A Senior Touch

Throughout the years, the lives of these Midway students will be touched by something. They may be touched by success, failure, love, or even joy. The hope of this yearbook is to touch the lives of these students years from now by a flame of remembrance.

Math

It's a sizzlin' subject

The math classes offered to Midway students include Algebra I; Algebra II; Geometry; Advanced Math; which are taught by Mr. Jim Leatherman; and Calculus/Trigonometry, which is taught by Ms. Jennifer Bottom.

Often times students question some of the math that doesn't seem to be related to life outside the classroom. Ms. Bottom says she tries to show students that math is important because, "you use math in everything you do." Mr. Leatherman says one reason math is important to life is because it helps people to organize information in their minds.

In describing himself as a teacher, Mr. Leatherman said, "I expect students to realize the basic fundamentals of math, to work and realize there will be homework, and realize that homework is more important than what T.V. shows are on tonight."

Ms. Bottom tries to be demanding about students getting their work in on time, but relaxed enough so they aren't afraid to ask questions.

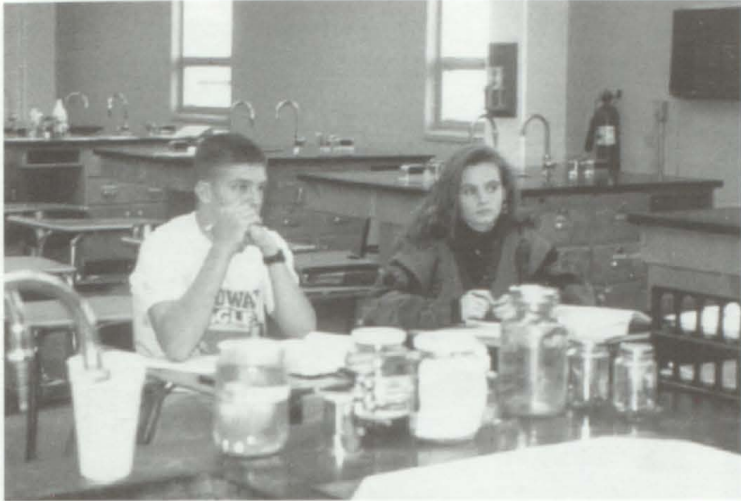

The Algebra I class is hard at work on another one of Mr. Leatherman's assignments.

top: Wade Bilderback, freshman, seems to be having a hard time concentrating on his Algebra I assignment.

bottom: Stephanie Bottiger, Staci Wohletz, Nick Peuker, freshmen, and Keith Peuker, sophomore, work diligently on their Algebra assignments.

Science

Hot New Teachers

Two new science teachers joined the Midway faculty this year. They are Mr. Robert Lewis, who teaches Chemistry and Physics, and Mrs. Deanna Scherer, who teaches General Science, Biology, and Anatomy.

Mr. Lewis, who formerly taught at Horton, teaches only first and second hours. He says he didn't completely retire because his wife is still teaching and he likes to teach. So he thought about being a substitute teacher, but Midway needed somebody here. He says he likes the students here because they aren't rowdy or troublesome and they are fun to work with.

Mrs. Scherer says that science is important because it goes on all around us and she thinks a questioning attitude is a more successful attitude. Mrs. Scherer was formerly a substitute teacher, and though she enjoys having her own classroom, she says full time teaching can be a little overwhelming.

Adam Arnold, senior, and Josh Bennett, junior, both seem to be paying attention to Mr. Lewis.

Burning Up the Books

Language Arts

In College English, Elizabeth Holzhey, Angie Leatherman and Melissa McAfee, seniors, look over graded papers.

Christy Wohletz, Steve Helmstetter and Aaron Jamvold, juniors, are finished with their English III assignments early and work on prom.

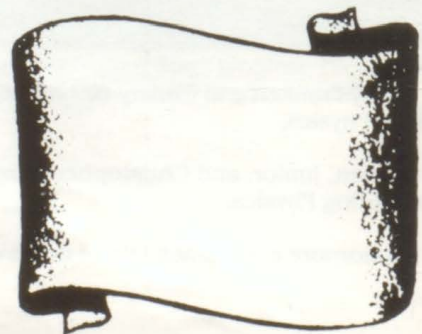

English II laughs at the class discussion.

English I watches Mr. Jones write grammar rules on the board.

Mrs. Marla Taylor and Mr. George Jones were the new English Teachers this year. Mr. Jones taught English I and English II, while Mrs. Taylor taught English III, English IV and College English. "I couldn't have wished for a better situation as a first year teacher. The classes were small and the students were great to work with," Taylor said.

Seniors is Hot in Spanish Foreign Language

Mr. George Jones and Ms. Cyndi Geisen taught Foreign Languages this year. This was Mr. Jones' first year at Midway. He said, "This year was a learning experience for me. Some moments were enjoyable, and some were frustrating. I definitely have learned many new parts to my own character and the characters of my students as I have balanced time between teaching and coaching. I am looking forward to improving and to being a better instructor in the future."

Business and Computers

Fixin' up the keyboards

One way students are prepared for the real world is through computer classes, because soon nearly everything in the job world will be computerized.

Mrs. Vicki Winchester teaches computer skills in Eighth Grade Computers, In House Training, Keyboarding I, and Computer Applications, but says she uses computers in all of her other classes too. The other computer teacher is Ms. Jennifer Bottom, who teaches Basic Programming and Seventh Grade Computers.

Midway has had a network of IBM computers since 1990 and before that they had Apple computers. Mrs. Winchester says if she could change anything about the computer department she would update the computers by adding memory, making them faster, and getting updated software. Ms. Bottom would like to have higher level programming classes and a second computer lab.

Social Studies

Hot Coffee and Hot Topics

Mr. Elden Ninemire, who is famous for going through about three or four cups of coffee a day, has taught at Midway for 20 years.

past actions. Mr. Ninemire tries to show students other cultures, in World Geography, and how geography affects these cultures.

In trying to make social studies valuable to everyday life, Mr. Ninemire tries to relate history to the present so students can better appreciate what they have. He also wants students to better appreciate history and the consequences of

Mr. Danny Ackerman was a student teacher for Mr. Ninemire in the afternoons during second semester. Most of the students seemed to like him and a few of the seniors were heard saying, "he's awesome!"

Home Economics: Warming Up the Stove

Mrs. June Roberts has been the Home Economics teacher for the past 15 years. She teaches Modern Foods to the high school students and general economics to the 7th and 8th grades. In regards to the Foods class Mrs. Roberts said, "If you keep the high schoolers full then they will be happy."

Also Mrs. Roberts teaches Child Development to the high school students. Jeff Albers, who is in that class said, "I feel it is getting us ready for the real world when we have our own children."

Top: Mike Purmort and Jeff Albers, seniors, and Steve Helmstetter, junior, talk after finishing their Modern Foods assignment.

Music — Burning Up the Room With Song

Mrs. Cindy Graham was the new music teacher this year. She taught vocal to the high school and junior high students, band to grades 5-12 and music to elementary students.

Mrs. Graham enjoys teaching and says, "Music is the spice of life."

The high school vocal class had a different touch to it this year. Not only did students do the usual singing, but they also danced. The class also gave some non-traditional performances such as Christmas caroling in Atchison and singing for the residents at Collier Manor in Highland.

"Vocal is interesting this year because we have a good teacher," said Melissa McAfee, senior.

Mrs. Graham and the band rehearse.

Staying In Shape

This year there were two classes available for students to stay in shape. These classes were Freshman P.E./Health and Advanced P.E. taught by Mr. Mark Martin. Freshman P.E. was during the first quarter and the fourth quarter while Health was taught the second quarter and the third quarter. Health class taught students about nutrition, diseases, and sex education. The P.E. classes were tested quarterly for physical fitness. This test consisted of a mile run, pull-ups, sit-ups, and flexibility. Heather Smith, sophomore, commented by saying, "Advanced P.E. is a good break from studies, but I don't like running the mile."

Skills

Students found many facility improvements in the shop area on their return to school this year. Cement blocks, smaller windows, and a new energy-efficient garage door replaced the inefficient large windows and door that comprised the west wall of the classroom and shop. The classroom received a new computer with an extensive computer drafting program. The shop added a new drill press and metal-cutting band saw.

Target Industries, Kansas City, Mo., gave the classroom use of $6000 worth of drafting equipment and drawing tables.

Student improvements came in technology communication skills through learning drawing skills. Students also learned tool and process application work in woodworking and mechanics. "I like to stress employability skills also," said Mr. Juhl, "that means we try to improve attitude and work ethic while perfecting job performance."

Along with Industrial Arts is Vo-Tech. Chris Hoffman, senior, attended NEKA Vo-Tech for welding this past year. He attended Vo-Tech in the morning and was at school in the afternoon.

Five people and a new advisor gave the yearbook a different look. The yearbook staff was first orientated with the yearbook procedures, then they began snapping pictures. They were involved in layout drawings, story writing, and picture cropping. Once a rough draft was drawn up, it was then entered into the computer. If any problems occurred, the students went to the student editor, Melissa McAfee, senior, or advisor, Mrs. Taylor.

In order to pay for the cost, the staff traveled to Atchison to sell ads. Once the ads were sold, business manager, Tara Rush, senior, wrote out bills, and logged payments.

Not only did the yearbook staff produce the yearbook, they also kept the community informed with the weekly Midway School News. The staff rotated weekly to produce these articles.

Student Council Sponsors Hot Events

Student Council in the 1994-95 school year was made up of a total of seven members, one representative from each class, one from the cheerleaders, and the three officers. The officers are made up of Adam Arnold, president, Christy Wohletz, vice president, and Audrey Caudle, secretary/treasurer.

Stuco sponsored the Snowball dance and the Christmas food drive.

The Christmas food drive provided 15 appreciation fruit baskets for people who have helped the school, 10 small food baskets for individuals who are retired and did or do help the school, and it provided six family boxes for deserving families with gifts for their children.

Explosive Cheers and Fantastic Fun

The 1994-95 cheer-leading squad was very unique because of the size of the squad and that no senior or junior girl went out for cheer-leading.

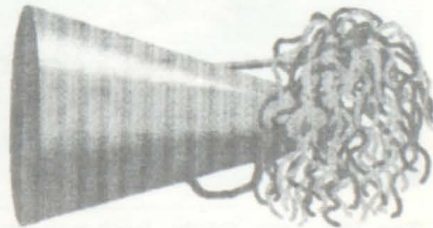

The members of the squad were Jennifer Frump, sophomore; Sarah Perdue, sophomore; and Angie Wright a freshman. With only three members the squad was small but not in enthusiasm and spirit.

The girls did their best in cheering on the football and basketball teams. They also held pep rallies for the football, volleyball and basketball teams. They had games in which they picked people from each class to do something. The games they provided were fun and exciting.

Burning Up the Buzzers

A young Scholars Bowl team placed seventh in State competition this year. They traveled to Ransom, KS for the contest on March 17, after placing second at regionals at Centralia.

Shirley Symns, the advisor for a second year said, "I was very pleased since our team consisted of two freshmen, two sophomores and only one junior. Most other teams had seniors."

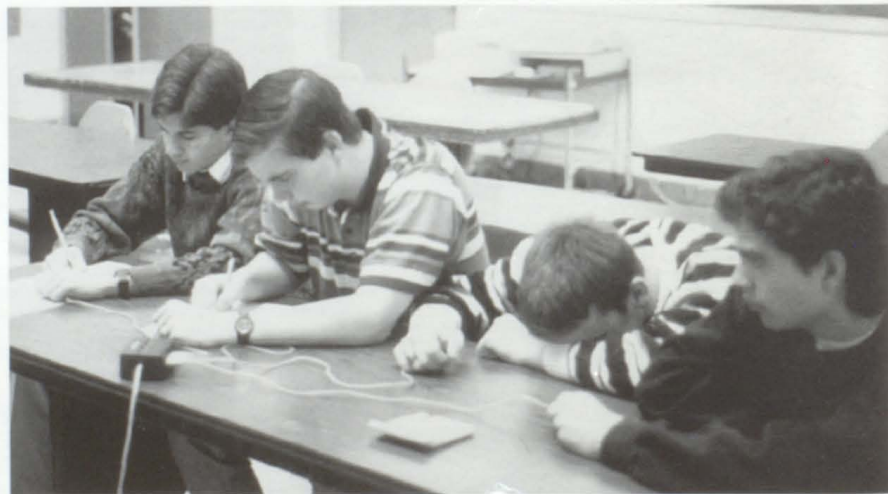

The members of the State squad were Joshua Bennett, junior; Sarah Perdue and Matt Symns, both sophomores; and freshmen Jerry Pauly and Jason Bennett. The other members of the team this year were: Nathan Arnold, sophomore; and freshmen Angie Wright and Patricia Clark.

Volleyball! A Spark of Spirit

Bump, Set, Spike! This year's volleyball season started on a different foot by getting a new coach. This year's coach was Mrs. Marla Taylor, who graduated from Highland High School. Not only did the coach change, but the size of the squad changed. The size improved to a total of 19 players in the beginning of the season.

The junior varsity had a few matches throughout the season. Their coach, Mrs. Carmen Crandall, joined the squad about a month after the season started. They ended their season with a quad at Jackson Heights. Rochelle Jones, sophomore, summed up their season by saying, "We improved as a team and I am looking forward to next year."

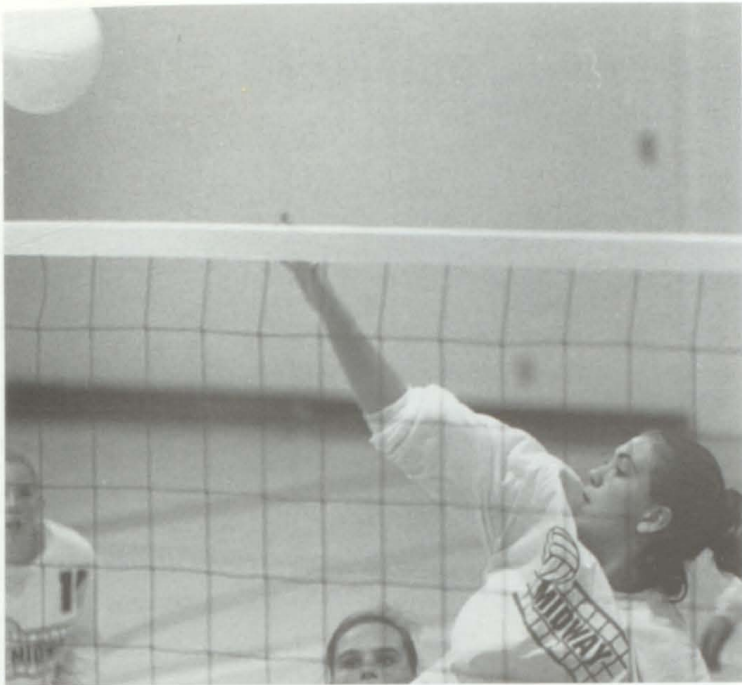

The varsity season got off to a good start with a victory over Dekalb and a victory over Highland. This was the first time in 8 years that the Eagles have beaten the Blues-treaks.

Despite some tough teams throughout the season, the Eagles stuck together through it all. Colleen Callahan, senior, ended by saying, "For my last season, I've made plenty of memories for myself and for the underclassmen. I hope for the underclassmen that volleyball becomes more of a joy and that next year's volleyball team will get along."

Flaming Gridiron of Football

Coming into a season with the desire to return to a state championship game, the Eagles were ready to begin. The season started out great with victories over North Andrew, Baileyville, Hanover, and Dekalb, resulting in a trip to number 4 in the state polls.

Then came a defeat to Axtell, who knocked the Eagles out of the playoffs last year. However, the Eagles rebounded with victories over Bern and the Kansas School of the Deaf, before suffering a heart-breaking loss to Elwood in the district finals. To finish out the season, the Eagles dropped a road game at St. Mary's Academy. Coach Mark Martin said his feelings about the season were, "The overall team effort was good, but anytime you lose a district game it's very disappointing. The seniors showed great leadership, and there is good potential returning next year."

John Mowry
 "We had a good season. It came down to one play in the district championship to qualify for the state playoffs, and we played our hearts out."

Christopher Denton
 "It was disappointing as a senior to suffer defeat and not qualify for the playoffs."

Mike Purmort
 "Overall, it was a good season, but disappointing that we couldn't beat Elwood."

Boys Basketball

The Boys basketball team started out a little rocky, but finished off with a good season. Their finishing record was 12-9. Coach Jim Leatherman summed up the season by saying, "We had some ups and downs, some exciting games, we won some and lost some of them and I was disappointed for it to come to an end."

Burning Up the Court

Sweat, hustle, skill, and determination are what kept the Eagles together. All of these things helped them take firm hold of a mark for the overall season.

Coach Jennifer Bottom expressed her feelings about the season by saying, "We went on a roller coaster ride this year. We were up at times and down at times. It is always hard when a season comes to an end. The hardest part is losing four quality seniors that will be missed in more ways than words could possibly state. The girls always played hard no matter what the situation was and that made things much easier for me. I just want to congratulate the girls on a fine season."

Burning Up

For the twenty third consecutive year, the boys qualified someone for state. At regionals, Christopher Denton, senior, took first in three events: 800m (2:02.9), 1600m (4:42.7), 3200m (10:18.9). Also qualifying for state was Joshua Bennett, junior, in two events. He placed second in the discus (126.6) and third in the pole vault (10'). Jeremy Blanton, freshman, also placed at regionals (5th-high jump, 5'10"), but did not qualify for state.

Burning up the Cross Country Path

The Cross Country Team increased in size this year and had a total of nine members. Also the team combined with Highland's five members to form a Midway-Highland team. The team consisted of Christopher Denton, Eric Thompson, Matt Symns, Colleen Callahan, Audrey Caudle, Jaclyn Chapman, Angie Leatherman, Brandee Peuker and Melissa Thompson.

"I thought it was a good season in that most runners consistently improved their times, but I was disappointed in the number of injuries that we had," said Coach Leatherman.

Some of the best times were Symns, 23.17 at Troy; E. Thompson, 23.47 at Sabetha (Regionals); Callahan, 18.48 at Hiawatha; Chapman, 18.01 at Maur Hill; Leatherman, 20.41 at Horton; M. Thompson, 17.00 at Maur Hill; Caudle, 17.18 at Maur Hill; and Peuker, 16.22 at Horton. Although Denton, last year's 1A-2A State Champ, was injured most of the season he still placed 1st(17.42) at the Sabetha Regionals and captured 3rd place at the State meet.

Brandee Peuker and Jaclyn Chapman stay with the pack.

Angie Leatherman and Colleen Callahan, seniors, keep pace with each other.

A Touch Of This

Above: Sarah Moore, junior, is at a show in Nebraska. Her love for horses has grown over the years and after high school graduation, may lead her to attend William Woods College, an equestrian college in Fulton, Mo. Sarah continues today to ride her horses, along with taking classes from an instructor at Manhattan.

Above: Anatomy! The anatomy class had the pleasure of dissecting a stillborn calf. The calf, which was brought in by Larry Kuhnert, was donated to the anatomy class for study. Since the class was made up entirely of females, several guys joined for this moment. The main purpose of the calf dissection was to study the brain, which was the topic the class was studying at that point in the semester. It took about two days for the class to cut through the skull to reveal the fist-sized brain. Chris Hoffman, senior, and Mark Albers, sophomore were the ones who did the main cutting. Although the brain was the main attraction, the class also studied the heart, along with other intestines. Science teacher Deanna Scherer said, "Most everybody was pretty astounded by it, including myself. Students take supply house specimens for granted. It showed a rather graphic picture of obtaining biological specimens."

Left: The annual National Guard's shooting van arrived at Midway to test the aiming ability of the high school students, and perhaps convince some students to join. Adam Arnold, senior, prepares to test his abilities. Later in the year, he signed with the Marines to serve our country.

A Touch Of That

Right: During College English each student had a choice of either taking a test or giving a scene presentation of Shakespeare's, "Macbeth". On the left, the three things that Matt Matthias is representing are the three apparitions. The first is the helmeted head, the second is a child, and the third is a crowned child and a tree. Below these pictures and to the far left, Eric Thompson portrays the witch that is speaking during the time the apparitions appear to Macbeth, who was played by Adam Arnold (not pictured). In the middle was another excerpt from the play done by Jeff Albers, Christopher Denton, and Mike Purmort. Their famous saying was "Double, double, toil and trouble, fire burn and cauldron bubble." All in all, these boys gave the class a memorable experience of performing the arts.

Hot Yearbooks and Cold Ice Cream

The annual yearbook signing party was held on Tuesday Sept. 20 at 6 p.m. The Student Council provided the ice cream for the party.

Besides signing yearbooks and eating ice cream, the students talked and read what each other wrote in their yearbooks. The purpose for yearbook signing parties is to give the students the opportunity to sign each other's books and to socialize about the past.

"It was a nice to have everyone there to sign your yearbook and I will always remember it," said Audrey Caudle, senior.

Spirit Week: Touched By Fire

Spirit Week events for 1994 included dress up days, such as inner city day; favorite college day; red, white and blue day; and hippy day for the upperclassmen. On one day the freshmen were dressed as the opposite sex by the seniors.

Other events during the week included games during the lunch hour. These were tug of war, won by the seniors; three-legged race and scooter races, both won by the freshmen; and a knockout basketball game, won by the sophomores.

The seniors won the overall competition by winning the hall decorations contest and having the highest percentage of their class participate in dress up days. The juniors came in second, the sophomores in third, and freshman fourth.

Sneakin' Away. . .

Sneak this year took all 16 seniors, along with their sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Leatherman, and Mr. Martin to the Lake of the Ozarks for four days. On Thursday, May 11, the seniors pulled out at 6 a.m.

Arriving at Kalfran, their resort, around noon, the seniors unpacked and settled into their rooms. The weekend was filled with jet skiing, boating, swimming, parasailing, shopping, dancing, and playing pool. The class did things as a whole such as attend the Main Street Opry, tour the Bridal Cave, ride bumper boats, pose for an old time photo, and ride go karts.

An ordinary day was to eat breakfast at 8:30. Then, the class would load up to do the stuff planned for them as a whole. Around 12:30, the class would arrive back at Kalfran for lunch. The rest of the afternoon was spent as each one desired-boating, swimming, etc. Around 5 p.m. the class loaded up again to go to an area restaurant for supper. When the seniors returned back at Kalfran, it was time to get the pool cues out along with the dancing shoes. A dance was held in the recreational area from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. which was also everyone's curfew. Adam Arnold said, "I had the best time renting the speed boat, driving it and riding the tube."

Senior Wills

I, Elizabeth Holzhey, being of burnt-out mind and shrunken body, do will the following: to Melissa McAfee, a new car with a cattle guard so you won't hit anymore cows going home from my house, and a house inside a bathroom so you will never have to leave; to Jeff Albers and Mike Purmort, my tin can; to Adam Arnold, um, uh, I forget; to Tara Rush, Congratulations on your first date and let's hope it is not another 18 years until the next.

I, John Mowry, being of complaining mind and strong body, do will the following: to Adam Arnold, a year certificate to Driver's Ed. course; to Jeff Albers, a Celebrity to bring back old memories; to Mike Purmort, a date with Carla Schmelze; to Matt Matthias, a lookalike Pat for college; to Christopher Denton, a membership to Bazookas; to Cheryl High, nothing because you already take our tax money that you don't need.

I, Adam Arnold, of brilliant mind and a chiseled, rock-hard, no-fat and low cholesterol body, do will the following: to Christopher Denton, penicillin and a lifetime supply of Mister Misty's; to Mr. Leatherman, a pocket translator for the Rogelia impaired and a new assistant coach, Josh Bennett; to Matt Matthias, a brand new 1995 Colt; to Mike Purmort, an assist; to Melissa McAfee, a 500 lb. shirt and a lead, protective helmet; to John Mowry, 20 muscle shirts and a starring role in "Roadhouse".

I, Audrey Caudle, being of hubristic mind and pulchritudinous body, do will the following: to Colleen Callahan, a happy neighbor and her own sand volleyball court; to Mike Purmort and Jeff Albers, the Snoopdoggy Dog CD and the Ice-T CD; to Amy Albers, all of my nicknames and a medal in track; to Christy Wohletz, some fingernails and the new Pizza Hut Barbie; to Elizabeth Holzhey, a trip to Maggie Moo's, my matchmaking abilities, and the use of my car for once.

I, Tara Rush, being of overused mind and Gladiator body, do will the following: to Jeff Albers, the ability to do one homework assignment on your own — especially math; to Audrey Caudle, one complete track practice, a regional 800 without losing a shoe; to Angie Leatherman, a U-Haul company to move all your clothes from home to college; to Mike Purmort, art lessons, so you can draw without erasing or getting into trouble; to Melissa McAfee, one whole day without complaining; to Christy Wohletz, a roommate for basketball camp that doesn't get hurt.

I, Cheryl High, being of overused mind and ERRR body, do will the following: to Jeff Albers, a big rock in a wheat field; to John Mowry, Mike Purmort, and Jeff Albers, a few benefits paid with tax dollars; to Angie Leatherman, at least one new pair of shoes a week for the rest of your life; to Matt Matthias, the ability to be impolite — politeness will get you nowhere; to Melissa McAfee, just one night; to Jim, successful completion of a telephone collision course, a 3-wheel drive Dodge, and a lifelong marriage.

I, Melissa McAfee, of dirty mind and worn-out body, do will the following: to Elizabeth Holzhey, the ability to change your sheets and the ability not to be stuck up when you move to Troy; to Adam Arnold, a pooper scooper and a doggie box; to Angie Leatherman, the ability to keep your doors locked; to Tara Rush, a date with Jeff; to Jeff Albers, the ability to admit when you like Tara; to Cheryl High, love beads and fruit roll-ups.

I, Chris Hoffman, being of no mind and somewhat of a body, do will the following: to John Mowry, a parking space without any trees around, and the 56 Chevy with 4-wheel drive; to Jeff Albers and Tara Rush, I leave nothing because they own half of Doniphan County; to Eric Thompson, fishing lures from Wal-Mart; to the Bennett brothers, a fair fight; to Corey Franken, a center that will block half as well as I did; to Brandee, I leave a happy next year without me and my future with all my love.

I, Angie Leatherman, being of always speaking my mind and fashionably dressed body, do will the following: to John Mowry, the ability to get through an entire basketball season; to Mike Purmort, many more artistic drawings of the faculty, and the ability to shoot a fox while hanging out of the window of a moving vehicle; to Jeff Albers, the ability not to puke after one carnival ride, and a locksmith for the next time you lock your keys in your truck; to my sidekick Colleen, the ability to be on time at least once in your life, and appreciation for country music, and to always be the Jack-of-all-trades at everything you do.

I, Jeff Albers, being of unathletic body and under-used mind, do will the following: to Aaron Jamvold, a Toys 'R' Us of your own with Bridget and Jamie as employees; to Christopher Denton, a brand new green Dynasty and your own truckline called Doggy Denton's Truckline; to Steve Helmstetter, a new hat, a woman, and some homemade wine; to Elizabeth Holzhey, a cool license tag like mine for your car; to Colleen Callahan and Melissa McAfee — Hrrrrrrr!; to Mike Purmort, a Ford as awesome as mine and for Bob to move with you to KU.

I, Christopher Denton, being of guilty mind and mileaged body, do will the following: to Mike Purmort, a gold-plated leash and collar so if you have to wear one, at least you'll be in style; to Matt Matthias, an attitude because politeness will get you nowhere; to Josh Bennett, a trip around the world so he can pick out his wife; to John Mowry, a 2,000 acre plantation in Africa to start his big game killing club; to Chris Franken, something to do instead of coming to Midway's prom for 3 years in a row; to Adam Arnold, a shovel to dig his own grave and a coupon for a free meal at Long John Silvers.

I, Colleen Callahan, being of albino body and depleted mind, do will the following: to Jeff Albers, a new part and more superblues; to Angie Leatherman, a lasting memory of your best friend and everything crazy we have done, and a real man that can appreciate your sense of humor, determination for being independent, and love for Kevin Cronin, Oh, and a port-a-potty just in case you decide to run 2 miles again; to the senior class, the ability to appreciate good music sung by Angie and me; to Little Rae, another night to go swimming with the boys, a cashier that won't call you Corky, and a night to go ride the Ninjas again; to Christopher Denton (Pic), a shower curtain.

I, Mike Purmort, do will the following: to Josh Bennett, a trash company, a superman suit, and a membership to the "Foreign Woman a Month Club"; to Joe Keys, a bigger imagination, clearer glasses to see the truth, and a pair of zipper lips; to Christopher Denton, a black book to keep all your women's names in order and your famous one-liners organized. Also, a town liar to follow you to college to make up some new rumors; to Corey Franken, a fuse for your temper, many more camping trips, and your own Geneva Avenue so you won't have to go far for a date; to Mr. Leatherman, a cool channel, like Elden's.

Touched By Fire

The 1994-1995 Publications Staff presents Volume 36 of "The Eagle." Taylor Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas printed the 72 page yearbook with a total number of 60 copies ordered. The 7 2/3" X 10 1/2" volume was printed on 70# matte with two pages done in four-color spread.

This year's cover and division pages were designed by Marlene Mowry. The cover was done in Blue Korigan with the theme "Touched By Fire" stamped in Red. This theme was derived from a list and selected by the entire class. The body copy was printed in a 10 point Nouveau text. The captions were also in this text, but had a point size of 8. The headlines were done in a reporter text. All professional pictures were taken by McBee Photography.

A special thank you goes to everyone who has helped to make this yearbook a success. Class Staff includes: Mrs. Marla Taylor, advisor; Melissa McAfee, student editor; Tara Rush, business manager; Cheryl High; Sarah Moore and Justin Mathias.
