Heather Smith, junior
Holding the Line

The Midway football team had many outstanding attributes for the 95-96 season. Both coaches, Mark Martin and Mark Juhl, felt that the players never gave up, played hard, had good leadership, were enthusiastic, and hardworking. The football team was known as a team.

Seniors Corey Franken and Aaron Jamvold said that their most memorable game was the district championship game against Elwood. Jamvold said, "It was a big game that we were looking forward to all year."

The team had many team and personal goals for the season. Among these goals, each game.

Personal goals for Jamvold were making 100 tackles, becoming a better pulling guard, and showing good team leadership.

Goals that Franken achieved were making the play-offs, and accumulating 1,000 yards and 100 tackles.

Josh Falk, freshman, felt he gained a lot this year. He said he learned how to work as a team, and to accomplish team goals.

Jeremy Blanton, sophomore, also felt he learned more than football techniques. "I learned to always be a team player, be positive in bad times, and to be a good sportsman."

"The season turned out better than I thought it would, and I know we will do even better next year."

"It was a pretty hard season and it felt good to beat Elwood in the district."
Justin Matthias, senior

Junior David Roberts protects the ball as he runs a quick sweep.
New coaches, Bill Perich and Stefanie Page, and only one senior, Christy Wohletz, lead a young team this season.

Although it wasn't a winning season, Perich said, "I think that the girls got some good experience that will help make them a stronger team next year." Perich was surprised by the level of competition on the schedule. "The girls played against some tough schools." Most of the schools that the girls played against were 1A and some 2A schools. All four of the wins were against 1A schools. Perich said that Bern, Highland, and Wetmore were especially tough. "Many of the schools on our schedule were good with players that were well-prepared and well-coached."

The girls ended with a record of 4-17, but Perich considered this as a rebuilding year. "The girls got a lot of experience that will hopefully carry over to next year."

The girls had a tough season this year. The girls not only faced tough opponents but had to adjust to new coaches.

Perich said, "We wanted to have a nice season for Christy, but we couldn't quite get it done."

"The Troy game was most exciting because it was the first game of the season. I started and was nervous playing against people that I knew."

Heather Owens, freshman

Christy Wohletz, senior
For the third time in 18 years, the boys made it past the regional tournament and advanced to the sub-state playoffs. However, they lost in the first round at sub-state to Cuba-Hillcrest.

The team, coached by Jim Leatherman, had no major standout player. Leatherman thought their success relied on their ability to work well together. "It is amazing what a team can do when no one gets the credit." Leatherman did give some credit to the leadership provided by the two seniors, Corey Franken and Aaron Jamvold. "About one-third through the season, Corey started limiting his turnovers and shooting the ball better and Aaron was tough on the boards all season long."

Although the team ended with a 11-13 record, Leatherman said he was pleased with their accomplishments.

Douglas Roberts, freshman, said that high school basketball was different than junior high. "We (junior varsity) didn’t win as many games as we did last year because we had better competition."

“The most memorable game of my four years was during my freshman year when our junior varsity beat Elwood 3-2. It was our only win.”

Individuals Do Well

Twenty one boys and girls went out for track this season. The team consisted of no seniors and was made up of five juniors, four sophomores, and 12 freshmen.

The meets that they participated in were Elwood’s Panther Relays, a quad at Pleasant Ridge, Wakefield Invitational, Valley Falls, the Doniphan County meet, Centralia, Midway Invitationa and Jackson Heights.

Aaron Albers, sophomore, said that he would always remember the Wakefield meet because Jason Bennett and Ashley Stevens were throwing the shot put over the football goal post.

Jason Bennett said that the Jackson Heights meet was memorable when “I was running the 2 mile relay and I started twirling around.”

Douglas Roberts and freshman Jarred Fuhrman. David Roberts placed sixth in the 400, Fuhrman placed fifth in 110m hurdles and Douglas Roberts placed 6th in the 800.

The boys team was represented at the Regional meet at Marysville by junior David Roberts, freshman

"Valley Falls and Leblond were my best two meets. My best time in the mile was 5:22."

Nathan Arnold

Two girls went to regionals this year. Freshman Amber Kuhnert ran the 800m and sophomore Erica Scholz went in the triple jump.

None of the girls or boys qualified for the state meet. This year was the first in 23 years that a Midway student hasn’t gone to state.

Throughout the season, the team didn’t do well scoring as a whole, but some individuals did consistently place at most of the meets.

"Valley Falls and Leblond were my best two meets. My best time in the mile was 5:22."

Nathan Arnold

Injuries and competing against bigger schools created an uphill battle for the cross country team. Because of these challenges, coach Jim Leatherman tried to make practices somewhat exciting.

"We tried to get in some variety and not do the same thing everyday."

Some of the practices were road runs and on the track. The team also had candy bar runs in which each person on the team picked his own kind of candy bar. Leatherman would place the candy bar at a certain point and when the candy bar was found, that was a turning point.

Talking Out a Plan Jaclyn Chapman, Jennifer McNett, juniors and Mya McNett, freshman check out their goal times with coach Jim Leatherman before running at the Sabetha meet.

Just Hanging Together
Fashion Flashes

There is no escaping it, fashion is all around us. There are no rules to fashion. People have their own styles whether it’s jeans and cowboy boots or being decked out. It depends on the individual. What people wear expresses who they are and how they feel about themselves.

Fashion at MHS ranges from the country look to the city styles. What new fashions are in this season? How should I wear my hair? Are the latest skirts pleated or fitted? Trying to keep up with the latest trends and fashions can be and always has been very difficult.

Did you know what was the cool thing to wear in junior high? In 1991 Hypocolor shirts were in and with them we wore bleached jeans with the bottoms tight rolled. However, the most popular thing to wear in 1991 was regular blue jeans and a T-shirt.

In 1992 the things really coming in style were western clothes like bolo ties, chaps, fringed vests, and western belts with a belt buckle.

In 1993 the flowers had all the power. If you had flowers on a shirt you were in style and the coolest kid in school. We also wore jeans with great big holes on the knees. We wouldn’t patch the holes up; we would leave the knee open to be cool kids.

In 1994 one style to wear anywhere was a long rayon dress with a pair of hiking boots.

Country Style: Erica Scholz, Amy Albers, Aaron Albers, Ashley Stevens and Staci Wohletz are decked out in their Rockies, Wranglers, ropers, or cowboy boots. Some of them sport their Clay Walker concert t’s. Other concerts some students attended were Garth Brooks and Alan Jackson.

Average Day: Jeremy Blanton, Katy Daugherty, Stephanie Bottiger, Amy Graves, Angie Wright, Dawn Simmons and April Kuhnert lounge in their comfy clothes. Flannel shirts, sweats, t-shirts, jeans, athletic shoes and sandals are a common look.

Many types of watches are seen at MHS. They range from Disney characters, to leather bands, to metal bands, to even just plain old watches. Whatever they look like, they help students get to where they are going on time.

Many types of shoes are found on kids’ feet at Midway. They range from athletic shoes, to boots, to sandals, to loafers and even to Eastlands.
Rivalry- (N) A struggle with others for victory or supremacy. You may wonder why your brother and sisters drive you to say things or do things that you would never do to anyone else. The reason may be that there was no part in picking who you wanted for a sibling; you share everything and you see them all of the time.

Jealousy causes big fights, and competing for a parent’s attention is the biggest feud throughout the lives of siblings. How your parents treat you has a huge impact on how you treat your sibling.

Living with your sibling means you see each other in the weakest and embarrassing moments, crying over a guy, when parents go ballistic over grades, and hair disasters. When siblings fight, these embarrassing moments can be used as lethal weapons.

Joseph Keys, junior said, “It seems I never get to serve revenge on my older brother Matt, class of 1994 because when the going gets rough, he beats me. I never get the best of him.”

At times siblings defend each other. Most of the time it is during dramatic events such as a divorce in the family, death, and moving, but it can also happen in less dramatic times. For example, when a guy disses your sister, or if a friend hurts her feelings you may find yourself becoming protective.

Rochelle Jones, junior, said that she doesn’t get back at her sister Stephanie, class of 2002, just because it helps relieve tension, it’s just really fun!
As a Family

David, junior, and Douglas Roberts, freshman, are the sons of Paul and June Roberts.

Megan Bingham, freshman, and Katy Daugherty, junior, are sisters.

Jordan, freshman, and Heather Clary, sophomore, are the son and daughter of Ross and Teresa Clary.

Christy, senior, and Staci Wohletz, sophomore, are the daughters of Leo and Jan Wohletz.

Nick, sophomore, and juniors Keith and Brandee Peuker are cousins. Brandee said, "On Christmas and other holidays, we always go to Grandma and Grandpa's and have to watch football!"

Did you ever wonder what exactly that grimy stuff was on the bottom of your locker? Well, if you dig in some of the lockers down the hall of Midway High, you would find some pretty disgusting things.

Some of the most frequently found things are the half full glass of pop with an inch of mold at the top, the wonderful smell of moldy gym clothes, or books piled to the top shelf and papers that were to be turned in at the beginning of the school year, but not found until the end of the second semester. A yearly competition among the students is the "who can save the most pop cans." Lockers filled to the brim are not an unusual sight.

The freshmen and sophomores seem to hang more pictures and magazine clippings on the door and juniors and seniors have "that important mirror" and seem to grow out of the picture mode.

A person's locker can express a lot about his or her personality. Amber Kuhnert, freshman proves that her friends are important to her with pictures. She also said that she doesn't have quite enough time between classes to put her books in an orderly fashion.

Sports Injuries

Kevin Larrison of the Midwest Sports Medicine Center is the school's athletic trainer. He estimated that he has had between 150-200 sports injuries this year at Midway. He said that the type of injury depends on the sport. For football he mostly sees contusions, which are bruises, for track he sees many athletes for shin splints and for volleyball he often sees shoulder injuries. Larrison said that basketball has the most injuries out of any sport because it is a faster moving game that uses the whole body. "Most injuries are from overuse or wear and tear." During basketball season, he sees many knee problems from stopping, turning and jumping, and some sprained fingers, ankles, and injured shoulders.

Out of all the treated athletes at Midway, Larrison feels that only 50% follow their treatment plan. "They don't want to sit out because they want to play." However, there is a reason for a specific treatment. There has to be a rehab phase to get better.
Making New Friends

Imagine walking into a school for the first time and not knowing anyone. It's hard enough to start a new school year, but when you don't know anyone, it may be tough.

New students may feel left out when those around them carry on conversations with ease. They might even be a bit nervous, worrying about how they are dressed or if they will be able to make new friends. After a few days, most new students begin to feel more comfortable and find that there is no need to worry.

Jeanne Schaumburg, junior, said, "Everyone made it pretty easy to fit in. It is very different from my old school in Lansing."

Summer Jobs

Paper or plastic? or What can I get for you? are a couple of questions some students ask on the job after school and on weekends. Many students have part-time jobs for several reasons; some have car payments, others are saving up money for college, and many work just to have extra spending money.

Students have found many positives and negatives about working.

Junior Jodi Knudson said she likes doing things outside of work with her coworkers like going out to eat with them. Juniors Brandee Peuker, Amy Graves, and Jodi Knudson all work at Country Mart in Atchison. Brandee said, "I enjoy working with friends and it seems to make the time go by faster because I have someone to talk to."

Junior Heather Smith finds time to have a social life while having two jobs. Heather works as a waitress at Pizza Hut in Wathena and as a C.N.A. at a nursing home in Hiawatha.

Feeding the BEAST

Every day a bell is heard that sets everyone's mind on how to satisfy that mid-morning craving. The 9:56 a.m. bell, which means it is time for break, sends a majority of the students down the hall to the cafeteria to check out what's new in the vending machines.

The Student Council funds the Pepsi-Cola machine which normally holds Pepsi, Mountain Dew, Dr. Pepper, Slice and Diet Pepsi, for 50 cents each. There is also an Ocean Spray juice machine and a snack machine filled by Smith Vending from Wathena.

Jennifer McNett, junior, hopes that the machine will take her dollar so she can get something to snack on before third hour.

Keith Peuker, junior, digs for his money to get a pop out of the Pepsi-Cola machine.

Having Fun Together
The "Yard Sale" directed by Leroy and Cindy Graham, focused on the Babbington family trying to raise enough money to save their mansion from being repossessed. Mrs. Babbington had to borrow money from the neighbor Mrs. Hazel Hushabye in order to make the house payment, which had to be paid back by Monday morning. When it comes down to it all of the students that room in the home get together and decide to have a yard sale in order to keep their home away from home. The house is then saved when Mrs. Winthrop-Dimple offers the students $100,000 for an antique picture.

The class of 1997 accomplished a task no one ever imagined possible. They planned, ordered, and set the meal and decorations for Prom '96.

The class being of open minds, but very stubborn actions, stuck together to make a great prom. They started the battle of planning in February of '96 by choosing the theme and decorations. The theme chosen was "No Night Like Tonight." The colors were black, metallic purple and silver. The decorations mainly consisted of two black balloon-shaped hearts which floated from the ceiling and purple gossamer swayed within. Black columns were set up and gossamer and black balloons were strung between to make a walk-way in the middle of the dining area. Black and purple balloons in the shape of archways served as a divider from the dance floor. The photo background was a purple starlight window and had black and purple balloons with lights around the edges. A bench was set in front. Frank Rush catered the dinner of prime rib, corn and the rolls. The junior parents made the salads, twice baked potatoes and French Silk Pies.

Committees were made to help move things along smoothly, although everyone seemed to have a different opinion.

Rochelle Jones, Tammy Olson, Brandee Peuker and Jennifer Frump helped plan and order the decorations for the floor.

The menu, who would prepare, and the finalization of the servers were planned by Mark Albers, Matthew Symns, April Kuhnert, Sarah Perdue and Heather Smith.

The seating and the printed materials were set up by Jaclyn Chapman and Jodi Knudson, and they were supervised by Mrs. Roberts. The Vo-Tech of Atchison printed the place cards and the memory books, leaving the juniors with a scare because the ink in the memory books had bled and smeared. The committee sent them back and hoped they would be finished by Saturday. They were and the junior class was relieved.

Two days before the big event, the juniors started to decorate. They put up the parachute and started painting the flats. On Friday everyone joined the effort. In the end with everyone out of breath from blowing up balloons, and tired from trying to beat the clock, everyone had a good time. The best thing about it all was that everyone in the junior class seemed to be more than just satisfied about their accomplishments—they were proud.

Time For Party and Prizes

Games and prizes at the After Prom party capped off an eventful prom evening for the Midway High School students. The Healthy Living Committee, composed of parents that regularly plan activities for the students, sponsored the party at the YMCA in Atchison.

Some of the activities and games were swimming, money toss, Wheel of Fortune and a scavenger hunt. At 3 a.m. the prizes were given away. Some of the prizes that were given away were two 13” TVs to Christy Wohletz and Corey Franken, an Emerson video cassette player to Justin Matthias, a compact refrigerator to Sarah Moore, a microwave and blender to Aaron Jamvold and $100 to Dawn Simmons.

Waiting For Some Big Bucks: Matt Symns, junior, and sophomores Stephanie Bottiger and Joey McConnaughey watch to see where the gold ring is going to land.

Spin It: Joe Keys, junior, freshman Kylee Schuetz, Ryan Boggs, and sophomore Heather Clary stand around the table to see where the wheel will stop.
Seniors make memories at Ozarks

The seniors went on the annual senior sneak when they left for the Lake of the Ozarks at 6 a.m. on Thursday, May 9 for four days of fun. The seniors, Christy Wohletz, Sarah Moore, Dawn Simmons, Corey Franken, Aaron Jamvold, Justin Matthias, and their sponsors, Vicki Winchester and Jim Leatherman, stayed at Kalfran Lodge in Osage Beach.

They participated in many group activities including riding go-carts, attending the Main Street Opry, getting an old-time group photograph, bowling, and going shopping. They also did many things individually, such as renting wave-runners and parasailing.

The seniors and their sponsors had a very good time. They spent a lot of time laughing and having an altogether joyful time. They came back with memories that will last them a lifetime. It was a good ending to the seniors' high school career.
Back In the Olden Days: Dawn Simmons, Corey Franken, Aaron Jamvold, Christy Wohletz, Sarah Moore and Justin Matthias continue the tradition by taking an old time photo.

Riding Bumper Boats: Sarah Moore, Christy Wohletz, Aaron Jamvold, Corey Franken, Mr. Jim Leatherman and Dawn Simmons enjoy riding the bumper boats as one of their sneak activities.

Sneak Memories: “I had fun when we all rode bumper boats (except Justin and Mrs. Vicki Winchester). We all would go around in circles and bump into everyone. Mr. Leatherman splashed everyone; we were soaked.” Dawn Simmons

“Sneak was a fun time. It was a good time for our whole class to spend time together.” Christy Wohletz

“I played miniature golf for the first time. It was a blast, after that we rode the bumper boats. Mr. Leatherman started a water fight and we all came out soaked. It took two days to get my shorts to dry.” Sarah Moore

“I’ll remember the funny stories that Justin Matthias told and the bumper cars.” Aaron Jamvold

“The most memorable time on sneak for me was when Ern and I were riding the wave runners and the ejection seat. I will also remember the “Joyful” views at the dock.” Corey Franken

Awards Night
Changing a piece of the puzzle

The annual awards night had a different look this year. The ceremony was a more formal occasion by encouraging students to dress up, adding decorations from prom, having the ceremony in the big gym, adding new awards and getting community organizations involved by sponsoring awards.

Winners of the new CLASSS! awards were sophomore Jerry Pauly, Citizenship award; junior Rochelle Jones, Leadership and Service; junior Mark Albers, Attitude; junior David Roberts, Sportsmanship; sophomore Angie Wright, School Spirit; and sophomore Joey McConnaughey, Most Improved.

The 1995-96 Publications Staff presents Volume 37 of "The Eagle." Taylor Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas printed the 72 page yearbook with a total number of 60 copies ordered. The 7 2/3" X 10 1/2" volume was printed on 70# matte with two pages done in four color.

The cover and division pages were designed by Jodi Knudson. The base color was done in Black Korrigan with the theme and puzzle pieces stamped in #702 Blue applied color. The theme "Putting It All Together" was narrowed down by the class. We knew that to make a great yearbook we had to put all the people and events of the school year together in one book.

The body copy is printed in 12 point Korinna and the captions in 8 point Korinna Italics. The standard headlines are printed in Nouveau typeface.

A special thank you goes to McBee photography for taking the professional pictures for some of the sports pages, the prom pages, the graduation pages and the royalty pages. Paul Roberts' contribution of photos is also appreciated.

The yearbook staff that put this book together includes Brandee Peuker, Jodi Knudson, April Kuhnert, Amy Graves and Mrs. Marla Taylor, advisor.
